Suburbanites: 'It's just a matter of survival'

The energy shortage: how you'll feel it...

by The Herald Staff

The prospect of a chilly winter and gas shortages was accepted as a fact of life yesterday by Northwest suburban residents in the wake of President Nixon's call for voluntary cutbacks of energy consumption Wednesday.

Many people say they are already turning down the heat, starting car pools and turning off the lights whenever possible. In fact, the only widespread negative feeling about the cutback was a suspicion that not enough other people will voluntarily restrict themselves to make a difference in the energy crisis.

"We usually turn our thermostats down in the evening anyway, and very seldom drive over 50, but will everyone do it? Are they going to do it in Washington, too?" asked Wheeling resident Mrs. Michael Grabus.

"I don't think too many people will voluntarily start being careful about power use. It will only happen when it is a forced rationing," predicted Barbara Murphy, a Hoffman Estates resident. But for many of the residents questioned by Herald reporters, the early rumblings of impending voluntary restrictions were taken to heart.

SEVERAL PEOPLE began taking the train to Chicago instead of driving when the summer gas shortages began. Others use car pools for shopping trips and recreational outings.

Fuel shortages also are being taken seriously by homeowners contemplating smaller, more economical cars.

"Our present one is a gas-eater," one woman admitted. Even traditionally speedy American drivers say they are willing to slow down to 50 miles per hour. Some believe that mandatory 50 mph speed limits are needed.

Ralph Bossert of Arlington Heights says he will be driving slower now. And he goes one step further.

"I believe that legislation should have been taken a long time ago," Bossert said of the gas shortage. And legislation encouraging smaller engines for cars should be passed, too, according to Bossert.

ANOTHER fair-weather conservation measure is used by a Des Plaines Man.

"My husband rides a bike to work. He's been doing it for some time," said Mrs. Judy Sticker of Des Plaines.

For some people, the energy crisis is a job crisis, too.

"Damn right I'm worried and turning off more lights and driving slower and heating less. It means my job if we don't have fuels," said a Schaumburg pilot who works with a major airline.

Mike Scimeca, a gasoline station owner in Hoffman Estates, says he's mad "in general, because everybody is just worried about being rationed. I'm not only rationed already, I don't have the right to raise my gas prices when the oil companies keep raising mine."

Scimeca says he'll do his share to conserve energy at home, "because I'm worried about it all running out, but I just hope I can go on making a living."

SOME RESIDENTS blame politics for the crisis. One man said the shortage is "a plot to get the Alaska (oil) pipeline through." Another believed that earlier administrations didn't do enough to start conserving years ago.

"This is something that has been going on for years," said one Arlington Heights woman.

On the other side of the political coin, one person said Nixon "was smart to urge voluntary measures." Joe Owens of Arlington Heights said, "I think there was no other alternative."

Kenneth Fraley, a Rolling Meadows resident, is confident that Americans will "get together to work on this thing and do exactly what he (Nixon) wants us to do."

"The American people are noted for that — when they have to do something, they get together and do it," Fraley said.

BUT FOR OTHER homeowners, the struggle to conserve energy comes as a byproduct of the fight to save money.

"I've got four kids and a wife. It costs too much to live now. If I don't constantly scream about shutting off lights, closing doors and save, save, save, on bills, we'd starve," said one Hoffman Estates homeowner.

"Nixon? Heck, he's not asking me to do anything I haven't had to do to survive," he said.

Lowering home thermostats can ease the heating oil crunch.

Plans to present ordinance

Jackson urges law to block all building on flood plain

by LYNN ASINOF

Wheeling Trustee Don Jackson is calling for a new village flood plain ordinance designed to prohibit all building in the flood plain.

The proposed ordinance is modeled after those prepared by Palatine and Glen Ellyn. These ordinances allow developers to use the entire acreage of a site to compute the density of a project, but prohibit developers from building anything on flood plain land.

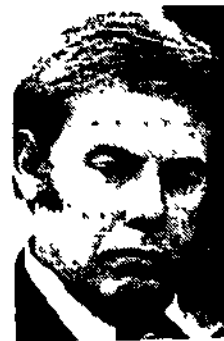

Use of flood plain land is limited in these ordinances to arboreta, picnic groves, nurseries, wildlife sanctuaries, the planting of crops, and easements for sewers or utilities.

In proposing the new ordinance, Jackson said he did not think the present flood plain regulations give the village adequate flood protection.

THE TRUSTEE CITED a passage in the recently completed village stormwater drainage and flood control report, which calls for more restrictive flood plain policies in the village. "Local flood plain zoning laws should carefully restrict construction within the 100-year storm flood plain, preferably setting aside this land for limited, low-impact use — such as open space, wildlife sanctuaries, agriculture, recreation, etc.," the report states.

Jackson said he interprets this passage as a call for the revision of present village codes. "I read it to say our flood plain ordinance is inadequate and should be changed," he said.

The trustee also noted that several agencies have taken exception to retention basins built in the flood plain, a type now allowed by the village. Saying these basins do not provide satisfactory retention, Jackson cited two letters from the state soil conservation service and the North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation District.

"It leads me to believe that they do not think a retention basin in the flood plain works at all," he said.

NOTING THAT many members of the Wheeling Village Board have been leaders in flood control, Jackson asked that the board once again take the initiative by enacting more stringent regulations.

In order to change the present village ordinances, the trustees would have to direct the zoning board to hold public hearings on the matter. Trustees, however, have declined to issue that direction.

Village Mgr. George Passolt said the zoning board is presently considering a revision of the ordinance that would create new density regulations. "I think this is the very question (Jackson's proposal) the zoning board has a hearing on," he said.

Jackson, however, said he was not seeking a revision on density, but rather a totally new ordinance. "What I'm proposing is that we stop all building on the flood plain and offer compensatory density to the developers," he said.

CURRENTLY, the village allows building in the flood plain with developers providing water storage for the amount of water that would be displaced by the building.

Passolt later said the current zoning board hearing would not be able to deal with a total revision of the flood plain ordinance. "But I think it is one good place to bring it up," he said.

The manager said the current hearing should proceed with a second hearing being ordered by the board if necessary. He noted that the current hearing was requested because of problems associated with the Swan Lake development in southern Wheeling, and said these problems should be resolved before further action is taken.

Passolt said that if a new hearing is called, the zoning board should not restrict itself to consideration of the flood plain.

Noting that much of Wheeling's flooding problems are caused by building upstream, Passolt said any revision of the village codes should include the impact of new construction. "If you have new building, you create new flood plains," he said.

Jackson said he plans to pursue the matter, and will probably propose the new ordinance again in the near future.

Few Thompson tickets left

A few tickets will be available at the door for the Wheeling American Legion's Eggs and Issues Breakfast Saturday, which will feature U. S. Atty. James R. Thompson.

The breakfast will begin at 8:30 a.m. at the Clayton House Motel, 1090 S. Milwaukee Ave. Originally, it was scheduled at the Union Hotel Restaurant. The Union, however, has been sold and is closed for remodeling.

Most of the 150 tickets available for the breakfast have already been sold. Interest in the breakfast has been stimulated by the current investigation that has called a number of Wheeling officials before a federal grand jury. The investigation conducted by Thompson's office is focusing on alleged building and zoning shakedowns in Wheeling.

Thompson, however, has said he expects to limit his remarks to his office and its operations. The topic of his speech will be "Integrity and Public Service."

Members of the American Legion will be stationed at the Union Hotel to direct breakfast-goers to the new location.

A question-and-answer period is expected to follow Thompson's speech.

Most municipal buildings to close Monday

Elementary school and high school districts, Park districts and most municipal buildings in the Northwest suburbs will be closed Monday in honor of Veterans Day.

Rolling Meadows City Hall and the village halls in Arlington Heights, Hoffman Estates and Elk Grove Village will be open, however. Post offices, public libraries and Harper College in Palatine also will be open as will Elk Grove Township offices.

Committeeman races only contests

by BOB LAHEY

In an otherwise quiet primary election year in the Northwest suburbs, the political posts of township committeeman are shaping up as the only intraparty contests in the Northwest suburbs.

In Wheeling, Schaumburg, Palatine and Elk Grove townships, all four Democratic committeemen appear headed for efforts to unseat them. Contests have developed for two committeeman's posts on the Republican ticket.

Only Elk Grove Township GOP committeeman Carl R. Hansen, whose Republican organization boasted the largest voter turnout in Cook County in the 1972 election, appears immune from dissent.

While there is sentiment among some Republicans in Schaumburg Township for replacing state Rep. Donald L. Totten as committeeman, no opponent has yet surfaced.

In the Wheeling Township Republican Organization, with a record of effectiveness comparable to Hansen's Elk Grove Township organization, there is an amicable contest between two long-standing members to carry on the leadership of Committeeman Richard A. Cowen, who has announced that he will not seek reelection.

The candidates, both Arlington Heights residents, are Fred Yonkers and former village trustee Dwight Walton, both admirers of Cowen who have indicated that their basic aim as committeeman would be to continue on the course that Cowen has set for the past six years.

IN THE OTHER races, not all quite so amicable, the incumbents and challengers are playing variations on the theme of "opening up the party" and doing away with control of the organization by one or a few party members.

A challenge to Palatine Township GOP Committeeman Bernard E. Pedersen by Palatine Village Trustee Fred Zajonc apparently stems at least partly from animosities involving village politics.

WHEELING TOWNSHIP

Democrats — Committeeman Donald L. Norman was elected by organization members without opposition recently to succeed James L. McCabe, who resigned.

He will be opposed in the April election by Nathaniel Leighton of Arlington Heights, president of the Independent Democratic Organization. Leighton has long been critical of the leadership in the Wheeling organization, which he thinks has not been responsive to the more liberal members of the independent coalition.

Since his election, however, Norman, despite criticism by some members of the regular organization, has made overtures to members of Leighton's coalition.

Republicans — The contest between Walton and Yonkers shapes up as a personal quest for support from precinct workers, with both the contestants tacitly agreeing that the other is qualified to take over the organization.

ELK GROVE TOWNSHIP

Democrats — Interim committeeman William B. Rose of Elk Grove Village, elected recently to succeed Chester Chesney, is being challenged by Kent Kirkwood of Mount Prospect, a deputy committeeman who also served as president of the organization until his recent resignation from that post.

Rose, since his election in September, also has declared his intention to expand the membership and to encourage participation by all Democrats.

Kirkwood, however, was critical of the method by which Rose was selected as committeeman and attempted to postpone the election until bylaws governing the choice of committeeman were adopted by the organization.

Kirkwood plans a precinct-by-precinct drive to garner votes against Rose and said supporters he attracts during the campaign will be encouraged to take over precinct captains' jobs, many of which are vacant.

Kirkwood said he would make adoption of a constitution and by-laws his first priority as committeeman, to end what he sees as arbitrary control of the organization by the committeeman. "I'm not trying to become head of an organization," says Kirkwood. "I'm trying to create an organization."

Republicans — No contest.

SCHAUMBURG TOWNSHIP

Democrats — Lack of organization and a dearth of precinct workers is also the theme followed by John Carsello of Schaumburg in challenging Committeeman John Morrissey.

In the 53 precincts in the township, Carsello says there are no more than a handful of "bona fide" precinct captains. "There are Democrats out there, but somebody has to go out and bring them in," Carsello says. He is also critical of Morrissey's failure to establish standing committees on membership, finances, publicity and other matters to add life to the organization.

Republicans — Some Schaumburg Republicans think Totten should resign as committeeman to devote full-time to his duties in the state legislature, believing that the organization suffers when Totten is involved in legislative duties. Vincent Carsello (son of Democrat John Car-sello), an organizer of the Schaumburg United Party, considered contesting Totten, but has decided against it.

PALATINE

Democrats — Former committeeman Peter J. Gerling is expected to attempt to take back the post he lost in 1970 to Richard A. Mugallan, since elected to the Illinois legislature.

Mugallan maintains that changes instituted by him allow the organization to function effectively under a board of directors. Gerling, however, is a frank believer in old-style patronage and rule from the top. "You can't even run a factory without a boss."

Republicans — Palatine Village Trustee Fred Zajonc will challenge Committeeman Bernard E. Pedersen, township assessor, in what Pedersen calls an attempt by the Village Independent Party to "take over" the Republican party.

A supporter of Zajonc and one of his co-founders of VIP, Clayton Brown, calls Zajonc's bid an attempt "to open the party and put an end to the old practice of power politics."

Pedersen points to "a young, active and aggressive local club" which has sought out young Republicans and new residents since he became committeeman in 1969. He also noted Republican successes in national, state and country elections in the township.

Free Hearing Tests Set For Senior Citizens

Electronic hearing tests will be given at Beltone Hearing Aid Service offices on Monday and Tuesday.

Factory-trained hearing aid specialists will be at all of the offices listed below to perform the tests.

Anyone who has trouble hearing or understanding is welcome to have a test using the latest electronic equipment to determine his or her particular loss. Diagrams showing how the ear works and some of the causes of hearing loss will be available.

Everyone should have a hearing test at least once a year if there is any trouble at all hearing clearly. Even people now wearing a hearing aid or those who have been told nothing could be done for them should have a hearing test and find out about the latest methods of hearing correction.

The hearing test will be given Monday and Tuesday. If you can't get there on Monday or Tuesday, call one of the numbers below and arrange for an appointment at another time. Shut-in service is available in your home. Just phone the Beltone Hearing Aid Service nearest to you.

The state

Walker signs death penalty bill

Gov. Daniel Walker has certified into law a bill reimposing the death penalty in Illinois for certain crimes. A provision in the bill, however, prohibits the state from putting anyone to death until the courts make final ruling on its constitutionality.

Weinglass testifies at 'Chicago 7'

Chicago Seven defense Attorney Leonard Weinglass said yesterday U.S. District Court Judge Julius Hoffman charged him with contempt at the 1969-70 riot conspiracy trial after prosecutor Thomas Foran cut him off in the middle of an argument. The defense in the contempt trial is attempting to show Hoffman's actions prompted an atmosphere which brought actions for which the defendants were cited.

Senate transit plan at passage stage

Senate Republicans confidently moved their mass transit plan to passage stage Thursday while the House continued to debate the issue. Senate President William Harris indicated the Senate would vote next week on the plan to create a six-county transit system in the Chicago area. The Senate also set up a committee to probe Illinois' usury laws to determine the limit on interest rates, and approved a bill requiring the governor present his budget proposals by the first week in April.

Call for fifth legislative session

State legislative leaders have called a fifth special session besides the regular veto session. This special session is aimed at letting elderly persons miss the Nov. 15 deadline to apply for the "circuit-breaker" real estate tax relief, and still make use of the plan.

Student shot to death in school

Wendell Phillips High School student Mack Jones, was shot to death Thursday by another student in the school's crowded first floor lobby. A 16-year-old was arrested and police recovered a .38-cal. pistol believed used in the shooting. The shooting apparently stemmed from a schoolboy argument.

Farm family safe, fugitives give up

Elmer Wegscheid, his wife Joyce, and son Ed dashed from their Wadena, Minn. farm home to safety yesterday after catching the exhausted fugitive captors sleeping. Two hours after the dash to freedom, FBI agents cordoned off the home, picked up a bulhorn and told the men to walk out. The two fugitives gave up without a shot being fired.

Gunman killed in Atlanta bank drama

A cornered bandit grabbed four women hostages, holed up in the back room of an Atlanta bank and collected $200,000 in cash late Thursday. Three hours later he attempted his getaway and walked into a blazing gunbattle. The gunman's body lay in the alley and at least one officer was shot. The hostages apparently were unhurt.

Bill to hike school lunch aid signed

President Nixon has signed into law a bill authorizing about $20 million in additional subsidies to help hold down the cost of school lunches. It was disclosed Thursday. The cash contributions to regular school lunches will rise from the present 8 cents per meal to 10 cents.

Police storm prison, free hostages

About 40 Maryland state policemen, using shotguns, tear gas and an armored vehicle, stormed the education building of the Patuxent Institute Thursday, freeing 14 hostages who were held two hours by nine inmates.

Nab suspects in slaying of 9 persons

Two suspects were captured yesterday in the execution slayings of nine persons in a California country ranch house. Douglas Gretzler was arrested in a downtown Sacramento hotel, and Willie Steelman was nabbed a short time later in an area apartment. The arrests came as a court convicted Edmund Kemper of killing eight persons, one of the state's six mass slayings in the past four years.

Mideast peace pact reached

KING FAISAL

From Herald news services

In what is being called another great triumph for the personal diplomacy of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, the United States announced Thursday that Israel and Egypt have agreed on a five-point pact to avert a resumption of war in the Middle East.

Formal announcement of the agreement is to be made today simultaneously in Washington, Cairo and Tel Aviv, after notification of United Nations Secretary General Kurt Waldheim.

Word of the agreement came while Kissinger was in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, on the fifth and last stop of his whirlwind Middle East peace tour.

His mission there was a double one: to carry word to King Faisal on the peace plan he has been pressing; and to work on Faisal — the key man in the Arab oil boycott — to reconsider the restriction of oil flow that threatens a long, cold winter in the United States and particularly Japan and Europe. U.S. officials cautioned it was too soon to expect a breakthrough on the oil situation, even with the new peace plan.

The settlement apparently involved concessions by both Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli premier Golda Meir, with a major breakthrough coming in Kissinger's talks with Sadat Wednesday. Word of Israeli acceptance came while Kissinger was meeting with Faisal.

The settlement of the immediate military situation includes:

—Lifting of the blockade of the Egyptian Third Army and Suez City to bring in supplies to beleaguered troops.

—Prompt exchange of prisoners of war.

—Lifting of the blockade of Eilat, Israel's gateway to Red Sea.

—Egyptian and Israeli commanders to discuss straightening out cease-fire lines.

—Future negotiations between Arabs and Israelis for a final settlement.

The agreement could become effective within a few days. It was stressed that it covered only the Israeli-Egypt situation, and not the halted hostilities in Syria.

Kissinger will leave Saudi Arabia today for visits to two more countries — Iran and Pakistan — before heading to his much-heralded visit to Communist China tomorrow.

HENRY KISSINGER

New war on in Indochina?

SAIGON (UPI) — Saigon and the Viet Cong agreed Thursday that battlefield escalations in the past five days signaled the beginning of the third Indochina war.

"The third war has indeed started in South Vietnam," said government spokesman Bui Bao Truc. "From small attacks to which nobody paid attention, the Communists will launch bigger and bigger operations."

A Viet Cong representative in Paris agreed the war which began in 1946 had entered its third stage of all out fighting, but blamed the shattered peace on the United States and South Vietnam.

Only the actual day of the start of the third Vietnam war was argued.

South Vietnam said Communist assaults on two government bases marked the outbreak of full hostilities.

The Communists said South Vietnamese air force strikes on the Viet Cong "capital" city of Loc Ninh was the new war's official beginning.

The Viet Cong office in Saigon said the 50-plane raid on Loc Ninh killed 32 persons and wounded 70.

South Vietnam denied it killed any civilians at Loc Ninh, but in protest the Viet Cong said they would boycott peace talks in Saigon and Paris for the next five days.

The third Indochina war — if indeed it develops into that — apparently will be among Vietnamese only.

Nixon energy plan goes to Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With two experts cautioning that Americans must drastically reduce gasoline use to avert rationing, President Nixon formally asked Congress Thursday to quickly enact emergency legislation empowering him to ration gas and heating oil.

The President's proposals for meeting the energy crisis drew generally favorable response in Congress, although some members questioned why they had been delayed so long.

Following up his broadcast speech to the nation Wednesday night, Nixon sent a special message to the House and Senate outlining his proposals, including that for possible rationing. "It is my hope that rationing of energy products will never be required," he said, "but if circumstances dictate there should be no impediment to swift action."

The President's formal request came as Federal Power Commission Chairman John N. Nassikas and Sen. Henry M. Jackson agreed at a hurriedly called hearing of Jackson's Senate Interior Committee that there is no way to avoid gasoline rationing unless Americans drastically reduce consumption.

The committee already has before it legislation which follows in many respects President Nixon's recommendations for meeting the energy crisis.

Jackson said he hopes to get the bill in form for a committee vote today. It would grant sweeping new authority for the President to force the bureaucracy to conserve fuel, to allocate or ration fuel, require power plants to use coal instead of oil, and to relax clean-air standards for the time being so that relatively high-pollutant fuels can be used.

At the committee hearing, in response to a question from Jackson, Nassikas said: "In the absence of a dramatic voluntary response by the American public, if the Middle East cutoff of crude oil to the U.S. continues, there will be a form of rationing of heating oil and gasoline."

Meanwhile, the President has turned down the heat and some of the lights in the White House but does not plan any curtailment of his travel because of the energy shortages.

Workmen installed stops on some thermostats Thursday in the White House preventing them from being pushed beyond 68 degrees. A spot check of others showed all to be at the regulation 68-degree setting with actual temperatures two or three degrees below this. Aides and secretaries wore sweaters.

Outdoor lighting of the White House was ordered dimmed.

Deny Nixon fund shakedown

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chairman of the Hispanic Finance Committee to Re-Elect the President Thursday heatedly denied promising to have the Federal Housing Administration drop action against a Miami builder in exchange for a $100,000 contribution.

"I am appalled, shocked and disgusted with the tenor of his testimony," Benjamin Fernandez told the Senate Watergate committee in response to sworn testimony Wednesday from John J. Priestess, who had said the gift was the price for getting FHA to drop a suspension against him.

Fernandez said the allegations against him were "totally false."

Priestess, who in three years rose to become one of Miami's biggest home builders, is to start a one-year prison sentence next week on two charges of receiving kickbacks from subcontractors and filing a false tax return.

In other Watergate-related developments Thursday:

• Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski told the House Judiciary committee he had been promised authority to sue President Nixon to obtain White House documents and he saw no need for his office to be established by law.

• Presidential confidante Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo has filed a $10 million suit against the Washington Post, charging the newspaper libeled him Oct. 25 when it ran a front page article alleging he cashed $91,500 in stolen stocks in 1968 after being told they were stolen.

• The AFL-CIO, launching a nationwide campaign, has asked its 13.5 million members to urge their congressmen to impeach President Nixon immediately. "Until Richard Nixon is removed from office, we will not be able to get Watergate behind us," the AFL-CIO statement said.

Haldeman opens another Watergate tapes mystery

WASHINGTON (UPI) — H. R. Haldeman, testifying Thursday about President Nixon's Watergate tapes, said he could not account for records that show 22 of them were taken from a vault for his review last spring and not returned for nearly a week.

The former White House chief of staff, once Nixon's closest adviser, said he had listened to only one of the 22 tapes and had no idea why he had the others or how long he had them.

Haldeman was called by Watergate prosecutors to testify at a hearing before Chief U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica on the Nixon tapes after earlier testimony and Secret Service logs indicated 22 of the recordings were checked out of a White House vault for Haldeman to review April 26 and not returned until May 2.

Earlier Thursday, Nixon's personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, testified she had been assigned to transcribe the tapes subpoenaed from Nixon in late September and found it a tough job because the "quality is very bad." She said conversations are sometimes blurred by rattling dishes, distant band music and the sound of the President's feet plopping on his desk.

Haldeman, however, said the quality of the March 21 tape he heard was "quite adequate," though marred by "ups and downs" in voice levels and room noises.

People

• A national poll of Democratic party leaders shows no real surprises in who they'd support for the 1976 presidential nomination. Running almost even were senators Edward Kennedy, Hubert Humphrey and Henry Jackson. But, according to poll conductor Martin Hagan, former public affairs director for the Democratic National Committee, that does leave room for a dark horse. And the best shot for that now: Minnesota's Sen. Walter Mondale.

• President Nixon won quick support — sort of — from a fellow president after his declaration to the nation Wednesday night that he wouldn't quit. Uganda's Idi Amin wired congratulations, saying a lesser man would have resigned or committed suicide in the face of such turmoil.

• Mississippi's Pascagoula River has spawned another strange object, this time not a UFO but a USIO — an unidentified submerged illuminating object, according to the Coast Guard. The Coast Guard confirmed what 42-year old Raymond Ryan said he saw: an amber light attached to a bright, metal object that moved slowly under the surface of the river. It was observed for more than an hour.

• For Wendy Berlewitz, the ex-teacher from Norman, Okla., on a nationwide tour taking off her top, her latest episode definitely was a bust. Fresh from her triumph of removing her blouse in the Blue Room of the White House, Mrs. Berlewitz prepared to do her thing in front of the New York Public Library — but this time was arrested before exposing anything. A Bronx cab driver, noting the mob and ruckus surrounding Wendy, summed it up: "What's the big deal? You seen one chest, you seen 'em all."

Aerosol products called 'dangerous'; ban urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A private research group said Thursday that aerosol products were dangerous to safety and health. It urged the government to clamp tight controls on them and consumers not to buy them for home use.

The Center for Science in the Public Interest said its year-long study of aerosol sprays show they are dangerous because they can be misused or otherwise handled improperly and cause a new kind of air pollution in the home itself.

"We strongly recommend that aerosol spray products not be used in the home. Furthermore, we recommend that a public education program on the dangers of aerosol sprays used in the home should be launched by the Consumer Product Safety Commission," the research center said in a petition to the commission.

The commission said it would give the petition "very serious consideration," as it would any other petition. It said that its continuing study of the aerosol question has so far produced no conclusions.

The center specifically said the commission should study the amount of toxic substances used in aerosols, the safety of the containers, the usefulness and accuracy of the labels, the chance for misuse and the honesty and promotion of the products.

Rockland won't oppose Sen. Glass

Democratic township committeemen from the 1st Legislative District this week interviewed a Glencoe businessman as a possible candidate for the Illinois Senate to oppose Sen. Bradley M. Glass, Northbrook Republican.

Gene H. Rockland, 51, owner of National Threaded Fasteners Corp. of Elk Grove Village, appeared before the committeemen Tuesday night. He said yesterday, however, that he has not decided to seek election.

Rockland is a member of the New Trier Township Democratic Organization, of which he has been a member since 1956. A graduate of DePaul Law School, he is a veteran of World War II.

The 1st Legislative District includes the portion of Wheeling Township north of Palatine Road, and extends east to Evanston.

Mikva expected to announce

ABNER J. MIKVA, former congressman from Chicago's South Side, is expected to formally announce his candidacy for election in the 10th Congressional District Monday. Mikva has scheduled a press conference Monday morning in Evanston.

Mikva ran unsuccessfully in the 10th District in 1972 against U.S. Rep. Samuel H. Young after his former district was divided in reapportionment. After defeating Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase in the Democratic primary, Mikva was defeated by Young by approximately 6,000 votes.

Mugalian on mental health unit

STATE REP. RICHARD A. MUGALIAN, D-Palatine, has been appointed to the Mental Health Fund Advisory Committee. Function of the committee is to review disbursements from the fund and to advise the Illinois Department of Mental Health on use of the fund, which totaled approximately $16 million this year.

Mugalian said he requested appointment to the committee because he has decided to specialize in the field of mental health legislation.

Regner wants deadline on bills

SEN. DAVID J. REGNER, R-Mount Prospect, has introduced legislation that would require the governor to introduce all appropriations bills to the Illinois General Assembly by the first Friday in April.

Regner said the past practice of introducing appropriations pertinent to the governor's budget message in the closing weeks of the legislative session, when legislators are burdened by a "staggering" workload, does not allow sufficient time for judicious review of the measures.

Regner's bill also would require that appropriations proposals for various programs be introduced in such a way as to show the total cost of the program.

"Currently in many instances," Regner said, "there are appropriations for a particular program in various departmental budgets that have something to do with the program. This makes it virtually impossible to ascertain the actual dollar cost of a program and for members of the General Assembly to evaluate whether the program is worth the total cost."

Duff a judicial advisor

REP. BRIAN B. DUFF, R-Willmette, has been named to the Illinois Judicial Advisory Council. Duff is chairman of the House Judiciary Committee.

The council is authorized to investigate and recommend improvements to the courts and the entire judicial system.

Duff is the sponsor of a proposed constitutional amendment for the merit selection of judges, and has sponsored legislation for a statewide probation system, grand jury reform, free legal counsel for indigents, and other court-related measures.

Flynn to announce today

THOMAS W. FLYNN of Niles, a 1972 candidate for the State Senate in the 4th Legislative District, will formally announce his candidacy for the House of Representatives at a press conference today in Niles. Flynn, a Democrat, opposed Republican Sen. John J. Nimrod of Skokie last year.

Betty Spence

Woman seeks Dem nod to oppose Crane

Betty Spence, 901 Westbourne Ln., Buffalo Grove, is seeking nomination as the Democratic candidate to oppose U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, in the 1974 election.

Mrs. Spence was elected in the 12th District as a delegate to the 1972 Democratic National Convention. Before moving to Buffalo Grove, she was a member of the Ware County, Georgia, board of supervisors, the only woman in Georgia elected to a county board in 1968. She ran earlier this year for village trustee in Buffalo Grove.

In 1970, Mrs. Spence was appointed to the Buffalo Grove Plan Commission. She also served on the Waycross-Ware County Plan Commission in Georgia.

She is Democratic chairman of Vernon Township in Lake County, and president of the 12th Congressional District Women's Club.

MRS. SPENCE this week asked the endorsement of three Cook County township committeemen, William B. Rose of Elk Grove Township, Donald L. Norman, Wheeling Township, and John Morrissey, Schaumburg Township. She is expected to appear soon at a meeting of township committeemen throughout the district, which includes six Cook County townships and five in Lake County.

She indicated in her presentation to the three committeemen that inflation and what she termed condonement by Crane in opposition of the Nixon administration to full revelations in the Watergate scandal.

Mrs. Spence and her husband, John, an international representative for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, have three children. They have lived in Buffalo Grove for 4½ years.

Park district wrapup

Neptune's Den
open house Sunday

The Wheeling Park District will host an open house Sunday to celebrate the opening of Neptune's Den, a new recreation center located on the second floor of the indoor pool, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd.

Residents are invited to get acquainted with the new facilities, which include a pool table, ping pong table, air hockey, television, stereo and lounge furniture. The indoor pool will also be open free-of-charge to all attending.

The open house will run from 1 to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 10 p.m. In addition to the opening of the center, the park district is also celebrating the third anniversary of the opening of the pool.

Turkey Trot Saturday

The eighth annual Turkey Trot, a cross-country race sponsored by the park district, will begin at 11 a.m. Saturday at Heritage Park, 222 S. Wheeling Rd.

Separate races will be run for various age groups with trophies and ribbons being awarded to the winners. Boys 16 years and older will run a two-mile race, girls 14 and older will run one mile, and boys 14 and 15 will run 1 1/4 miles.

Boys and girls seven-years-old and younger will run 440 yards, while the race for youngsters eight-and-nine-years-old will be 660 yards. An 880 yard race is scheduled for the 10-and-11-year-olds, while 12-and-13-year-olds will run one mile.

Film showing at Den

The film "Journey to the Center of Time" will be shown by the park district at noon Saturday at Neptune's Den, above the indoor pool at 900 S. Elmhurst Rd.

The 85-minute movie is about a group of people that travels through time. Admission is free and movie-goers will get a discount for an afternoon swim in the pool. Refreshments will be sold by the park district.

The play will be shown tonight and tomorrow night at 8 in Sacred Heart's School Theater, 2800 Central Rd., Rolling Meadows.

For Prospect Heights

Incorporation papers may be filed

by TOM VON MALDER

Incorporation petitions for Prospect Heights may be filed in court as early as next week, according to the Prospect Heights Improvement Association, the group spearheading efforts to form the new municipality.

PHIA board member Richard Wolf said petitions are being circulated now to support the incorporation request. Two hundred signatures of registered voters from the unincorporated area are needed. There are approximately 3,300 registered voters in the less than 4-square-mile area being considered for incorporation.

If the incorporation application cannot be readied by next week, Wolf said all efforts will be made to submit it to the courts by the end of the month. PHIA Pres. Jack Gilligan explained the situation is such that his group and the people of Prospect Heights cannot afford to wait. The three surrounding communities, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Wheeling, he said, are continually annexing pieces of unincorporated Prospect Heights.

"I'M SURE WE will be ready by the end of the month," Gilligan said. "We want to let it (the filing date) be a surprise. I think the board really hasn't made up its mind."

He added that many people are watching the PHIA board just to see if they slip up and one such slip, he said, would be to announce a filing date and then not be able to actually file then.

While the petitions are being signed, the PHIA's boundary committee continue to prepare the required legal descriptions of properties to be included within the new city. Both Gilligan and Wolf agreed that changes in the proposed boundaries could be made at almost any time — even after the application is before the court, according to Gilligan.

ON MONDAY THE PHIA board in an executive session reaffirmed previously announced boundaries, which include parts of Pal-Waukee Airport, Rob Roy Golf Course and Waterman Avenue — all sore points with the neighboring communities. The board also decided not to include commercial properties not already in the plan, but suggested, because no definite proposals had been submitted by the firms involved.

These commercial properties are in two main areas — along Rand Road to the northwest and a northeast area which contains Culligan Water Softener Co., Allstate Insurance Co., Illinois Bell Telephone Co. and A. C. Neilson Co. Some sales tax revenue could be obtained from the firms, especially Culligan, if they were included.

Gilligan said if any of the four mentioned firms were to say it wants to become a part of Prospect Heights, the incorporation plan would be amended to include the firm. "We owe them some type of discussion," Wolf said. He said he plans to have at least informational talks still with three of the four firms.

CULLIGAN OFFICIALS have already indicated to the PHIA that the firm would rather become part of Northbrook at some future date.

As for expansion along Rand Road, Wolf said he is "looking into possibilities." Again nothing definite has been proposed.

According to Gilligan, some studies of the Rand Road possibilities have been made but "they are not conclusive."

Town Square 'retention basin' criticized

At least one Wheeling resident is dissatisfied with the village's explanation of a "retention basin" constructed by developers of the Town Square Apartments on Wolf Road just south of Dundee Road.

Ether Davis, 15 E. Jeffery Ave., maintains that plans for the retention basin built into the side of the Wheeling Drainage Ditch should have been reviewed by the village consulting engineer and village commissions before it was installed.

The basin consists of a large square hole dug into the creek banks, with no separation between the basin and the creek. Thus the water is free to flow in and out of the basin.

Mrs. Davis and a group of several residents previously said the basin "grossly changed the contour of the drainage ditch," and thus may result in erosion, flooding and displacement of silt. In a letter to the village board, Mrs. Davis asked that such matters receive the proper review by various boards and commissions before they are approved.

In answer to Mrs. Davis' letter, Village Mgr. George Passolt explained that the village spent many months reviewing the project. After citing various meeting dates with the developers, Passolt said, "This would be a pretty good indication we are fostering our own flood control program."

PASSOLT SAID the basin is not designed to retain water. He said the cut-out area is merely supposed to compensate for filling done at the site.

Passolt said he talked with Herb Poertner, the village's consulting engineer on flooding. "He thought it was a great idea the way we did it," Passolt said. He said, however, that the engineer only liked the idea because retention was being provided on the roof and in the parking lot.

Poertner was unavailable for comment. While Mrs. Davis has asked that such major alterations in the creek be reviewed by Poertner on a regular basis, Passolt contends that such review is not necessary. "There is an expense when you consult M. Poertner," he said, noting that the village has its own engineer for this purpose. "On a small plot, really that doesn't make much sense to spend a lot of taxpayers' money."

MRS. DAVIS SAID, however, she is more concerned about establishing a review procedure for such projects that would include the plan commission, environmental commission and beautification committee. She said the Town Square basin is just an example of the way such matters have been handled by the village.

William Rogers, member of the environmental commission who was present for the discussion, said such matters

Wheeling violinist
in Chicago concert

Wheeling High School violinist Jane Allen will be among 100 students from the Chicago area participating in the annual Thanksgiving weekend of the Youth Symphony of Greater Chicago.

The concert is scheduled for 8:15 p.m. Friday, Nov. 23 in orchestra hall, Chicago.

Youth Symphony members, chosen from 50 high schools in the area, are selected by professional musicians on the basis of competitive auditions.

Miss Allen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Sedan, 350 Marvin Pl., Wheeling.

Village vehicle sticker forms soon to be mailed

Wheeling residents will soon be receiving application forms in the mail for village vehicle stickers.

Employees in the village clerk's office are preparing to mail almost 5,300 application forms. By using the form, residents can obtain the required vehicle stickers by mail rather than having to go to the village hall.

Persons wishing to have special vehicle sticker numbers must return the application forms no later than Nov. 30 stickers will go on sale over the counter on Dec. 1, and must be displayed by Jan. 2, 1974.

This year, vehicle stickers for automobiles will cost $10, and stickers for motor bikes will cost $6. The village recently approved an increase in the sticker fees to provide more revenue for the road and bridge fund.

Persons who do not display vehicle stickers by the due date will be ticketed by the police. In addition, persons who do not buy their stickers before Jan. 2, 1974 will be charged a $5 late fee.

Vehicle stickers for recreational vehicles and trucks are not due until July 1, 1974.

Dist. 23

Schools ask for health
class grant

Prospect Heights School Dist. 23 will apply for a $1,500 state grant to develop a comprehensive health curriculum.

The grant is available through the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction. It will be used to pay teachers who are working on a health curriculum to be adopted by the district next fall.

Presently, health is taught along with physical education, science and other courses in Dist. 23. A new state law requires that health be taught as an independent subject.

Milk prices drop

The price of a half-pint of milk sold in School Dist. 23 has been reduced from 7 cents to 3 cents.

The reduction was made possible because of a recent revision in federal subsidies to public elementary schools.

Teacher resigns

The Dist. 23 school board Wednesday accepted the resignation of Marley Freedman, a teacher at Betsy Ross School.

Her resignation is effective as of November 21.

Thermostats and lights, yes, but...

Merchants not ready to curb hours

On the brink of the Christmas Shopping Super Bowl, merchants are reacting with caution to President Nixon's suggestion shopping centers curtail business hours to conserve energy.

Nobody is rushing to make the first move to comply, and it appears that no salesman is going to cut into his selling time without assurance his fellows will take the same handicap.

Other energy-saving measures are being practiced or considered, however. Shoppers who prefer enclosed malls where they can stash coats in lockers during spending sprees may instead wear those coats as the heat goes down. Stores that have advertised their wares even when they were closed for the night may be turning off their signs in all except business hours. Interior lights may be snuffed where window light will suffice, and indoor night lights likely will be kept to the minimum to maintain security.

AT RANDHURST Shopping Center in Mount Prospect, temperatures dropped about a month ago from the old thermostat setting of 72 degrees to a slightly cooler 68 to 70. The President advised 68 to 69 degrees as a "healthier" setting.

Rather than dimming lights, Randhurst is replacing incandescent and neon bulbs with fluorescent lighting inside and mercury vapor systems outdoors. Paul Dasso, divisional vice president of Randhurst Corp., said the new lighting systems will provide better light at less energy consumption.

But Dasso pointed out potential ill effects if shopping hours are curtailed. Shoppers who stay home will use energy there too, he said, pointing to the high consumption from many home light fixtures and television sets in use at the same time. Also, said Dasso, curtailed business hours could be detrimental to the entire economy, because some employees would be put out of work.

Randhurst officials have no present plan to shorten business hours, but are "studying the situation," Dasso said.

THE ILLINOIS Retail Merchants Association also is looking into the holiday shopping hour question, and may suggest certain stores, those with little business at 9 a.m., wait an extra hour before opening each morning. Other stores with similar low business hours may be able to eliminate those hours, said Hugh E. Muncy, president.

Muncy said the association will ask its 18,000 members to "take a closer look" at holiday hours, and suggested there is "every reason to assume retailers will cooperate totally" with President Nixon's guidelines.

Muncy also suggested a number of measures to be passed along to the membership. They include reduction of speeds of company vehicles to 50 mph, lowering of thermostat settings, encouraging employee car pools, encouraging shoppers to carry packages instead of having them delivered and curtailing unnecessary light use.

The association has no objection to switching back to Daylight Savings Time, said Muncy.

Smaller merchant organizations also are looking into energy saving possibilities. The subject likely will be discussed at the next board meeting of the

Hoffman Estates Chamber of Commerce But Chamber Pres. Charles Brazelton pointed out smaller stores and centers have been trying to stimulate more business instead of less. He doubted any merchants would curtail hours unless all agree to do so.

Brazelton also noted, with the energy supply at a crisis shortage, sales of energy-consuming appliances have not dropped, and may even have increased while sales in general are down.

Schools take a 'wait-and-see' stance

Local schools are taking a cautious approach to the idea of turning down the heat during the school day to conserve fuel, but many already have started other fuel-conservation measures.

Only Oakton Community College in Morton Grove had immediate plans to turn the heat in the classrooms down to the 68 degrees recommended by President Nixon. In addition, according to an Oakton official, every other light in hallways will be turned out.

Other school officials said they will take a "wait-and-see" posture on the question of whether to turn down heat in classrooms during the day. However, many said they started thinking about conserving energy in other ways several weeks ago.

ELK GROVE Township Dist. 58, which last month made preliminary plans for energy cutbacks, said yesterday it plans a workshop today for custodians on power conservation and next week will hold programs for students on ways they can help in the crisis.

Tom Cosgrove, director of physical plant for High School Dist. 214, seemed to sum up the feelings of many school officials yesterday when he said, "If I turn all these buildings down to 68 degrees this afternoon, I could have 10,000 mothers upset at me tomorrow. This seems to me to be a decision for the administration, the board and the parents. I didn't feel it was my place to take immediate action."

However, Cosgrove said Dist. 214 also has already taken some steps to conserve energy by turning temperatures in the schools down 10 degrees at night. In addition, he said administrators have turned off excess lights in offices and "we assume the custodians should be turning the lights off at night."

Other districts report taking similar actions. In Mount Prospect Dist. 57, Assistant Supt. J. C. Busenhardt said school principals have been encouraged to find ways to conserve power. Teachers are being asked to turn lights out in classrooms if they will be gone more than 15 minutes, he said, and plans are being made to turn thermostats down during the day, but the amount of reduction has not been determined.

IN HIGH SCHOOL Dist. 211, a computer system installed as an experiment last summer at Schaumburg High School is resulting in savings on heating and electricity, according to Business Mgr. James Slater.

The system, Slater said, has so far cut back on the use of natural gas by 33.5 per cent and on electricity by 23.5 per cent compared to last year. Slater said the staffs in other schools are being asked to turn off lights in the other schools and to take other conservation methods.

The other problem facing school districts in the energy shortage involves gasoline for school buses and for service vehicles. So far, bus companies have reported that fuel is available for buses, but a spokesman for Ritzenthaler Bus Lines in Arlington Heights said, "We just don't know what's going to happen."

Cosgrove said that so far gasoline has been available for High School Dist. 214 drivers' education cars in areas where the school district has been buying from village-operated tanks. However, he said at Prospect High School, where driver education cars have been filled from the tank the school district uses for maintenance vehicles the school district is running short.

"We can no longer fill the Prospect cars from our tanks because we have to keep our emergency vehicles ready to go," Cosgrove said. "I suppose we should have been buying from the Village of Mount Prospect all along, but I guess we can't look back now."

Square Dance News

Do you ever wish the "Good Old Days" were here again? They will be tonight for all who square dance with the Arlington Squares at St. Simon Church, 717 W. Kirchoff Rd., Arlington Heights. Peggy Thompson will call from 8:30 p.m. to 11 p.m. and the Hoffmeyer will teach the round-of-the-month at 8 p.m.

Come see the "pot of gold" and earn the "cracked pot" badge... Then stay for sandwiches and dessert at 11 p.m.

The Happy Twirlers will be dancing tonight at the Congregational Church, Grace and Marion streets in Des Plaines, with the Charles Weller doing the calling. A "new figure" workshop from 8 to 8:30 p.m. precedes the intermediate (plus) dance from 8:30 to 10:30 p.m.

Happy Twirlers sponsor a beginners class at the Trinity Lutheran Church, 471 W. Algonquin Rd. in Des Plaines, every Tuesday night from 8 to 10 p.m. The "experimental figure" workshop on the second and fourth Sundays from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the same church, continues to grow. All qualified dancers are welcome. A new beginner round dance class will be starting soon, and for more information call 524-1464.

RAND RAMBLERS
Rex Stearns from Sheridan, Ill., will be calling the squares tomorrow night for the Rand Ramblers at the Boy Scouts of America Building, 1622 St. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights, beginning at 8:30 p.m.

Rounds begin at 8 p.m. with Harv and Marg Teliaff, and dancing will continue until 11 p.m. All area dancers are invited.

Tomorrow night the Ducks and Docs Square Dance Club welcomes all area square dancers to their dance with Paul "Foxy" Thompson squaring up at 8 p.m. Lee Simpson and Shirley Kenzie will cue rounds throughout the evening at the Dempster Junior High School, Dempster Street (just west of Ill. Rte. 63) in Mount Prospect.

The theme of the dance is "Gay 90s Gala," and fellows are asked to wear their mustaches (real or otherwise), fancy garters and vests, or anything else they may have to get in to the swing. Gals can hustle their bustles and maybe win a prize with their guy. However, costumes are really not necessary for admittance, but they sure add to the fun. The cost for the evening's entertainment of refreshments and dancing until 11 p.m. is $2.50 per couple.

Herald editorial

When can Nixon be believed?

Several months ago, it was popular cocktail-party chatter to assert that the Nixon tapes somehow would never be released, even if the U.S. Supreme Court ordered their release.

That theory, most agreed, was daring but ludicrous. Everyone knew that, in the end, President Richard Nixon would comply fully with the court's decision.

Then, a cataclysmic panorama of Washington events ended with the sudden announcement that Richard Nixon indeed was not above the law. It seemed there might be, at last, a light at the end of the Watergate tunnel.

Now, we find that the cynics of July are the realists of November. Two of the tapes — two of the most important tapes, so far as evidence is concerned — are not to be found, and, according to the President's lawyers, do not exist.

The point is not whether the truth is being told about the tapes. It is conceivable that the events as Nixon's men described them — a discussion on a non-bugged phone, and a tape recorder which simply ran out of tape — did, in fact, happen.

But today, who is to believe the President? What ounce of credibility remains for President Nixon on Watergate? Why do we continue to receive evasion after evasion when the truth, to set the record straight on Watergate, would be so simple, (but perhaps so damning)?

The public simply doesn't believe Richard Nixon; his credibility at the polls has plunged to record lows, and in the Northwest suburbs, even professional GOP politicians are avoiding any association with Nixon on Watergate.

Former friends of Nixon in the news media don't believe him any more, either. Time Magazine and columnist Joseph Alsop, formerly two of Nixon's backers, have now urged him to resign.

The Herald would like to believe our President on Watergate because he is indeed the top elected official in this country. But until he can bridge his credibility gap and talk freely about all of this mess, we can't believe a word he says — and that disbelief tends to extend to his entire record as President.

Nixon, however, isn't the only one with severe credibility problem. The Democratic majority on the House Rules Committee which insists impeachment must be discussed in political terms is turning a sober, critical issue into a partisan sideshow.

If we are to discuss impeachment, it must be done in narrow terms, not in terms of Nixon's overall record in office. This last thing that should come out of impeachment proceeding is a liberal side-show designed to nail Nixon because he's a Republican and just because his conservative actions run against the grain of a handful of Democratic liberals.

The country is the loser in such partisan action — and, in a tragic kind of way, the entire political process has been tarred by this increasingly disastrous period in American history.

There are many, many capable and honest politicians and elected officials, Republicans and Democrats, in the Northwest suburbs, in Springfield and in Washington. They have been blackened by Watergate, simply because they are part of politics in America in 1973.

The majority of officials have nothing to do with the band of hoodlums that operated out of the White House in 1972. It is an important fact to remember when the next set of elections come up next year — or whenever we evaluate our leaders.

Washington window

'Trivial incident' hurts President

WASHINGTON — White House aides insist that President Nixon has no intention of resigning.

And close observers of the man, although not privy to his private thoughts, are inclined to agree.

Nixon was said by his aides to be confident that as the story of the non-existent Watergate tapes unfolds in Judge John J. Sirica's court, the truth of the White House assertions that two of the controversial conversations were never recorded will be proven. Then the passion and turmoil will subside, they say, and the President will be able to slowly rebuild confidence in his leadership.

The President's lawyers have explained that on one occasion — the April 15, 1973, conversation with John W. Dean III — the voice-actuated recording device had run out of tape. It was a Sunday when the President had done a lot more talking than usual for a weekend. And nobody was around to switch to an alternative system.

On the other occasion — the June 20, 1972, conversation with John N. Mitchell — the call was made from a telephone in the residence of the White House that was not connected with the recording system.

John W. Dean

The explanations seem reasonable. What is harder to believe is the act that they were never recorded was not discovered until Oct. 27.

The explanation of this by Nixon aides is more complex. They say as early as Sept. 29, the President asked for all the recordings sought by Judge Sirica and realized then the two conversations were probably not on the tapes.

But until a thorough search be made of the voluminous tape library four weeks later, it could not be "finally determined" they were unrecorded.

It sounds incredulous that recordings characterized by Nixon as being vital to the confidentiality of the Presidency — conversations which his former aides cited in questioning Nixon's honesty — were never reviewed by him.

But associates say the President was confident of his recollection of the conversations and saw no need to review these particular tapes.

Further, they point out that Nixon has all along fought court efforts to obtain the tapes as a matter of principle and not because he feared public disclosure of their contents. Indeed, they say the contents would substantiate the President's version of the conversations and refute the contention put forth by Dean that Nixon was aware last April 15 of the Watergate cover-up attempts.

They say the President was confident that the courts would uphold his belief that he was not required to turn over any of the recordings because the principle of Presidential confidentiality gave him the right to keep private such communications with his aides.

It was only after the President — faced with two court rulings against him — decided to compromise on this issue by preparing a "summary" of the recordings that the search showed them to be missing.

County line

CAP going after Dunne

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT
Metropolitan Affairs Editor

The soft-shoe east shuffle. The light-finger ballot box stuff. The you-scratch-my-back zoning vote.

Chicago has pioneered gimmickry that was nationally accepted in the politician's interest — even before Watergate.

Add another page now to the brown-paper covered book on political survival, but give credit to the Citizens Action Program, not Mayor Richard Daley's Democrats.

Disruption of meetings is the chapter. The Cook County board, an unusually boring assembly that meets down the hall from Daley's office, is the example.

"We want to talk right now," CAP spokesman told the board Monday. No waiting for the meeting's end when guests normally interrogate board members. Now it was 10 a.m. and about 150 chanting CAP followers were anxious to wave banners, placards and handbills at board members and television cameras.

Enter CAP's portable loudspeaker. To one-up Chicago's city council, where maverick Ald. William Singer often loses his microphone power during criticism of Daley's rule. CAP blared louder and louder over a hand-held speaker.

"The chair rules you out of order," Comm. Jerome Huppert repeatedly shouted. Commissioners Charles Bonk and John Stroger protested the invasion of board slumbers.

Monday's confrontation — and that is what CAP planned — included method mean anything, CAP is probably right, because the Chicago Crime Commission, lawyers and others involved in the system have said the same thing for years.

Despite the shouting, CAP followed an orderly, three-phase pattern Monday.

First step was the initial period when the real target, board president George Dunne, faced several "options." The CAP plan showed that Dunne could cave in, "saying that he will recommend 84 more prosecutors" or grant "an insignificant number of prosecutors" or Dunne could "force us to negotiate for time on the agenda."

Dunne apparently didn't receive his copy of the CAP plan because he ignored his options — "you should come to the budget hearings . . . I cannot let you speak at all today . . . you may speak for (blank) minutes" — and remained silent.

Second phase called for CAP's presentation. Mrs. Mary Lou Wolff, CAP president, talked of rising crime. The president of a civic group called the West Pullman Blazers, General Chaney, demanded the prosecutors. A young man named J. Young described the lack of prosecution in a car theft-cocaine case and a C. Roach demanded that Dunne attend an "accountability session" this month on the Northwest side.

"Will you attend, Mr. President?" Mrs. Wolff screamed.

"No," Dunne said, while drawing a round of boos.

Part II, option D, was CAP's response — Mrs. Wolff's "poster threat."

mean anything, CAP is probably right, because the Chicago Crime Commission, lawyers and others involved in the system have said the same thing for years.

Despite the shouting, CAP followed an orderly, three-phase pattern Monday.

First step was the initial period when the real target, board president George Dunne, faced several "options." The CAP plan showed that Dunne could cave in, "saying that he will recommend 84 more prosecutors" or grant "an insignificant number of prosecutors" or Dunne could "force us to negotiate for time on the agenda."

Dunne apparently didn't receive his copy of the CAP plan because he ignored his options — "you should come to the budget hearings . . . I cannot let you speak at all today . . . you may speak for (blank) minutes" — and remained silent.

Second phase called for CAP's presentation. Mrs. Mary Lou Wolff, CAP president, talked of rising crime. The president of a civic group called the West Pullman Blazers, General Chaney, demanded the prosecutors. A young man named J. Young described the lack of prosecution in a car theft-cocaine case and a C. Roach demanded that Dunne attend an "accountability session" this month on the Northwest side.

"Will you attend, Mr. President?" Mrs. Wolff screamed.

"No," Dunne said, while drawing a round of boos.

George W. Dunne

"If you don't think we're serious, you've got another think coming. If you're not out in three weeks your picture and your name is going to be plastered on the North and South sides. You're going to be the man responsible for serious crime," she said.

"George Dunne's salary for 1972: $30,000," was the ending note on the CAP's agenda.

Dunne remained silent throughout the 23-minute battle of words. He was silent while Chaney compared the board to a Roman Coliseum, while Roach compared Stroger, a black, to an area Cookie (black with white filling), while Mrs. Wolff threatened to "bury you at the polls."

But Dunne was angry when later he said the county will be short of money next year. Cook County's anticipated 1974 revenue is $132 million. The board approved $125 million in expenses this year, without an estimated $8 million to $10 million required for running elections in 1974.

Politics, not money, is the real question in budgeting to improve the criminal justice system.

Bernard Cary is a Republican, operating under the budget sanctions of Dunne and Daley's Democrats. Cary's election convinced Republicans that they can win Dunne's seat — a post that ranks third or fourth in the state in patronage power.

Although CAP claims to be non-political, the attempt to embarrass Dunne rings like a campaign kick-off.

To find money for revamping the county's court system, Dunne is faced with the thought of cutting expenses elsewhere. CAP and vocal Republicans continually point to a Chicago newspaper study that found possible waste of $14.2 million in county funds.

To cut expenses, Dunne and his Democratic board majority can reduce a patronage army that tops 14,000. Janitors, part-time gun-toting bailiffs, elevator operators, marble and brass polishers are usually precinct captains and always are Democratic voters.

Cutting jobs is like cutting the party's throat. Giving Cary more prosecutors would add to one Republican's clout and would also give the state's attorney more manpower to begin investigations of politicians, including Daley.

Dunne faces the prospect of more confrontations as he begins his campaign for reelection. As the number one target of independents and Republicans, CAP's cry of "Down with Dunne" may not require a microphone to be heard by spring.

AFS 'peace vehicle'

Last Saturday there were about 1,900 pizzas made and delivered by the Hershey High School AFS student club and adult chapter. For those of you who have not yet heard about AFS I would like to say that if there is ever going to be peace in this world, it would seem it is going to come about through these great young people all over the world who are really learning to understand each other and work together and live together!

Having helped with this tremendous project which was finalized on Saturday, I would like to commend the wonderful bunch of teen-agers who worked side by side with adults, talking, laughing, and in general proving that generation gaps can be hurdled. Mrs. Jan Robson, sales chairman, deserves a special bouquet!

AFS (American Field Service International Scholarships) has been growing in the Northwest suburbs. I understand there are about eight or nine students here from foreign countries and a similar number of American students abroad studying under the AFS program.

The more pizzas that are sold each year, the larger the number of students who will be able to participate in this cultural interchange.

As a mother who likes to have her children share in an international experience and as a member of Hershey AFS for the past five years, I wish to thank all those who purchased pizzas this year and helped perpetuate "peace through understanding." I would also like to remind residents that all of the AFS chapters are now in the process of seeking out host families for foreign students who will be arriving next summer. Finding out more about this phase of the program could enrich your entire life!

'Where'd pranks go?'

To the City of Rolling Meadows Police Dept.:

How wonderful that you have such an easy job on Halloween night. My son was picked up and I was called to retrieve him for a horrible crime of a true delinquent. He was picked up for "toilet-papering" a tree.

To be sure, I was distressed to find this was the worst of the criminal offenses for a Halloween Eve. If all communities would have such a good fortune to find only a few paper trimmed trees, what a serene, uneventful night it could be.

We've gone from candy to coupons and now no pranks are allowed. What happened to the "trick" in "trick or treat?"

But 'gas guzzlers' still selling well

Car buyers want economy and luxury

by LEA TONKIN

The small-car market is expanding as more buyers become concerned about fuel economy, say area dealers. Yet many buyers want all the luxury options in the small cars.

Dealers also report that a number of customers still prefer the gas-guzzling eight-cylinder autos.

A sales manager at Martin J. Kelly Oldsmobile dealership in Arlington Heights said buyers are not discouraged by the poor mileage ratings accorded Toronado and other full-size models by the Environmental Protection Agency this year. "In Oldsmobile, people are not looking for mileage as in some other cars," he said. The salesman added that the EPA tests were misleading. The Cutlass Supreme model, which averages 15 miles a gallon (more or less) is a top seller, "along with the Toronado, believe it or not."

HOWEVER, A REPRESENTATIVE in the Oldsmobile zone office for northern Illinois, based in Oak Brook, said that October sales dipped 2 per cent in the Chicago area compared to sales a year earlier.

This represents a loss of 200 cars, with some 6,000 models sold in the zone during October. The Olds representative said the sales decline was probably accounted for by the full size models, including Delta 88 and 98 and Toronado models.

At North Shore Motors, Ltd. in Wheeling, general manager Phillip Keene said customers are "positively" concerned about fuel economy. "We're expecting bigger sales than ever this year, and attributing it mostly to the smaller cars," he said.

The American Motors dealer added that most compact and subcompact buyers want options, as air conditioning, which cut fuel economy. "You'll find the American is used to luxuries, and the big cars," he said. "There is the trend to buy a small car and add the luxuries that don't affect mileage too much."

PEOPLE ARE buying more small cars, echoes Guy Scarpelli, sales manager at Colonial Chevrolet in Schaumburg. With many of the options for the subcompact Vega model, the cost might climb from $2337 to $3800. "I haven't heard too much concern about mileage or gasoline shortages," he said. "There's only one good way to get good gas mileage, and that's to lie about it."

Small six-cylinder cars are the most popular models at the Northwest Dodge in Des Plaines, said Paul Botsacos, sales manager. "Definitely, in the last month and a half, people have been asking about economy and mileage," he said.

"Most people want air conditioning," Botsacos continued, "and this costs about three-quarters of a mile in fuel economy."

NEW CAR BUYERS are concerned about gasoline mileage says Bill Cook of Bill Cook Buick in Arlington Heights. "But what's happened is that they read the papers and magazines, and they find that the big cars are giving slightly less mileage than the small cars."

Cook said the weight of a car and the options make a difference in gasoline mileage. "but the biggest thing is the way they drive it."

Len Green, a spokesman for the Chicago Automobile Trade Association, said, "Big car sales haven't suffered as much as many people believe." He notes that Cadillac turned in an October record sales report of 33,437 models delivered.

Business Today

NEW YORK — Any company that puts a red cover on its annual report in a red ink can't be all bad.

And that's exactly what Cybermatics, Inc., a graphic arts company in Englewood Cliffs, N.J., did in a rare display of truth in advertising and an ability to laugh at one's self. Cybermatics' 1972 annual report not only had a red cover but the message on it said in large type: "Cybermatics Inc., hit bottom in '72. Now we're bouncing back. But maybe you won't believe that."

Inside there was a picture of a Japanese standing forlornly in the middle of the ruins of Hiroshima or maybe it was Nagasaki and the caption says: "Maybe you wouldn't have believed Japan in 1945 if they'd said, 'We've hit bottom but we will bounce back'."

TWO PAGES LATER there's a photo of Col. Harlan Sanders standing in front of the restaurant he sold out at a loss in 1958 just before starting a comeback career with Kentucky Fried Chicken.

This was Cybermatics' fourth annual report based on the "let your hair down and tell strict truth" philosophy of its advertising agency, Case & McGrath, Inc., of New York.

The first one became a collector's item when, instead of showing pictures of Cybermatics executives, it showed a cleaning woman boasting that "trash at Cybermatics is up 630 per cent" and the handyman proclaiming the office force's consumption of bathroom tissue had grown from one to eight rolls a day.

Three of these four reports have won the annual award of Mead Co., the Dayton, Ohio, papermaker for the best annual report of the year. "Our object in adopting such a radical approach was simple," said the agency's president, Pat McGrath. "We wanted to make sure the annual report was actually read."

THEY CERTAINLY succeeded in that," Cybermatics chairman Roy Morris said. "Each year we have received hundreds of congratulatory letters from stockholders."

McGrath says he believes the reason other firms haven't tried to copy the Cybermatics report style is that it's too difficult to come up with the necessary fresh ideas.

He said Case and McGrath was not eager to do such annual reports for other clients — "It's just too hard."

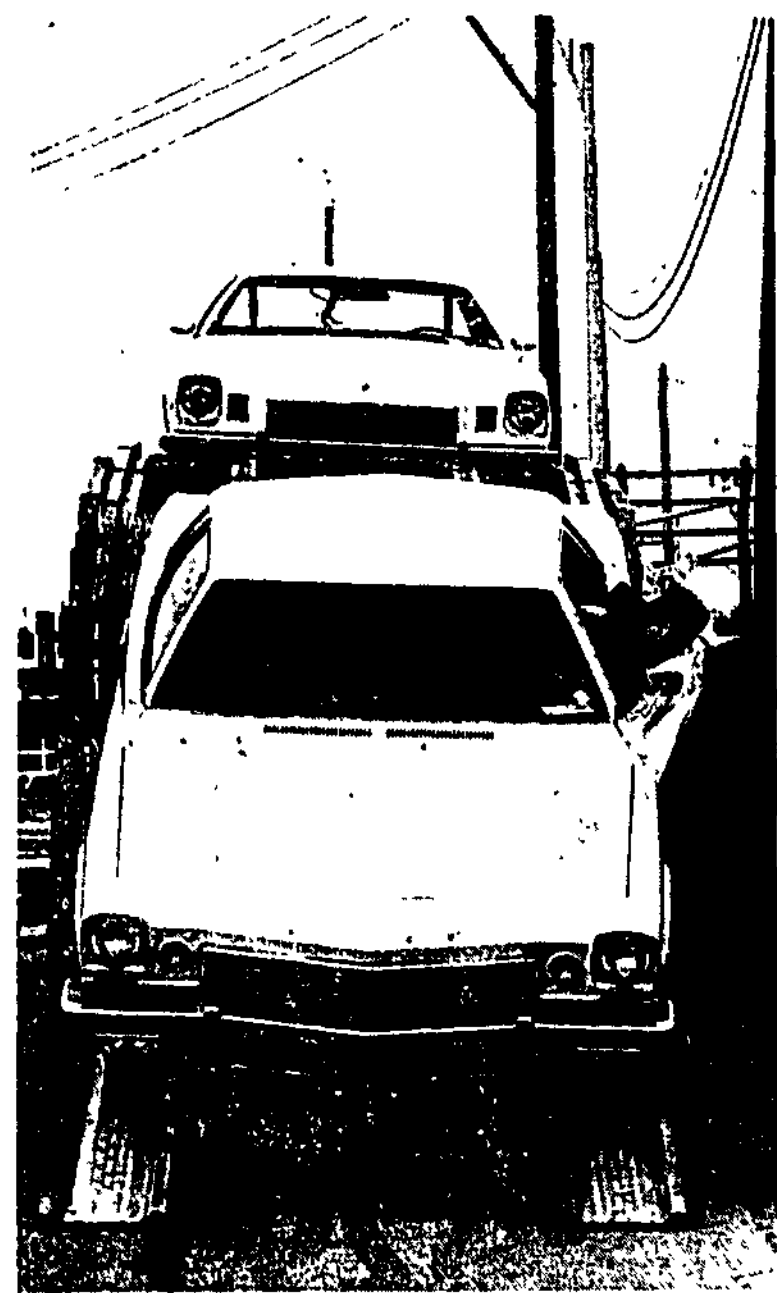

horsepower. Engines are designed to run best in the range of 90 to 95 per cent of maximum output.

• Automatic transmissions. Three black marks are reversing past trends toward more cars equipped with AT's. First, automatics add several hundred pounds to car weight. Second, automatic shifting prevents the skilled driver from selecting the engine-gear ratio best suited to specific driving conditions. Third, the slippage built into AT's to smooth shifting costs even the best engine 9 to 12 per cent in gasoline mileage.

• Rotary engines. Wankel-type rotary engines are being rushed into production to save weight and to meet tough 1975 and 1976 emission standards.

All facts point to increasing popularity of small, efficient, gas-stretching cars.

(The Register and Tribune Syndicate, 1973)

OFF AND ROLLING to a good year, Northwest suburban new-car dealers say small-car sales are strong but energy shortages haven't discouraged buyers of full size cars. Above, Buicks are unloaded from a truck.

Managing your family's money

Everyone's thinking about smaller cars

Shortages of gasoline and its higher price double the incentive for thinking small about cars. Plus, big cars and maybe all cars could be banned from downtown areas to improve air quality.

Heavier cars and emission controls working together have decreased gasoline mileage in recent years. Of these two, weight appears to be the major culprit. We have commented about the big "Belchfire 8's" before. But, look at this new information before committing your pocketbook to buy another big car:

Three car makers admit to a 10 to 19 per cent drop in miles per gallon during the past five to eight years. In 1965 one manufacturer's typical car weighed 3,500 pounds and was powered with a 300-cubic-inch engine. In 1973 the typical car weighed 4,275 pounds and was powered with a 330-cubic-inch engine. These changes decreased gas mileage 10 per cent.

ANOTHER COMPANY reported a similar increase in weight and engine size with a drop in gasoline mileage from 12.4 to 10.1 mpg — a decrease to 81.5 per cent.

Power-robbing equipment also takes its toll in gas mileage. An air conditioner cuts mileage by 1.5 mpg over all.

Averages can be deceiving, however. The Environmental Protection Agency figures that car owners averaged 15.5 mpg in 1965 and 15.4 in 1972. The reason for the smaller drop? More car owners opted for smaller cars in 1972 than in earlier years. In 1972, 38 per cent of the buyers selected cars smaller than "standard." In 1969 only 21 per cent of the buyers bought small cars.

Auto manufacturers, meanwhile, are getting the message. They are working feverishly at a variety of approaches for improving gasoline mileage, such as:

• Lighter weight. One engineer calculates as much as a thousand pounds in body weight can be saved by eliminating the front and rear overhangs and installing a smaller engine with no change in basic interior dimensions.

• Small engines. Lack of torque for accelerating to freeway speeds discourages many a car buyer who might otherwise select a subcompact. According to one report, manual floor shifts possibly with as many as five speeds are making a strong comeback.

Mighty-mite sports coupes and runabouts already feature a four-on-the-floor shifter to improve performance. With four or five speeds a small engine can operate closer to its optimum torque fast. Car engines usually loaf around the city at 30 to 40 per cent of their available

Airlines cut number of flights

President Nixon's pronouncement on the energy crisis Wednesday night may have been dramatic but in at least one area — his plea to the airline industry — steps already had been taken to meet the fuel shortage.

The President ordered that airlines should get less fuel and, therefore, that the number of flights both domestically and internationally would be reduced.

But, according to government sources in Washington, the President was talking about something that already had been agreed upon by the airlines and that already has gone into effect in some cases.

Traditionally, because of competition and other business considerations, the nation's airlines have, to put it simply, offered more flights than there were passengers.

THAT HAS HELD true until today. In the past, in the most extensive market, the Chicago-to-New York-run, for example, airlines have continued to step all over each other in an effort to continue profiting from this lucrative source of revenue. The results for the Big Three airlines — TWA, United and American — for instance, was that airplanes were flying half full.

But despite industry promises that the airlines would cut back flights to conserve fuel, thus saving money and passing the benefits on to their customers, they have not done so until now.

Under the auspices of the Civil Aeronautics Board, the airlines in October entered into a joint capacity agreement whereby fuel consumption would be reduced 10 per cent and unnecessary flights curtailed.

According to airline spokesmen, that same, Chicago-to-New York-run, which involved some 70 flights per day by the Big Three airlines, now has been reduced by about 15. Because there are a lot of empty seats now, a spokesman said, the public should not be greatly affected. Passengers can leave at the same time as before but will have fewer airlines to choose from.

Wrigley, Trib lights out...

by United Press International
One of the most prominent and durable features of the Chicago scene, the illumination of the towering white Wrigley Building on Michigan Avenue beside the Chicago River, vanished last night for the duration of the energy crisis.

Its across-the-street neighbor, the Tribune Tower, likewise has ordered its exterior lights turned off.

William Wrigley, president of the Wrigley Co., said the 1.3-million-candlepower floodlights would remain dark until the emergency is over. He said the action should reduce electrical consumption by 218,000 watts during the approximate eight hours that the floodlights are on during the winter months. Big banks of floodlights erected more than a block away furnish the night lighting.

Except for the World War II years, when the lights were removed as an emergency measure and lent to the U.S. Navy, and a three months period in the winter of 1971 when a new system was being installed, the lights have been on each night since 1923.

United Motor Coach gas, diesel fuel consumption going up

C&NW sees little effect despite fuel shortage

The Chicago and North Western Ry. uses 7.4 million gallons of diesel fuel a year alone on its suburban train service but the fuel-shortage crisis probably will have little effect on its operation.

According to a company spokesman, there should be enough fuel left in the nation to supply the company's passenger demands, which could increase considerably following President Nixon's urging that Americans make sacrifices to meet the problem times that lie just ahead.

The railroad operates on diesel fuel, which is made from the same oil supplies used for home heating oil.

The C&NW spokesman said the company knew "for some time" that fuel supplies would become depleted but that there will be adequate supplies to keep the trains running.

He said the fuel shortage would mean "enormous" costs to the C&NW and that the recent 7 per cent fare increase did not take this increase into account. The current fare increase request of 7.1 per cent before the Illinois Commerce Commission figures in the increased cost of fuel, according to the spokesman.

He said the additional cost could be as high as $500,000 for 1974's operation.

A UNITED MOTOR Coach Co. spokesman yesterday said the bus company will use about 200 to 300 gallons of fuel per month more beginning later this month because of increased services being provided to Skokie residents.

He said the company is trying to conserve its fuel in other areas but that there would be no cutbacks in service. He said the company won't know the full impact of the fuel crisis situation until the president clarifies what he wants the nation to do.

The president of Metron Systems Corp., the new bus company operating commuter buses to and from the C&NW station in Arlington Heights, said gasoline rationing could result in increased ridership for his company.

He said he assumed common carriers would be given high priority in any gas rationing program.

But some private citizens grumble

State government, business act fast to conserve energy

by United Press International
Infused with a spirit of cooperation, dozens of local government units and private businesses in Illinois said Thursday they will turn down thermostats, drive slower and make an all out effort to conserve energy.

But there was some grumbling among private citizens over President Nixon's request to turn down home thermostats to 68 degrees, and some alarm among environmentalists at his proposal to ease pollution regulations.

In Cook County temperatures were dropped to 65 degrees in county buildings, and Mayor Richard J. Daley ordered city buildings to set thermostats at 69 degrees during the day and 64 at night. All city vehicles will be limited to 30 miles per hour and lighting will be reduced in city buildings.

THERMOSTATS were turned to 68 in all city buildings in Joliet in all public schools at Quincy and in the mayor's office in Moline. The University of Illinois at Urbana said temperatures in most of the 150-plus buildings on campus will be lowered to 65 or 69 degrees and lights will be cut back.

At Loves Park near Rockford, Mayor Edward Anderson announced that the eternal flame at a veterans' memorial would be shut off, and a tire company in Freeport said it would turn off all exterior lighting.

The Downtown Development Council in Joliet said it would try to get merchants to cut back electrical use by 10 per cent, and the Quincy Chamber of Commerce said it will discuss possible reduction of store hours next week.

CITIZEN REACTION varied. "My family is taking this seriously all right," said Galesburg banker Mack Glass. "My wife turned the heat back. I think about four degrees. My 13-year-old daughter is aware of it as far as the lights are concerned, and I guess I'm more conscious of it when I'm driving."

But an Aurora housewife complained it would be "a bit chilly" with thermostats at 68. "We pay the bill for the fuel and I think we should be able to choose the heat level at which we are comfortable."

The President drew the most criticism in Illinois from environmentalists who said he had not gone far enough and had moved in the wrong direction.

"I think there's no question about it," said Jacob Dumelle, president of the Illinois Pollution Control Board. "What he's doing is opening the door to gutting the air quality standards. A lot of people will rush in now and say let's throw everything out."

CLARK BULLARD, a spokesman for the Center of Advanced Computation, which has been studying energy problems at the University of Illinois under a national grant for the past two years, said the President missed the mark.

"There can be no effective long-range voluntary conservation program unless the government commits itself to rewarding energy conservation," he said, "possibly through some kind of energy tax."

Olds Gibson, president of the Illinois Coal Operators Association at Springfield, called Nixon's proposals for easing pollution regulations "encouraging, but specifically it cannot help us much."

Gibson and other industry spokesmen said use of coal would still be stymied by regulations, and no new mines will be started unless there is a long-term commitment to coal use.

The state currently has 146 billion tons of coal reserves, but it has sulfur contents of 1.5 to 4.5 per cent.

Municipal buildings may soon be cooler, dimmer

by The Herald staff

Cooler, slower county ordered

County government officials ordered cuts of building heat and light and reductions in vehicle speed in response Thursday to President Nixon's plea for energy conservation.

Spokesmen for the forest preserve district and the county maintenance and operation department said that heat was reduced to 65 degrees, the minimum allowed by law, and that 50 per cent light was used in most buildings.

Forest preserve vehicles will be limited to 30 miles-per-hour speed limits and will be used "only where absolutely necessary," Gavhart said. The orders will be explained in a memo distributed to department heads.

The president of the Chicago Metropolitan Sanitary District urged Thursday Nixon extend daylight saving time during winter hours for one-half hour only.

On Dec. 21, the shortest day in the year, the sun will rise at 8:14 a.m. and employees will be subject to the "handicaps and hazards" of working in the dark.

Municipal buildings in the Northwest suburbs may be just a trifle cooler or dimmer for awhile, as communities attempt to cope with the nation's dwindling supply of energy.

Thermostats in many village and city halls were turned down in response to President Nixon's plea in his address Wednesday night, and other steps to conserve power are being considered.

The President's message was conveyed directly to governors, county officials and mayors of towns more than 30,000 population Thursday in lengthy telegrams asking for their compliance with his energy-saving measures.

IN ARLINGTON Heights, lights in the village hall corridors were ordered turned off by Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson. Rolling Meadows City Mgr. James Watson called for the dousing of some of the floodlights in front of city hall and the public works building.

In some instances, local officials reported heat and lighting in municipal buildings are already at minimal levels, and said further reductions would impair working conditions.

"On heat, you have to have it comfortable," said Wheeling Village Mgr. George Passolt. "You can't work efficiently if it's cold."

MIKE MADDEN, librarian of the Schaumburg Township Public Library, said there has been some discussion of turning off lights, "but I really can't see that. A library is based on books and reading so lighting is important here."

Donna Grove, administrative librarian of the Palatine Public Library, added that lights there are already doused "as much as we can."

However, some municipal bodies are planning cutbacks. Thomas Thornton, director of parks and recreation in Arlington Heights, said automatic timers for park lights are being reset, though he noted that it's as much of an economic as a conservation move.

"Our utility bill has been very high," he said. "We were planning to do this to save money on our bill."

SLIGHT CUTBACKS also are anticipated in the Rolling Meadows Public Library. Library director Virginia Connell said the heat will be reduced somewhat to preserve electricity.

It does not appear that municipal building hours will be changed in light of the energy crisis, or that municipal services will be curtailed.

"We still have to provide police protection," said Hoffman Estates Mayor Virginia Hayter. She added, the village could be sued by some residents if it plowed some streets and not others.

At least two suburbs, Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, are giving serious thought to trading in full-size village vehicles for compact cars to stretch the limited supply of gasoline.

IN OTHER communities, village cars have been restricted to 50 miles per hour except for police and emergency needs.

One unusual way of preserving power — limiting Christmas lighting decorations — was suggested by Richard Dawson, environmental health director in Palatine. "It is kind of bah humbug in a sense," he said, "but it is also very realistic."

Mrs. Hayter endorsed the concept of year-round daylight savings time as "probably the one thing that has any merit to it at all."

"All of this other stuff is voluntary," Mrs. Hayter remarked. And, she predicted, "if it doesn't hit you in the pocketbook in a very substantial way, you will not change your habits."

by KAREN BLECHA

If you're planning on turning down the thermostat and lighting up a roaring fire, you'd better order your firewood now.

Firewood distributors said yesterday there is enough firewood available now to start the home fires burning in the Northwest suburbs. But several said there may not be enough to keep them burning since more and more customers are buying more wood than ever this fall, some of them stocking up just in case their heating supply runs out.

Even if the supply lasts, prices are expected to go up if they haven't already.

"FIREWOOD IS AVAILABLE," said Vern Heinz, manager of Lake-Cook Farm Supply in Arlington Heights. "It is tightening up, though. More people are coming in; more fireplaces have been built. And after last night I don't know what the story will be."

Heinz was referring to President Nixon's speech on the energy crisis and his plea to Americans to turn down the thermostats to help save heating oil.

Lake-Cook Farm Supply now has about five or six tons of birch firewood left and probably will get more wood this year, Heinz said. But, he added, even if the wood supply lasts through the winter the price will be up because of the demand.

Currently, Lake-Cook charged $39 for a ton and $20.50 for a half ton of firewood. Heinz added the most popular time for buying wood is now, before the holidays.

COURT YARD, A NURSERY in Itasca, has about 15 to 20 per cent less firewood to sell this year than last year, according to owner John Vincel. "The availability is less because there are less men in the cutting business," he said. "But we still have wood left." He said once his current supply is gone, he won't get any more firewood this year.

Vincel said his prices also have gone up about 15 per cent over last year. Vincel charges $67 for a cord of oak and $85 for a cord of birch, cherry or walnut. A cord, he said, is usually enough for a whole season.

Vincel added that several of his customers have said they are buying more wood this year in case they need it to help heat their homes.

ABOUT ONE-THIRD OF THE customers at J. Kottke and Son Landscaping Co. in Barrington have bought more wood than usual because they are afraid they will run out of heating fuel, according to Dan Kottke.

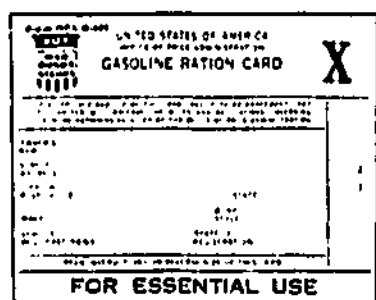

But, Kottke said, a fireplace won't help much to heat a house.

"A fireplace is usually built for looks, not for heat. All the heat goes up the chimney," he said. He did admit, though that a fireplace could help warm at least one room.

If you want firewood, better hurry

Gas rationing revives old war memories

Memories of "A" cards, three gallons a week and standing in line at the local rationing board.

In a few months, these could be more than memories if President Nixon's standby rules for gas rationing resemble the program used in World War II, the last time Americans were forced by the federal government to limit their consumption of gasoline.

World War II gas rationing started on July 22, 1942. Local rationing boards decided who would qualify and for how many gallons of gas.

There were three classifications of ration cards: the "A" card for the average driver who received three gallons of gas a week; the "B" classification for those who needed their car for work; and the "X" classification for ambulances, taxis, doctors, ministers, those considered to need the gas the most.

Under the "B" classification, there were three subdivisions. B1 was for those who drove 6 to 10 miles a day; B2 was for 10 to 14 miles a day; and B3 for more than 14 miles a day.

Most people looked upon gas rationing as patriotic, instead of a personal inconvenience. They took public transportation, walked or rode bicycles whenever they could and limited themselves to three gallons of gas a week. But like in any other program that involves self-sacrifice, there were some who wanted more than they deserved and would do almost anything to get it.

One historical account of the gas rationing tells the story of a man who desperately wanted a "B" ration card. He told the rationing board: "I'm allergic to trolley cars."

Dr. Lawrence Lamb Slow heart may need a pacemaker

My husband has a slow heart and his pulse goes down to 31 and a few times 32. If he gets outside and digs around it gets up to 42. He does at times seem to have some high blood pressure, but has not taken anything for it in over a year. Fifteen years ago he had a heart block and it left a scar through the heart. He is 72. We have a garden which he takes care of. He keeps up our yard and trims our hedge but tires easily. His doctor tells him to just live with it, but you tell me what foods are best for people like that.

The most immediate problem for your husband is to evaluate how well his heart functions mechanically. You don't mention any problems that commonly occur when there is a heart block that causes a very slow heart, and perhaps he has none.

The slow heart rate in this instance means that the normal impulses from the top of the heart are not getting to the lower part of the heart. As long as the heart is able to pump enough blood this way to provide good circulation to the brain, individuals with this problem do fairly well. If there is a problem in circulation to the brain then fainting and other problems develop. These problems cannot be avoided. In patients who need a faster rate, a pacemaker can be installed that stimulates the heart electrically to a rate that maintains good circulation.

EVALUATING who does and does not need a pacemaker is not a simple office procedure. Unless your doctor is a heart specialist I would ask him about a referral consultation with a cardiologist in a center where pacemakers are installed to see if your husband needs one or not. It is entirely possible that he doesn't need one or there may be reasons why he is doing better as he is, but it would be good to have the situation clarified.

Diets for this problem are the same as for all other problems related to fatty deposits in the arteries to the heart that lead to heart attacks. If there is a weight problem it should be controlled. The fat, and particularly the saturated fat, in the diet from mammal sources should be limited, and cholesterol found in animal foods should be limited. I'm sure your doctor can help you with this.

Will you please explain why outward hemorrhoids itch so much. Can they become cancerous from so much rubbing?

Internal hemorrhoids are painless, but they are the ones that bleed. The external ones are located immediately under the external skin where there is an abundant nerve supply. A hemorrhoid is just a varicose vein of the rectal area and the dilated vein can sometimes become clotted (thrombosed) which results in swelling and irritation. This will either rupture and bleed, expelling the small clot that will form, or else it will dry up and be left as a small tag of tissue. These can sometimes cause itching thereafter.

Rubbing and scratching can cause irritation of any area on the body and is usually not recommended but it will not cause cancer.

Anyone who has any rectal problem should have a complete medical examination. Hemorrhoids sometimes pop out because of pressure against the veins. The pressure may be caused by a tumor above the hemorrhoids. That's too important a problem to miss, so let the doctor make sure that it's just hemorrhoids.

New township offices

Open house for elected officials and Maine Township residents will be held at the Town of Maine's newly consolidated offices between 2 and 5 p.m., Sunday, Nov. 18.

The new location, at 2310 W. Dempster, Des Plaines, combines the offices of town supervisor, clerk, assessor, collector, board of auditors, and public assistance officer.

A ribbon-cutting ceremony is scheduled for 2 p.m. Newly elected Town Supervisor James J. Dowd and Milton H. Tuttle, who has held various township offices for 32 years, will do the honors.

The lead of the fourth best of your longest and strongest suit against no-trump contracts is something bridge players have been taught from time immemorial.

Some modernists have been getting away from it but the experts stick to it consistently except that they temper all rules with common sense. One bit of this common sense is that you make deceptive defensive plays when they can't fool your partner and can fool declarer.

West's lead of the four of hearts is an example of this deception. He has three aces and two jacks and all his partner can hold is some patience and perseverance. He wasn't dealt any high cards.

South wins the heart lead and knocks out West's ace of clubs. West plays the ace and six of hearts. Declarer wins with dummy's queen and cashes three clubs.

West discards the nine and jack of diamonds. He doesn't bother to signal because it doesn't matter one bit.

South can count the usual eight tricks. Should he try for the ninth in spades or diamonds?

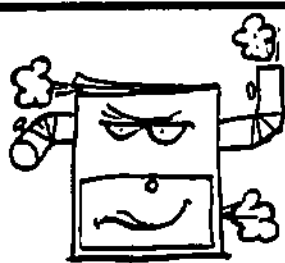

He is sure West is concealing the deuce of hearts. He does not know who has the 10.

He will probably try the spades and wind up behind the eight ball.

Shelby Lyman on Chess

Exact game duplication seldom if ever happens

It is only a slight exaggeration to say that most players will never play the exact same game twice in their lives. With the exception of trivial instances of recurring opening traps, which force an immediate resignation or mate, the possibilities in chess are sufficiently inexhaustible that exact duplication is a freak outcome.

When Capablanca in the 1930s complained that chess was being exhausted and suggested that the bishops and knights be interchanged in the initial position to provide new possibilities, he was perhaps revealing the sterility of his own opening ideas. With the further exploration of chess openings, more and more possibilities have become available, albeit later and later in the game. The identical phenomenon is well known from all fields of knowledge, especially natural science.

A recent enumeration of several remarkably similar games by Bernard Cafferty in the British magazine "Chess" is instructive. The games show a striking repetition of moves and themes up to a point but then they take off on unique paths.

Diagram 1 Here's an example, with Bobby Fischer winning via a well known thematic sacrifice that exploits the rook vs. king situation on the king file. Look at Diagram 1.

What is Fischer's move (the sacrifice)? Consult and play over the score of the game to see fully how he proceeds.

It is true that the variation is derived from the game Honfi vs. Tatal, Monaco, 1968, as Cafferty informs us. It is also true that the latter game goes back to another game played in 1935. But although the key ideas and execution are remarkably similar, the exact play in each game is unique.

Diagram 2 As you play over Fischer's game, you will see how his pieces swarm over the black queenside where the black king is an easy target. The final position of Fischer-Rubinstein (Diagram 2) is similar enough to the final position of another game

Diagram 3 cited, Tal-Mukhim, (Diagram 3), to have caught Cafferty's attention.

Cafferty has emphasized the similarity of these positions because the move sequences are close and the outcomes are immediate and identical. I.e. black resigns.

But most "similar" positions reached after 20 or so moves are only taking-off points for future play. They are subjectively experienced as "unique" and certainly become such as play unfolds further.

Incidentally, Capablanca eventually lost his world title to Alekhine, who exploited the Cuban's uninspired opening play.

Huskies boast many weapons for title bid

by JIM COOK

"In 1971, we should've..."

"In 1972, we could've..."

"In 1973, we're gonna..."

So run the sentiments of Hersey's undefeated North Division Huskies who are obviously intent upon snapping a two-year jinx bested by Elk Grove's defending and host Mid-Suburban League football champions tonight in Super Bowl IV at 7:30.

In what has developed into an annual season-ending classic between the two perennial division titlists, Elk Grove "upset" Hersey, 7-3, in 1971 and made it two straight last year in a favorite's role, 9-0.

"No the Super Bowl isn't novel for us," Hersey head coach Joe Gliwa admitted, "but this year it's particularly special. This is the best team — for offense and talent — that I've ever coached."

The Huskies' past performance charts, rivaling Secretariat's in some respects, support their coach fully. Hersey romped through the Mid-Suburban with a 7-0 record and by averaging 35 points per game. Its only loss of the season came in the closing seconds of its non-conference opener against St. Viator, 13-10.

Kickin' It Around

by BOB FRISK Sports Editor

It is a Herald policy to wait until a boy has completed his sport before developing any special feature stories. Schaumburg High School's Arnold Jackson just completed his senior season in cross country, and Bob Frisk examines this outstanding career today in his Kickin' It Around column. See Page 7.

"I got a haircut the Wednesday before the Viator game," Gliwa, who normally sports a very conservative crewcut, chuckled. "I haven't had one since."

But Hersey hasn't compiled its impressive 7-1 overall mark by being superstitious. They've done it by being super-awesome. The Huskies boast the best offensive team in the history of the Mid-Suburban League, compiling 2656 total yards, or an average of 379.4 per game.

Their record 62 points and 440 rushing yards against Wheeling during the regular season were not the result of rabbit's feet or four-leaf clovers.

Instead, the Huskies have prospered behind an arsenal of runningbacks and a decimating offensive line. "Last year we lacked the breakaway speed and execution that we have this year," Gliwa said.

Halfbacks Jim Spicuzza (748 yards) and Jeff Forster (297) plus fullback Mark Krause (404) have rushed for nearly a mile of turf.

Quarterback Mark Zakula throttles the offense with his right arm that has detonated opposing defenses for 991 yards. The 6-foot-3, 185-pounder is the MSL's career total offense leader with 2133 yards.

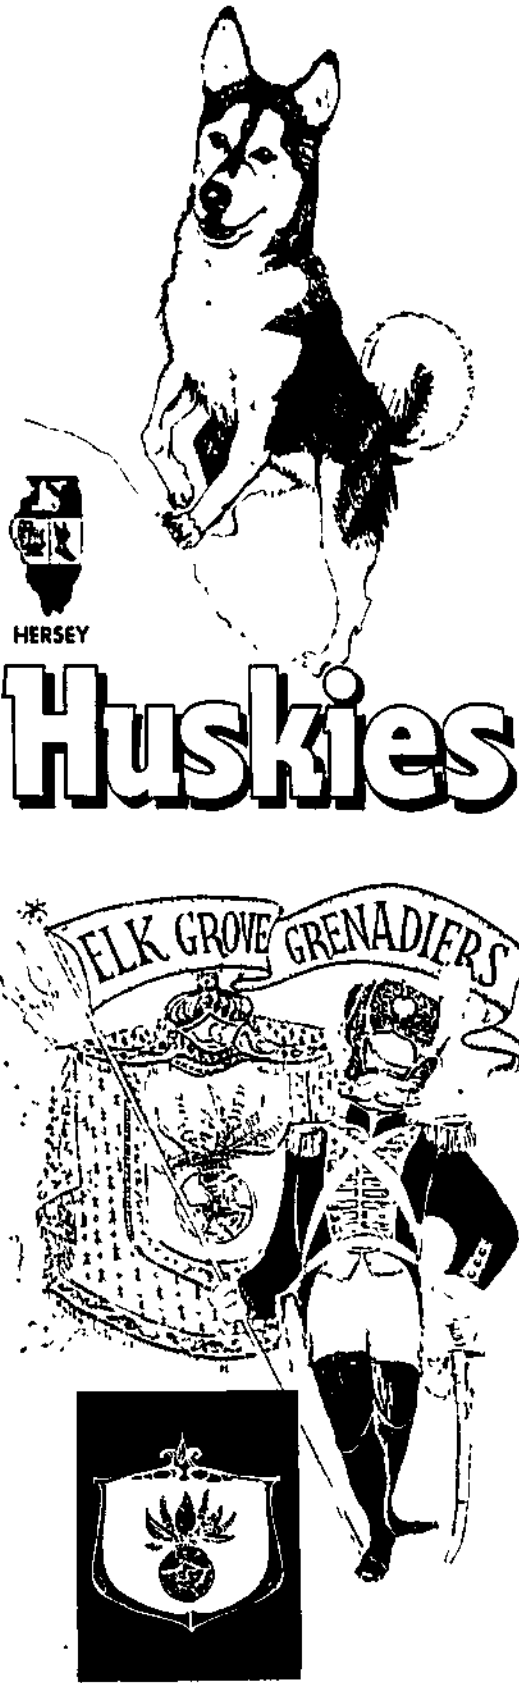

"Elk Grove has a reputation as being one of the toughest defensive teams year after year," Gliwa acknowledged. "We respect it but we're going to try to slowly pick it apart."

"I think they're more of a team this year," Gliwa explained. "They don't have the (Jeff) Stewarts or the (Jeff) Schroeders this season. But they do have a (Don) Weadley and we believe their attack is predicated on him and what he can do."

"If they saw our game against St. Viator, they know we lost to the pass, so it wouldn't surprise us if they came out throwing," Gliwa continued. "But I think their game plan is ball control."

"They've got some good, big people and a lot of class. They never go out there and make fools of themselves. I'd call them the most improved team since the beginning of the season, although we haven't been exactly stagnant."

Grens' defense could key 3rd straight crown

by PAUL LOGAN

There's one name that won't appear in the Super Bowl program tonight. That's Dee Fense.

He's not a person; he's an "it." An awfully big "IT" to Elk Grove. That's defense.

Year after year the Grenadier teams have prided themselves on this somewhat forgotten art, especially in this age of high-powered offenses.

In 1971, Elk Grove counted on the big "D" to beat Hersey 7-3 in Super Bowl II.

In 1972, Elk Grove had a potent offense, but weather and field conditions dictated. Defense again was the name of the Super Bowl game as the Mid-Suburban League champs won 9-0 over Hersey.

This time around, Coach Don Schnake will be bringing a team again short on offense and long on defense into its yearly struggle with the visiting North Division champion Huskies. However, the pressure old Dee Fense will have on it tonight, beginning at 7:30, will probably be the greatest ever.

The magnificent 11 defenders of the Elk Grove faith will be facing one of the greatest offensive teams in the 10-year history of the league. One that boasts the all-time total offense leader in quarterback Mark Zakula, one of the quickest halfbacks ever in Jim Spicuzza and the second most prolific scoring team ever.

Behind the talented defensive coaching of Brendan Flynn, the Grenadiers have used a "5-2" line and linebacker set with four deep backs to limit the last eight teams to just three touchdown passes and 70 points overall.

Since Zakula is easily the best passer they'll face all year, let's start with the defensive secondary. Its leader is Don Weadley, a safety who also plays four other positions on offense.

If you see a strange Grens' number on the field tonight, it just might be Weadley. He started out the season with No. 24, but now wears No. 17.

"We were accused of trying to hide him by changing his number," recalled Schnake of the game with Arlington. "Before padding up, he told me, 'I've got real bad news.' He misplaced his jersey and couldn't figure out where it was."

Although this versatile 5-foot-10, 170-pound senior sprinter may be absent-minded about some things, he isn't when it comes to fulfilling his assignments. He's teamed with Larry Lasplisa, Mike Brandt and Leon Montemayor to shut off the long bomb. The three TD passes were only 4, 6 and 15 yards.

The one question mark could be endurance. Three of the four go both ways compared to Hersey's fresh two platoon system. A total of seven Grenadiers will probably see double duty.

In order to keep this quartet just as fresh, they'll have to depend upon the tough "5-2" up front.

The "2" of the defense is the line-backing combo of Tom Malinowski and Charlie Piermarini. However, the latter was sick for the Schaumburg game and was still missing by midweek. Filling in admirably in the South Division title game was Paul Gulliksen.

Together with their "3" linemen teammates — Dick Radzis, Harry Buerger, Tom Elsen, Tom Roberts and Paul Gulliksen — they'll be looking to shut out Hersey.

Radio coverage of Mid-Suburban title contest

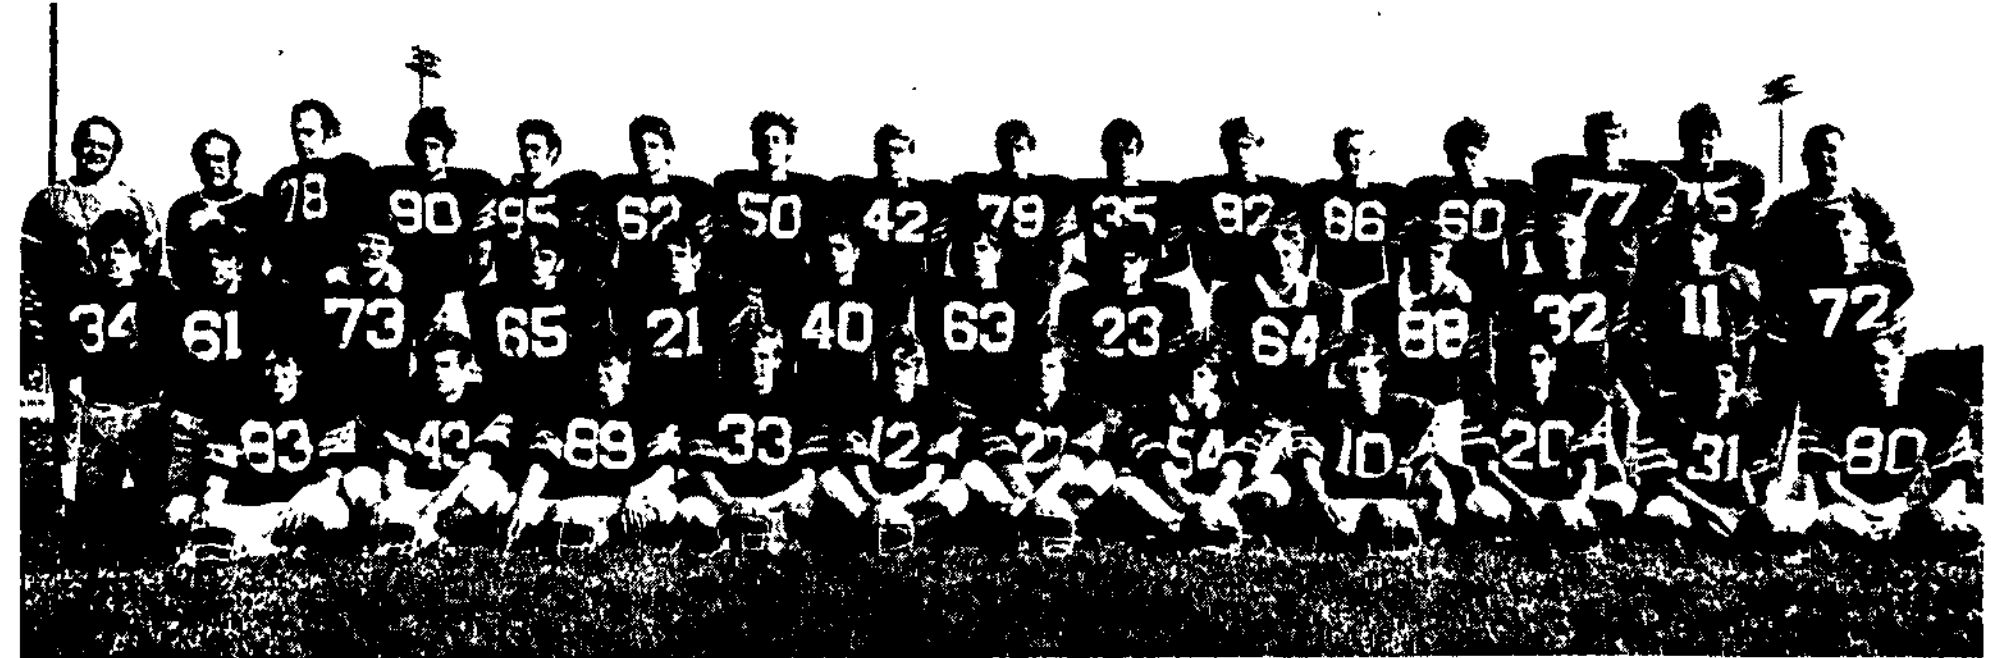

This is it! The biggest game of the area high school football season will be staged Friday evening at Elk Grove, and WWSM-FM will be there to cover the action.

WM Director of Sports Bud Kelly and Herald Sports Editor Bob Frisk will be at the 92.7 microphones starting at 7:20 p.m. with the kickoff set for 7:30.

Hersey is representing the North Division and Elk Grove the South in the Mid-Suburban. Elk Grove has won two straight league "Super Bowls."

St. Viator, overlooked in polls, goes after impressive 8-1 record

by MIKE KLEIN

On being the St. Viator Lions or, how to win football games but never a spot in the polls.

Quietly, the big cats have deposited seven lifeless foes into their kitty litter, might make it eight tomorrow. But who has noticed? Not the pollsters. Well, Jim Lyne gives a damn.

"I don't know what more we have to do," said Lyne whose football Lions are 7-1 with a game remaining tomorrow against St. Francis De Sales. "Some newspapers have Lane Tech and Hersey ranked ahead of us. That's garbage. We beat both. I don't respect what some newspapers are doing."

"The (Suburban Catholic) league we're in is real tough. Week-in and week-out, it's tough football. What do we have to do for some recognition? Everybody else gets all the headlines."

More straight Lyne: "We play good football at St. Viator. We've got a quarterback (Stan Bobowski) at Notre Dame. They don't take just anybody. We've got a kid playing some football at Wisconsin as a freshman — Andy Michuda." And the list went on.

Yes, the Lions win football games. All the time. Hersey, the Mid-Suburban League Super Bowl favorite over Elk Grove, felt the St. Viator claws in a 15-10 last play loss. Lane Tech was beaten by one point, 16-15, the next weekend.

If the Lions bust up St. Francis tomorrow in Hammond, Ind., they'll be 8-2 for the past five years. Now 7-1, their past four seasons were 8-1-1, 6-2-1, 7-2 and 8-1.

But Lyne's in a tough, unwelcome spot. His Lions can win over St. Francis to finish 6-1-0 in the Suburban Catholic East and still be without a second consecutive playoff berth. That's because Holy Cross, at 5-0-1, draws very poor St. Joseph (1-3) for its regular season finale.

It was Holy Cross that surged two TDs ahead of St. Viator, then hung on to inflict the Lions' only Suburban Catholic loss, 20-10, four weeks ago in mud.

The Crusaders managed just eight yards offense after halftime against Viator. But they survived a pair of failed two-point conversion tries as the Lions stormed back to dominate the second half but lose the ballgame.

When a kick by Steve Bobowski could have tied the game, St. Viator went for two points with just 28 seconds to play. To this day, Lyne does not regret the decision.

"I did the right thing," he insists. "I wanted to win the football game. I wasn't looking ahead two or three weeks. When I called for the first two-point play, I figured we'd have another shot. I had confidence in my ballclub. I wanted to beat Holy Cross, not tie them," he added.

"We're a better ballclub than Holy Cross. I'd like to play them again, but that's not going to be."

He gets a hard argument on that from Crusaders coach Frank Mariani, a Rolling Meadows resident and former football-baseball head coach at St. Viator.

"I'll tell ya, we were more worried about St. Francis (beat 13-0) than Viator," said Mariani. "That muddy field really helped them but it hurt us. We felt we'd score four or five touchdowns against Viator." The Crusaders only "bleemish" to a so far unbeaten league season was a 0-0 tie with Notre Dame.

Only an unlikely Holy Cross defeat plus a St. Viator win can put the Lions into their second straight title game. And you can bet Lyne's club won't be lacking any enthusiasm against St. Francis, 4-1-1 in league games.

The Lions were sailing along at 8-0 last year before the Pioneers defeated them, 6-2, in mud. They were still good enough for a playoff berth but once there, could only tie Marmon, 6-6, again in mud.

Tomorrow's 2 p.m. game will be played at Noll Field in Hammond, Ind. Take the Kennedy Expressway to the Dan Ryan, link up with the Chicago Skyway and proceed to the Indiana tollroad. Exit the tollroad at Westport Ave, proceeding to Calumet. Turn left, go to Chicago Ave. and make another left. Noll Field is on Chicago Ave.

Returning home, proceed to Columbia Ave. and make a right, proceeding north to 141st Street. Turn left and join up with the tollroad.

If the Lions fall short, it'll be the final game for senior quarterback Jim Bucaro who's giving Hersey's Mark Zakula a great run as the top Herald area quarterback.

Last year, it was St. Viator honorable mention All-Stater Stan Bobowski and Elk Grove All-Stater Jeff Stewart who waged a great battle for quarterback honors.

But Bucaro has already gone past Bobowski in passing yardage. He's 56-of-125 for 788 yards and a .418 percentage. "I've said all season that he's a better thrower than Bobowski," said Holy Cross' Mariani. "After I saw him run in the Notre Dame game (80 yards), I'm glad he didn't run against us. He showed a lot of quickness."

Mariani added: "Bobowski beat you with his brain. He was probably a little sharper in play selection."

The Zakula-Bucaro match-up is equally interesting. Zakula has completed 58-of-115 for 1,083 yards and a .504 mark. But in their game this year, Bucaro won out. He was 15-of-26 for 223 yards; Zakula went 5-of-14 for 92 yards.

"I'm not taking anything away from the kid at Hersey," Lyne said. "He's a fine quarterback but mine is good too. I'll stick up for my people."

And that is no small cat's meow.

DON'T LET THE GASOLINE SHORTAGE DRIVE YOU TO A CRISIS OF SMALLER PROPORTIONS.

A Volvo can get almost twice the gasoline mileage of some popular big cars. Yet unlike small cars, Volvo has about the same front seat legroom as a Cadillac de Ville. As much back seat legroom as a Lincoln Continental. And more trunk space than the Pinto and Barracuda combined. But Volvo isn't just roomy. It's comfortable. The bucket seats are orthopedically designed to give support to all the contours of the body. Even to the point of having an adjustment that gives the small of your back firmer or softer support. And in a Volvo, you won't have to gather your courage to enter crowded highways. Its responsive, fuel-injected engine lets you move out into traffic before onrushing traffic moves into you. And once you're out there, you'll actually feel the rigidity of Volvo's body—welded into one solid piece of steel with thousands of closely-spaced spot welds. So instead of overreacting to the gasoline shortage, respond thoughtfully. By getting a Volvo.

That way, you can drive a big car without adding fuel to the energy crisis.

SUPER CHANGE?

Fans Forum:
Since we are at that time again in the season for the Mid-Suburban Super Bowl, I feel there should be a change. Instead of playing the game at the North or South home, why not play it at Dyche Stadium or Soldier Field. This way many more people can come.

A high school stadium only holds about 8,000 people, including standing room. If it were at a large stadium, people wouldn't be afraid of the crowd and thousands more would attend.

SUPER PRAISE!

Dear Sirs,
I just wanted to take this opportunity to say a few things to a few people that I've wanted to say for a long time. Please bear with me if I seem to digress, but everything I say is important to me; and I'm sure, to many others also.

First of all, I want to congratulate Don Schnake, Brendon Flynn, and Britton Farroh — the Elk Grove High School varsity football coaching staff — for their superb job of coaching.

There is really no adequate way I can express how much I admire those three men, or show how happy I am for them and their great success at Elk Grove the past four years. Let it suffice to say that I am proud to have known them all as coaches, as teachers and as men.

Right now I'm gloating over the fact that the arm-chair quarterbacks of Elk Grove didn't get their wish, namely, a bad season for the E. G. football team. They were in their glory the first three years of Elk Grove's existence, and they all played their "game" to the hilt. I can't think of anyone who deserves the success E. G. football has enjoyed more than Mr. Schnake, Mr. Flynn, and Mr. Farroh.

They've done the job with the blessing of lots of natural talent, and they've done the job without an over-abundance of natural ability. What that means is that those three men get 110 per cent effort out of every single player. And that, my friends, is the yardstick great coaches are measured by.

It began in the 1970-71 season, beating Addison, Hersey and Forest View (our first Homecoming victory) and closing the season with a 3-3 record.

The following autumn we won our first Super Bowl while avenging our only defeat of the season against Hersey. Once again, we beat a highly touted Forest View team (by a single point), yet we rolled up a season-total score of 164-64!

In the fall of 1972, something happened that rarely occurs in the life of a coach — a No. 1 state-ranked football team. What else can I say? Undeclared, we again beat Hersey in the Super Bowl. Jeff Stewart, Jeff Schroeder, Tony Tringali, Tim O'Leary — I could go on for days.

This year was the real test. Look at this year's team and try to name the stars. After a few players you run out. That's because this year's team is composed of a group of fair to good players all playing miles above their heads. Only the best coaches produce that.

Frankly, at the start of the year, I was hoping only for a respectable season, never dreaming of another Super Bowl! I had talked with Schnake concerning the team late last summer, and he closed with the statement, "We're gonna do our best, and that's all they can ask." They didn't do their best, they did better! As always, we were underdogs against Forest View, and as usual, we beat them. Respectable losses came against a tough Arlington team and Riverside-Brookfield. Although our winning streak was snapped at 18, our winning ways continued.

Now, for the third year in a row, we play Hersey in the Super Bowl. Rated sixth in the Chicago area, with a great defense and a better offense, Hersey will prove to be the toughest game any Elk Grove team has ever competed in. My best wishes go to the team, especially to the coaching staff — one of the most dedicated trios I've ever known.

Regardless of the outcome of the game, I again wish to congratulate them for their success. In my eyes, they are what great high school coaching is all about.

SUPER GRIPE!

Dear Sir,
I wanted to get this to you in time for printing Friday. I'm so sick and tired of reading about the great Bobby Douglass that I've got to air a complaint.

Just because the Bears' quarterback had one good game, that probably should read one good half, one of the Chicago pompous TV announcers said it was time people stopped being critical of him. Just because my boss likes something I do, he doesn't stop getting on me if I fail to perform later on.

Let this "super athlete" put together several fine games in the coming weeks. Then I'll believe. Until then, I'm avoiding as many Chicago newspapers, television and radio shows as I possibly can. That rah-rah stuff stinks.

Area Oilers 3, Rich Port Rangers 2
After an even first period, Area took over, scoring three times in the second period. The third period swung more to the Rangers, but they couldn't make up the deficit in this hard-played game. Gorshi Robin and Ritchie each scored single goals while Marino scored twice and picked up an assist. Reilly, Robin and Coffe each had one assist, while Simpkins assisted on two goals. Winklemann scored both goals for the Rangers, assisted by Carcerano, and Holfield.

Travelling Teams
Midgets
Arlington Heights 3, Tel-City 1
Scott Whittier opened the scoring with only 40 seconds on the clock.

Brian Tucker and John Walsh scored the other goals, with Walsh also picking up an assist. Mike Reizer assisted twice, Jim Moss once.

Bantams
Bouthern Grove 3, Arlington Heights 2
Arlington lost this game despite playing most of the time in their opponent's ice. Bryan Schumann opened the scoring, with assists from Mark Butler and Bob Rosenquist. Arlington's second goal was scored by Larry H. Krausson, assisted by Dave O'Neil and Brad Schumann.

Madison (Wis.) 3, Arlington Heights 2
In a rough and tough game, Arlington was defeated by one goal, despite a fine performance by Bill Donato in goal, who saved 20 shots. Mike Weber scored first, unassisted, with Jim McGuire scoring the other goal with assists from Bryan Schumann and Tim Cunningham.

Arlington came roaring back from defeat in this return game, aided by another fine performance by goalie Donato who worked hard for his shutout. Brad Schumann scored the first goal, assisted by Dave O'Neil and Larry H. Krausson. Jim McGuire put the game away with his goal, with Mike Weber and Steve Thompson assisting.

HOW TO BUY A NEW FORD AT A FAIR PRICE

Shop. Shop. Shop. It's the best way we know of to find out what kind of dollars you should be spending for a new car. All we ask is that you add us to your list. But keep in mind that price alone shouldn't sway your judgment. Service after the sale should weigh heavily in your decision of where to buy. All the new Fords are here, ready for immediate delivery. Come in and get our price, compare our trade-in allowance, meet our people, and above all, look over our service facilities before you make any decisions. ### Skyway sends seven runners to nationals

Three Harper harriers will be among the seven Skyway Conference representatives at the National Junior College Athletic Association's cross country championship meet in Tallahassee, Fla. Saturday.

Heading up the Hawk contingent is Mike DeLa Bruere, two-time conference champion and a returnee to the national finals. He recently finished fourth in the Region 4 runoff to gain another crack at the Florida State University course.

Other members of coach Bob Nolan's outfit making the trip are Tom Fath and John Jones, who finished ninth and 17th respectively in the regional qualifying race.

Also representing the Skyway loop Saturday will be Bill Schumacher of Elgin, Joe Cosentino and Tom Wright from Oakton and Gil Rocha of Triton.

At Fair Lanes

In the Rolling Meadows Classic E. Ueno had 247-129, T. Bourbons 218-202, M. L. Korb 212-222, E. Blumber 210-194, and A. Plicher 209-173. Ed note: please use first names with highlights.

In the Palatine Majors division the leader with a 326 series was H. Koster. Other top performers were R. Priest 202-271, G. Harrett 204-251, R. Noble 199-259, Mike Nowacki 209-245, and J. Nash 213-211.

In other recent action Joe Hartmann had 201-242, G. Barrett 214-231, and O. Hess 223-233. Ed note: please use first names with highlights.

Buffalo Grove Bills handle Hoffman, 8-6

WIDGET FOOTBALL REPORT
The Buffalo Grove Bills won their sixth game of the season last Saturday, stopping the Hoffman Estates Chiefs. Widget champs, 8-6.

With a large crowd at Harper College looking on, the Bills scored first on a 45-yard pass play from quarterback Craig Grost to left end Jeff Dennis early in the first quarter. The play capped a 53-yard drive and was the Bills' fifth from scrimmage.

The extra point attempt was good, but an offside penalty nullified the conversion. The second try failed.

On the third play of the second quarter, Chiefs' fullback Brian Moore was tackled in his own end zone and Buffalo Grove had two more points.

After a bad punt snap by the Bills, Hoffman Estates had the ball at Buffalo Grove's 30 yard line. On the third play from scrimmage, halfback Fernando Caraballo caught a 23-yard pass from quarterback Rick Broadus in the Bills' end zone.

The touchdown made it 6-0 and from that point neither team could score again.

Hoffman had six chances within the Bills' 10 early in the fourth quarter, but failed to reach paydirt. Then with 7:10 remaining, Buffalo Grove took over on their own 10 and never surrendered the ball again. Grove ran off 11 straight plays to kill seven minutes.

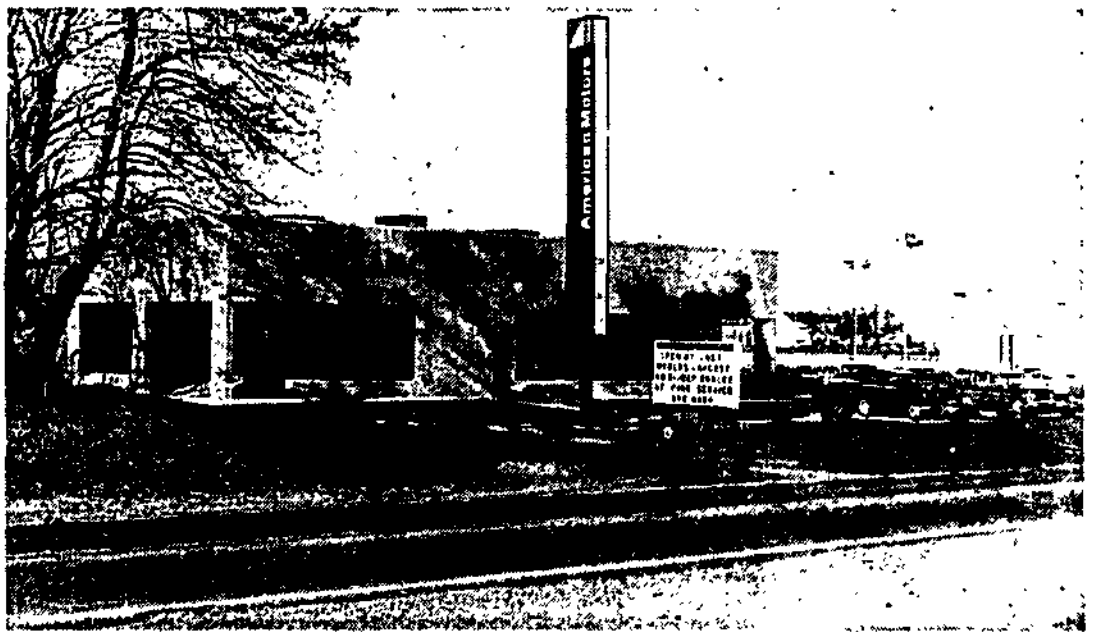

Bills' fullback Gordie Anderson led all rushers with 81 yards. Chiefs' halfback Caraballo rushed for 70 yards on 13 carries.

Defensively, Sam Stirkler of the Chiefs had 14 tackles. Right behind was Bills' linebacker Allen Anderson with 13 and Chiefs' tackle Alvin Ramirez with 12. Defensive guard Mark O'Heir had 12 for Buffalo Grove.

The Chiefs close out their 1973 season Saturday against Hanover Park.

Arnie Jackson is a very special runner

CROSS COUNTRY takes a special kind of boy.

He must go all out, all the time. He lives in a world all his own, secluded in the miraculous battle he must fight inside himself to rise above mediocrity and endure the physical pain needed for success.

Not many sports demand the second-by-second punishment on the body that running the many miles does. Cross country demands mental preparedness as well as physical conditioning and endurance.

It is difficult to imagine any event in the galaxy of sport that is more individual, more self-sustaining or more lonely than that of the long-distance runner.

Schaumburg High School's Arnold Jackson is a long-distance runner, an exceptional runner, that very special kind of boy.

Last Saturday morning in Peoria, Jackson ran his final varsity race in high school cross country. He finished fifth in Illinois, a state that annually showcases some of the finest cross country talent in the United States.

Jackson, who lost only two races this fall, was disappointed. He wanted more. He wanted that state championship, and he didn't think it was an unrealistic goal. He had the credentials.

"Maybe I wasn't ready physically," he said this week. "Mentally, I was, and I like the course. I was in the right frame of mind. The whole race was good except for the last part and then... well, I just don't know... but I wanted that title and thought I could get it."

For Arnie Jackson, it matters not that approximately 300 boys ran in Illinois high school cross country this fall and that he finished as the fifth best, a remarkable achievement. What matters is that he had the confidence he could win and that he was disappointed in the finish.

Success can be measured in many ways. In any analysis Jackson had a successful high school cross country career. He didn't win the state, but he was a winner, a big winner, a youngster whose collection of honors would be the envy of any runner.

He lost only five races in his final two seasons and smashed numerous course records. He finished two years of Mid-Suburban League running undefeated in all meets. As a senior, he easily won the district and sectional titles. He picked up the 11th and fifth place awards in two tries at the state.

And he won more than just races. This soft-spoken 10-year-old won the admiration of everyone he associated with, working hard in a demanding sport, understanding just what it takes to be a winner, and handling his success so very well.

"I owe any success I have had to my God, my mother and father, and my coach," he says.

It takes a special kind of boy. "I really enjoy running. Sure, there were times when I may have thought a little about quitting because I was afraid of losing a race and disappointing the people who were depending on me. And it does take a lot of work, but I've always enjoyed what I was doing."

"I think my mental attitude was better this year than ever before," Jackson says. "As a junior, I would think too much out there. When I just started out as a freshman, I didn't know enough to get scared. Then I started to think as a sophomore. This year I started to concentrate and really had a positive attitude."

Jackson didn't always enjoy running. He can remember times as a youngster when he complained about riding his bicycle or walking to the nearest store.

Kickin' It Around

by BOB FRISK
Sports Editor

"That was when we first moved to Schaumburg from Chicago," he said. "It was in the late 1960s and I didn't know the area around was about a mile and a half away. I didn't like it then, but it's kinda funny to think about all the miles I've run since."

As a high school freshman, Jackson, who had limited exposure to running in grade school, wanted to participate in both football and cross country.

"I remember when my dad and I went to register, we found out it was against the rules to do both. I was disappointed but finally decided on cross country. My dad had run in Chicago and my mother was happy that I didn't take football. Actually, it was a case of if I didn't like the running, I might try football the next year."

Jackson liked the running. He finished 10th in district cross country as a freshman and 40th in the sectional, passed up a shot at the wrestling team ("I was kinda talked out of it") and ran every day in the winter. He was on his way. The hard work was just beginning.

After a spring season of track and field, (2:10 in the 880 yard run, 4:41 in the mile, and 10:17 in the two mile), Jackson went to a running camp in Wisconsin and then to New York to visit his grandmother.

"She knew about my interest in cross country and track and told me she had seen some men running in the neighborhood. This was in Kendall, about 35 miles from Rochester. I made friends with some of them and they got me into some meets out there. I remember one where I ran a 9:43 in the two mile to win, my fastest ever then, and I was so happy I couldn't believe it."

Jackson just kept improving, running steadily to his position of statewide prominence in cross country. He was fourth in the district as a sophomore and 27th in the sectional and qualified for the state in the spring in the two mile run.

"I ran a 9:30 in the district to qualify and got in the fast heat downstate and ran 9:57. But that experience was important to me because it was my first time in any state meet."

After another journey to New York, and over 1,000 miles of summer running, this 5-foot-9½, 135-pounder returned for his junior year at Schaumburg and dominated the Mid-Suburban League before finishing 11th in the state.

He had high hopes for a big track season but injured his leg in a floor hockey class, an injury that was slow in developing, and the outdoor campaign ended in pain, without much fanfare.

"It cleared up after the district was over," Arnie says, "and I just laid off it for awhile. I started going again about the middle of June, running in some summer meets here, and then I went back to the camp in Wisconsin. I was kinda scared when I went. I didn't know how the injury would react, if I'd be okay. But the people there knew what they were talking about when they told me at this stage of my career I didn't have to be that concerned with the number of miles I ran. I had the endurance. The workouts could be short and hard. Everything worked out well."

Although he was disappointed in his fifth place finish in cross country, he is anxious for the track and field season to begin. He is confident he can have a big year and he has set a lofty goal for himself.

"My goal? The national record in the two mile."

Jackson is serious and with this kind of determination a shot at the national mark of 8:40.9 can't be entirely dismissed.

"My coach (Dennis Garber) is going to try to get me in as many big meets as possible, running against the best, and I think that right now I could go out and break nine minutes in the two mile. I know I don't have the times to talk about in track yet, but I did have a 4:19 mile just running cross country this fall. I feel good and because of weight training, my legs are stronger, my body is stronger, and I have more speed. I could run a 56 quarter in cross country while last year I had to strain to break 60 seconds."

Jackson has not achieved his goal of a state title, but he has established himself as one of the finest distance runners in Illinois, a young man with a rewarding past and exciting future.

People may wonder why young men like to run distance races. It is one of the strange ironies of life that those who work the hardest, who subject themselves to the strictest discipline, who give up certain pleasurable things in order to achieve a goal, are the happiest.

These are the buoyant days of their youth, when they can run without weariness, when they can run simply because they love it.

Arnold Jackson loves to run.

UPI state poll

Unbeaten New Trier East and Wheaton North, both 8-0, are one-two in this week's United Press International prep football poll. Once defeated Evanston is third followed by Chicago St. Rita, Belleville West, Rockford East, Deerfield, Herrin, Glenbard West and Tinley Park.

Deerfield, 8-0 overall and 5-0 in league play, will host Glenbrook North tomorrow afternoon for the Central Suburban League title. Glenbrook, the CSL North division champs, carries a 7-1 mark into the game.

Column in magazine

A column by Herald sports editor Bob Frisk that appeared in the Paddock papers last March was reprinted in the latest edition of The Basketball Bulletin, a publication of the National Association of Basketball Coaches of the United States.

Frisk's column critiqued the father-son athletic relationship as discussed by Dr. Lucy Hall, Director of the Achievement Motivation Program of the W. Clement and Jessie V. Stone Foundation in Chicago.

Reg Fleming here

Chicago Cougar hockey star Reggie Fleming will make two appearances at Herald area 7-Eleven stores this Sunday.

Fleming will visit the Arlington Heights store at Hickory and Kensington from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. and the Elk Grove store at 563 Lankmiller Rd. from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Both stores will offer complimentary coffee and slurpees during his visit. Autographed photos and free Cougar buttons will be given away.

Hoffman Commandos

The Hoffman Estates Commandos will play Addison for the championship of the Chicago Suburban Junior Football League at 1 p.m., Sunday, at Elk Grove High School.

Cougar radio network

The WWM-Chicago Cougars Hockey Network will continue coverage of International Amphitheatre home games this Saturday with a broadcast of the Toronto game. A pre-game program begins at 7:15 p.m. at 92.7 FM, followed immediately by the game and post-game comments.

Other games next week are Cleveland (Tues.), Houston (Thurs.) and Toronto (Sat.).

BPAA Texas-bound

The Bowling Proprietors' Association of America has relocated its national headquarters to Arlington, Tex., from Hoffman Estates. The BPAA will operate from temporary facilities until February, 1974, when its new building will be completed.

Les Zikes 25th

Patatine's Les Zikes, the world's greatest non-professional bowler during the early 1960's, has cracked the ABC Tournament 10-year average leaders chart for the first time. He's ranked 25th at 200.27.

Detroit's Bob Strampe repeated as top pin-kicker with a 211.13 mark. He's been on the list eight years.

From campuses nationwide

—Bill Ridgeway of Rolling Meadows is one of 20 frosh vying for positions on the American International College hockey team. A defenseman, he won four letters in high school and plans on majoring in English at AIC. The school is located in Springfield, Mass.

—Harold Taylor, who prepped at Maine North, has been selected as a member of the Lincoln College basketball varsity. He is a freshman.

—Six Herald area athletes are varsity gymnasts at Illinois State University. From Maine East are Bob Baldocchi and Joe Darby. Others include Prospect's Kurt Hendershot, Conant's Dean Miller, Wheeling's Craig Ovesky and Maine West's Robin Ruediger.

—Jack Rossi of Mount Prospect recently played his final varsity football game for Bethel College and Seminary of St. Paul, Minn. An offensive guard and halfback, he won three varsity letters.

Cross-country clinic

A free clinic for high school cross-country coaches will be held from 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m. today in the Science Building lecture hall of Wheaton College.

Among the featured speakers will be United States Olympian Jeff Galloway, currently of the Florida Track Club. He'll be joined by York coach Joe Newton whose Dukies recently won their sixth state title since 1961 and Newton's third straight.

For further information, contact Bill Leach at 996-8538 or 858-5641.

Cage officials' clinic

The second annual Basketball Officials' Clinic will be held from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. next Saturday, Nov. 17, at Proviso West in Hillside. It is sponsored by the Inter-Association Council of Athletic Officials.

A controlled scrimmage by the Proviso West team will allow officials Jean Des Marteau, Nick Gianaris and Jim Harrison to demonstrate floor techniques.

Pre-registration is $4 or $5 at the door. For more information, contact John Mul-larkey at 848-0116 or 531-5066.

Meadows, Fremd get hockey wins

Rolling Meadows, Fremd and Maine South were winners last weekend in Northwest Division play of the 32-team Chicago Metro Hockey League, a non-profit organization.

By identical 3-2 scores, Maine South surpassed Notre Dame and Rolling Meadows beat St. Viator. Meadows had goals by Billy Conway, Bill Wright and Russ Riendeau. Assists were recorded by Steve Voss and Mike Shanley. St. Viator goals were scored by Don Menoni and McLoraine with an assist from McDonald.

Fremd defeated Hersey, 4-2, and Arlington locked up with Palatine in a 6-6 decision.

All Northwest Division games are played on Sundays at the Woodfield Hockey Center. This weekend's schedule shows Arlington vs. Fremd (4:30 p.m.), Palatine vs. Hersey (6 p.m.), Maine South vs. Rolling Meadows (7:30 p.m.) and Notre Dame vs. St. Viator (9 p.m.). Adult admission is $1 with all children under 12 years old admitted free. All proceeds, except rink fees, are returned to the program.

Hoffman completes unbeaten campaign

by MICHAEL McMEEKIN

The Hoffman Hawks wrapped up their season last Friday by winning against Prospect by a narrow margin of 8-6. So the Hawks closed up with their undefeated dream come true.

Dave Lipko was the scorer for Hoffman Estates when in the second quarter, he ran to score the Hawks' touchdown. The extra points were also scored by Lipko.

Coach Bill Gourley of the Hawks said that he was proud in the progress that the team made throughout the year. He also said that the "schedule worked to our benefit."

The Hawks were at an advantage because they played teams with an increasing amount of challenge as the season progressed.

Gourley said that he hopes the team can continue progressing next year. Although Conant put up a good fight, he stated that Prospect was the toughest team of all to beat.

A coupe should be more than a 2-door car. Ours is. The 1974 Mercedes-Benz 280C. Drive one. See what we mean.

At Mercedes Benz, a coupe is not just the 2-door version of another model it's designed as a coupe from the ground up. The 280C is a beautiful example of that kind of engineering.

The 280C's graceful roof line offers rear seat passengers generous headroom, provides the driver with ample rear vision—yet retains the distinctive coupe silhouette.

Body panels are welded to a one piece floor-frame unit. No body bolts to work loose and rattle as in some coupes.

And, of course, 4 wheel disc brakes, fully independent suspension, a double-overhead cam 2.8 liter engine and radi-ally tires are standard equipment in every 280C.

A test drive tells you the whole story—and it's surprisingly easy to arrange. Please call us today. We'll introduce you to the 280C, one of the remarkable machines of Mercedes-Benz.

Arlington Heights man 10th in Road Atlanta

by TOM STEPHANI

After a long season of racing one event stands out as the best.

In road racing it is the Champion Spark Plug Road Racing Classic.

Held at Road Atlanta near Gainesville, Georgia each November, the event determines the National Champions in each of the Sports Car Club of America's (SCCA) 21 different classes.

Ranging from Corvettes and CanAm McLarens to Austin Healey Sprites and Formula Vees, these "run-offs" pit the best cars and drivers from each of the SCCA's geographical divisions. Of the 3,000 licensed racing drivers, only 400 will receive the coveted invitation to this Olympics of Road Racing.

One of those chosen few was Al Johnson of Arlington Heights, who drove his G Production Sprite to a creditable 10th place last weekend at Road Atlanta's 2.5 mile, 12 turn, road course.

Sponsored by the Sun Auto Company of Downers Grove, Johnson finished fourth in the Central Division of the SCCA in G Production in his first year of National Championship Racing.

Although the event is termed as an amateur race, the drivers who make it to the run-offs are professional in every respect but one: They do not make their living by racing cars.

During the week, most racers hold full time jobs ranging from doctors to garage mechanics. On weekends they may tow their racing machines 400 miles to race for those all important National Points which, if they get enough, will earn them an invitation to Atlanta.

With contingency and manufacturers' awards topping $200,000 and more than 40,000 paid spectators, the racing is anything but amateur. Large, factory backed teams compete head to head with independent drivers for the National Championship crowns and the competition is fierce. Racing cars side by side for an entire race with victory determined by hundredths of seconds is not uncommon.

The racing this past weekend in Atlanta lived up to expectations as new champions were made and past champions were defeated.

Cardinal hockey team posts two wins in openers

The Chicago Cardinals professional hockey team started their 1973 season with two victories over the Toronto Spurs by scores of 11-3 and 10-2 last weekend.

Playing before 1,500 fans, the Cardinals outskated and outmuscled the Canadian team which had several hundred Canadians in the audience cheering for victory.

In the game Saturday night right wing Ian Lutes pulled the hat trick by shooting for three goals. His feat was more than duplicated Sunday afternoon when the Cardinals, Chuck Schellenberger scored two goals in the first period and two more in the final period.

The leading goal scorer for the Chicago team is Schellenberger with five goals followed by Jim McClellan, Don Cesarino and Lutes with three each.

The Cardinals' next home games will be at 7:30 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 17 and at 2:30 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 18 against the Ann Arbor Generals.

All of the home games of the Cardinals are being played in the new Randhurst Metro Sports Stadium at Highway 83 and Rand Road in Mount Prospect. For information call 239-3334.

Conant girls notch field hockey title

The Conant girls' field hockey team captured the three-team Midsururban League title by virtue of scoring 14 goals over the regular season. Conant beat Fremd, 5-1, but lost to Schaumburg, 2-1. Schaumburg also beat Fremd, 1-0 to earn a share of the title with Conant, but the Cougars tallied 14 goals to Schaumburg's eight to win the crown.

Schaumburg hockey report

SCHAUMBURG KINGS HOCKEY NEWS

GOLD DIVISION
Kings Miles (ages 7 & 8)
 Elmhurst 3, Schaumburg 1
 The Kings' last toughest test of the year as they squared off against last year's state champions. The game was characterized by hard checking and shooting by Elmhurst. King goalie Mark Shipbach was outstanding against 30 Huskie shots. Brad Sterling scored the Kings' lone goal unassisted.

McArthur Realty Squirts (ages 9 & 10)
 Schaumburg 11, Hoffman Estates 0
 The McArthur Realty Squirts flexed their muscles and completely dominated Hoffman Estates. While the Kings were pouring 27 shots on goal, a splendid defense helped John Marchionis to his first shutout of the season. The scoring parade included hat tricks by Mike Rucinski and Mike Bastone. Tim Courtois pumped in two goals while Doug Parliament, Carl Davis, Dan Brazzila, Jerry Shobadnik, Joe Zeller and Tony DeVita rounded out the scoring with one each.

Assists were made by Carl Davis, 3; Dan Riley, 1; Mike Bastone, 3; Scott McArthur, 3; Tony DeVita, 1; Joe Zeller, 2; Bob Melkerson, 2; Mike Rucinski, 2; Doug Parliament, 1; and Steve Chalk.

Jersey School Metal Free-Wees (ages 11 & 12)
 Schaumburg 3, Hoffman Estates 0
 Goalie Dave Hietanen registered his first shutout of the year. Frank Gourley popped in one for a score and Mitch Borsko struck twice. The checking was tight and the defense kept Hoffman Estates tied up in their zone. The Kings had 25 shots on goal to 5 for Hoffman Estates.

King Panthers (ages 13 & 14)
 Schaumburg 4, Hoffman Estates 1
 A quick off late prevented the Kings from shutting out Hoffman Estates as a pass deflected from a Kings blade into their own net. Otherwise the Kings dominated play with 26 shots on goal to 11 for Hoffman Estates. Dave Dusak scored twice, while other scoring was by Todd Vuoljar, Kurt Kilner and Rusty Powell. Kilner also assisted on one goal. Crata Landis picked up two assists and Paul Donovan assisted once.

Junior Heavy Midgets (ages 15 & 16)
 Schaumburg 3, Hoffman Estates 0
 A tight goaltending effort by Hoffman Estates prevented the Kings 40 shots on goal from being a disaster. Despite the heat applied by the Kings, only two goals were scored. The first came from "Mouse" Pollard with an assist from Cary Dixon. Scott Scholz added the second with assists from Pollard and Cary Dixon.

Campanelli, Inc. Juniors (ages 17-20)

Schaumburg 4, Stearnwood 1
 Powerful Schaumburg downed Stearnwood in a game that could be characterized as Williamson, Glimmer, Bird or bust. Tom Williamson scored a hat trick in the game, and John Glimmer picked up a goal. Steve Bird assisted three times, and Glimmer likewise contributed three assists.

Schaumburg 5, Evanston 3
 In a renewal of an old rivalry, the heat was enough to melt the ice. The Kings had never bested Evanston, but they came mighty close this time. Don Neumann scored the hat trick for the Kings in this game and Steve Bird and John Glimmer each added one. Glimmer also had one assist, as did Steve Golski and John Hebert. Dave Thorsen had two assists in what was a great effort by the entire team.

Schaumburg 4, Des Plaines 3
 The Kings rolled to another victory this past week as their guest was Des Plaines. Don Neumann scored one goal unassisted and another with the help of Steve Golski. Other goals were by Ed Finerman assisted by Neumann and Dave Thorsen, and by Thorsen assisted by Don Neumann. Outstanding in all three of these King efforts was goalie Greg Tatarski.

PURPLE DIVISION

Kings 3, Lake in the Hills 0
 In their best effort to date, the Kings earned their second victory of the season. Unassisted goals were scored by Tony Hrubay, Todd Caudell and Mike Cross. Ken Groszek scored assisted by John Janczak. Shone Caudell registered his first shutout of the season.

Kings Squirts (ages 9 & 10)
 Elmhurst Blue Huskies 4, Schaumburg 2
 The Squirts lost a close contest despite a fine effort put forth by the entire team. Brad Borsko and John Blavin were the goal scorers. Assists were picked up by Scott Gorman and Ed Flynn.

East girls win, 2-0

The Maine East varsity girls' field hockey team won its season finale, 2-0, over Deerfield. Goals were scored by Mary Rafa and Carol Richards. The junior-varsity game ended at 0-0.

Injuries, illness hit Nordics

The Chicago Nordics Midwest Junior "A" hockey team resembled a hospital emergency room by the time they finished their two game trip to St. Cloud and St. Paul this past weekend.

Oliver Stankovsky, Nordics vice president, said nine of the 20 players on the team were unable to compete due to injuries and illness suffered in an 8-4 loss to St. Cloud Saturday and a 9-3 defeat Sunday at the hands of the St. Paul Vulcans, leaders in the Midwest Junior "A" Hockey League.

He said the Nordics were losing only 3-2 going into the final period against St. Paul but the team wore out due to the inability to put in substitutes against a healthy St. Paul squad. He said, however, "The Nordics looked great, but there just were too many injuries."

The injuries included bad backs, an infected elbow, a bashed-in face, several bad knees and the flu.

The Nordics travel to Fargo for games there this Saturday and Sunday nights. Stankovsky added that the Nordics continue to look better with each game as they gain experience against the far more experienced Northern teams.

The Chicago Nordics will return to the Randhurst Metro Sports Ice Stadium in the Randhurst Shopping Center for two games that both start at 7:30 p.m. on Nov. 24 and 25 against the league-leading St. Paul team.

Hersey has the weapons

Scoring first, field position and the home-field advantage are not primary concerns of Hersey. The Huskies have withstood the pressures of playing catch-up football — most notably against Fremd in a crucial game that found Hersey down 7-4 at the half, but on top, 13-7 at the final gun, despite a driving rainstorm.

Hersey is capable of making its own field position. A Zakula bomb or Spicuzza punt has taken the Huskies out of the shadow of their own goal line on many occasions.

And the home-field advantage?

"It makes no difference to us," Gilwa said. "We'll play them in a church parking lot if that's where they want to play."

Physically, Hersey is in tip-top shape. That means that Gilwa will be dressing close to 60 performers for the showdown and will be able to employ two completely separate platoons on offense and defense.

"We've stressed all phases of our game in practice — blocking, tackling, kicking, passing, running, returning — and the kids are really practicing with enthusiasm," Gilwa said.

"They've got a very good attitude and the atmosphere of our scrimmages has been snappy execution and good popping.

We run them after practice and there's nobody dragging. We're not flat or stale. It's never a long season when you're in the position we're in."

But it is for the barbers.

Elk Grove hockey

The Elk Grove Village Amateur Hockey Association blizzards won two games last week, defeating Streamwood 6-0 in a conference game and Crystal Lake 7-1 in a nonconference match.

Against Streamwood, goalie Steve Cimino turned in another fine performance and scored a shutout.

Fred Musnicki scored the first goal unassisted. Mark Rodseth scored the second assisted by Bob Brunn and Joe Danca. Mark Rodseth scored the third assisted by Tony Saltaraki and Gary Pratschard. Mike Tucker tallied the fourth goal assisted by Tony Saltaraki and Tony Saltaraki scored the fifth assisted by Gary Pratschard and Bob Brunn. John Campbell scored the sixth goal assisted by Bill Suparis and Mark Rodseth.

Against Crystal Lake, Danca scored the first goal assisted by Rodseth and Pratschard. Danca scored the second goal assisted by Rodseth and Pratschard. Rodseth scored the third goal assisted by Pratschard and Suparis. And Suparis scored the fourth assisted by Campbell and Tucker. Pratschard scored the fifth goal assisted by Rodseth and Brunn. Campbell scored the sixth assisted by Tucker and Saltaraki. Saltaraki scored the seventh assisted by Campbell and Suparis.

Next games are at Woodfield Hockey Center Tuesday, Nov. 13, starting at 8:00.

Grove counts on defense

likson — they put superb pass rush on Schaumburg's fine quarterback, Dave Hill.

The big boys up front will also be thoroughly tested by speedy Spicuzza as well as Zakula, Jeff Forster and Mark Krause. This is also easily the best backfield Elk Grove's seen in some time.

One area coach, naturally from the North Division, picks Hersey to score five touchdowns. Such an outburst hasn't happened since Super Bowl I when Arlington beat Prospect in the battle of unbeaten, 35-7.

Elk Grove does have an offense. It resembles the Chicago Bears in that it can score, but seldom explodes. Of the 14 touchdowns the Grove's scored, two came from the defense with many others being set up on defensive plays.

The Grenadiers have averaged just under 18 points a game, twice being shut out. Meanwhile, the Huskies have rolled to just over 32 points a game. To win, the Grove must keep it close.

Quarterback Jim Hammers is way down the list when it comes to percentage passing in the league — .358. However, he's been known to complete the big pass when needed. He has been steady in his other signalcalling duties.

The bulk of the offensive punch lies with Weadley and his fullback running-mate, Jim Goggin. They've accounted for 1181 of Elk Grove's 1529 yards rushing.

As for the head coach's feelings coming into this game, Schnake had this to say:

"I think most people recognize that they (Huskies) are very talented, very explosive and play very good defense (limiting the opposition to 9.2 a game).

"Arv Herstedt (Palatine's coach) said he couldn't find any weaknesses. Boy, I don't see many there either.

"I think they're better (than in former years). They score a lot more (just 17 points shy of Arlington's all-time total of 262) and are much more dangerous.

"I could only base it on one game," he continued, speaking of Zakula against Rolling Meadows. "But he looked just great. A year makes a heck of a difference in a high school kid. They all looked great, didn't they?"

Since such a fine team with a near perfect record (7-1) is coming, do you have to play the perfect game, coach?

"It will have to be perfect. I would say so," he added.

Elk Grove's defense versus Hersey's offense — a perfect matchup.

Small church groups have influence

by LOUIS CASSELS

The absolute freedom of religious choice guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution has led to an astounding diversity of churches, denominations, cults and sects in America. There are today more than 250 organized U.S. religious bodies of more-than-local scope.

Some, while relatively small in numbers, have had large influence on American history. The Religious Society of Friends, better known as the Quaker movement, has fewer than 150,000 members. But one of them now is President of the United States. One of the 13 original American colonies, Pennsylvania, was established by Quakers who fled England in quest of religious freedom.

Simplicity of life and a strong emphasis on pacifism are historic hallmarks of Quaker faith. Quaker theology stresses the doctrine of "The Inner Light," which holds that God is ever present within each human mind and heart, and can be approached and experienced directly by anyone who sincerely seeks Him.

Some branches of the Quaker movement, particularly in the Far West, over the years have become virtually indistinguishable from evangelical Protestant denominations. It is from such a Quaker group that Richard M. Nixon comes.

CLOSELY RELATED to the Quakers, historically and in their emphasis on pacifism and simplicity, are the various "Brethren" and Mennonite bodies.

The Brethren were originally German Pietists. Their first churches in the United States were established in Pennsylvania in the early 18th Century. Today there are at least seven different groups, of which the largest is the Church of the Brethren with about 185,000 members.

The Mennonite movement, which originated in Switzerland at the time of the Protestant Reformation, came to America with early German immigrants to Pennsylvania. It remains strongest in that state, but now has branches in other states including Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kansas, the Dakotas, Virginia and South Carolina.

There are about 250,000 Mennonites altogether, but they are divided into 26 different groups, ranging from small-but colorful bodies such as the Old Order Amish to the well-organized and comparatively modern Mennonite Church.

ANOTHER RELATIVELY small body, which like the Quakers includes many prominent Americans in its membership, is the Christian Science movement. Founded at Boston by Mary Baker Eddy in 1879, its distinctive doctrine is that all reality is essentially good because it was created by a Benevolent God.

The corollary is that the evil and pain which people think they perceive in the world must be essentially unreal — an illusion which can be dispelled by spiritual insight. This is what Christian Science healing seeks to do. It is not "miracle working" or magical mumbo-jumbo, but the application of a profoundly sincere belief in the supremacy of mind over matter.

Like Christian Science, the Unity movement was founded in the late 19th Century by a woman, Myrtle Fillmore, who believed she had been healed of serious illness through prayer. From its headquarters at Unity Village, near Kansas City, Mo., it sends pamphlets and books on spiritual healing and "practical mysticism" to members of 288 affiliated groups throughout the United States. Unity services are held regularly in New York's Carnegie Hall, drawing large congregations. Detroit has a Unity temple that seats 1,600 worshippers.

Four important U.S. denominations with a total membership of about 700,000 trace their ancestry to the Dutch Reformed Church founded in the Netherlands during the 16th Century by followers of John Calvin. The American offspring of this ancient Protestant body are, in order of size, the Reform Church in America, the Christian Reformed Church, the Netherlands Reformed Congregations and the Protestant Reformed Churches in America.

They came to America with the first

Dutch settlers and naturally, gained their earliest foothold in the Dutch colony of New Amsterdam, which later became New York. Today, the largest concentration of Reformed congregations is found in Michigan.

NUMEROUS RELIGIOUS groups have the name "Church of God" in their titles. Three of the largest have their headquarters in Cleveland, Tenn., where the movement originated in the late 19th Century. All Churches of God are Pentecostal in orientation, emphasizing the necessity of personally experiencing the presence and activity of the Holy Spirit. They also take a strong interest in the Second Coming of Christ, which many regard as imminent.

An offshoot of this movement is the Worldwide Church of God, founded in 1933 and still headed by West Coast radio evangelist Herbert W. Armstrong. It claims only 75,000 members in 250 congregations, but its magazine, Plain Truth, has a circulation of more than 2 million, and contributions brought in by the radio and television preaching of Armstrong and his handsome son, Garner Ted, have made this quite a wealthy organization.

The Church of the Nazarene, which has about 370,000 members in the United States, sometimes is lumped erroneously with Pentecostal groups. Actually, it is the largest of the so-called "holiness" churches, which emphasize John Wesley's doctrine of "entire sanctification." This doctrine holds that every Christian should strive for perfect holiness in this life.

The Baha'i Faith is a syncretistic religion that seeks to achieve universal brotherhood of man through finding common denominators of truth in all religions. It originated in the Middle East in the 19th Century. The first Baha'i Temple in America was built at Wilmette, Ill., in 1912. The movement has had a rapid growth in this country during recent decades, and now has about 2,500 congregations scattered widely across America.

ONE OF AMERICA'S most widely respected religious bodies is the Salvation Army. Organized along quasi-military lines, it sends its "troops" into daily battle against poverty, suffering and despair among the poorest of the poor in city and rural slums.

The blue-uniformed Christian soldiers of the Salvation Army preach their fundamentalist Protestant gospel on street-corners and in modest auditoriums. They provide food, clothing, shelter and loving concern to alcoholics and outcasts, as well as to impoverished families, through nearly 8,000 local service centers. The extensive humanitarian work of the Salvation Army is made possible by contributions from admiring non-members — and by the heroic sacrifices of the members who live on minuscule allowances. ## Israel guards Christian shrines

JERUSALEM (UPI) — For the first time in centuries, the Orthodox, Armenian and Roman Catholic churches are cooperating willingly and efficiently on restoring the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, one of Christianity's most venerated shrines.

The ancient building, once rotting and in danger of collapse, now is structurally sound, although repairs still must continue for several years.

As in past times, a Moslem still holds the keys of the main door to stop Christians squabbling over the shrine.

But an Israeli policeman also stands at the door of this and other Christian holy places.

Premier Golda Meir earlier this year, thanked her for the care which Israel is taking of Christian holy places, the Vatican has not relaxed its demand for an internationally guaranteed special statute for Jerusalem's Christians.

But the Israelis are not likely to go along with the call for a special statute. According to a foreign ministry spokesman, "We are definitely against granting a special status for any part of the population. There is no need for such a status, and to create one would be to create apartheid. There are equal rights and duties here and there is full freedom of religion, worship and education."

Fall Festival

Lake Carroll isn't just a big 600 acre lake. It's over 5000 acres of the most beautiful countryside in Illinois. The rolling, wooded hills stretch as far as the eye can see... all the way to the horizon. And right now, they're putting on an autumn show just for you. Oak and hickory, maple, even dogwood, they're painted in a gorgeous array of colors for just a short period of time. That is why we are having our Fall Festival with good food, good times and a photo contest that you can enter. Best of all, everything is FREE. We just want you to see the other GREAT LAKE, Lake Carroll.

Take A Picture Win A Prize!

During our fall festival you can win one of ten prizes for the picture you take at Lake Carroll. First prize is a $100 Savings Bond and five $25 Savings Bonds. All prizes will be awarded on December 1st. We'll furnish the camera and the film for you to use and keep. There is no obligation whatsoever. However, only married couples are eligible, and all photos entered become the property of Lake Carroll.

We'll Even Give You The Camera And Film Absolutely Free

The camera you receive will be ready to use. It's the Snapshooter. And you'll be amazed at the quality of photos you'll get when you use it. A helpful hint: Steady does it.

Plus . . . Food and Refreshments Oldtime Movies Live Entertainment Horses! Horses! Horses!

Upon arrival at Lake Carroll you will be welcomed at our reception center where there are lots of things to do. You can eat and listen to live music, or watch W. C. Fields, or go horseback riding, and even visit our barnyard zoo, it's a favorite with the children. Lake Carroll will have Free Pumpkins for all the kids (young and old). FREE Pumpkin Pie and Apple Cider, too. Finally, a Lake Carroll representative will tour the area with you while you take photos. You'll see why so many area residents are choosing Lake Carroll to be their family fun center.

It's the nicest thing we could ever do for your kids!
School is out fun is in, this weekend

Countryside market

A shopper's delight

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Winter is here and Christmas is near. How do I know? Countryside Art Center's annual Designer-Craftsmen Market opened last weekend.

A striking treasureland of handcrafted, contemporary items to decorate the home or wear as personalized fashion, the market offers holiday shoppers on the lookout for the unique, a headstart on perplexing gift lists. (More often than not, visitors also find a reason to splurge on themselves).

Yet even if no one on your present list would appreciate something as unusual as Jayme Curley's ceramic piece, "four teeth biting a potato," there is no harm in just looking and, indeed, to miss this exhibit would be most unfortunate. Take an hour some afternoon just to browse through the downstairs gallery. You won't be sorry for the fanciful experience.

IN ADDITION to elaborate and colorful wall hangings, paintings and glass and ceramic table sculptures and decorations, there are also stitchery creations, handwoven pillows, smocks and handbags fashioned from handpainted material.

Leather handbags and belts are geared to the needs of holiday shoppers as well as a wide line of jewelry including gold, silver and brass and more massive pendants made from beads, wood and feathers.

Reasonably priced and appropriate for persons who have joined the house plant brigade is a vast array of ceramic hanging pots.

There are petite and dainty felt ornaments and to stuff stockings, ceramic buttons and small packages of naturally dyed yarns.

AND, OF COURSE, plenty of dolls abound. It is the theme of this year's market and members of Countryside are sharing their own creativity released through a special doll workshop held last month at the gallery in preparation for the show.

Altogether about 65 craftsmen are participating. Addresses range from throughout the county though the majority of exhibitors are residents of the Midwest.

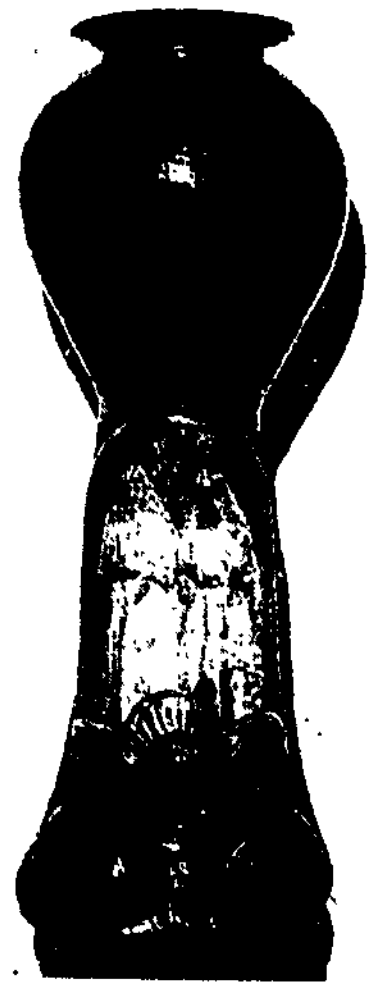

This is the fourth consecutive year

Countryside has hosted its Designer-Craftsmen Market. Each year it expands, growing from the one upstairs room of the center's former facilities across the street to the entire first floor of present quarters at 414 N. Vall, Arlington Heights. It began as a sidelight to regular monthly exhibits. It is now a major event in itself.

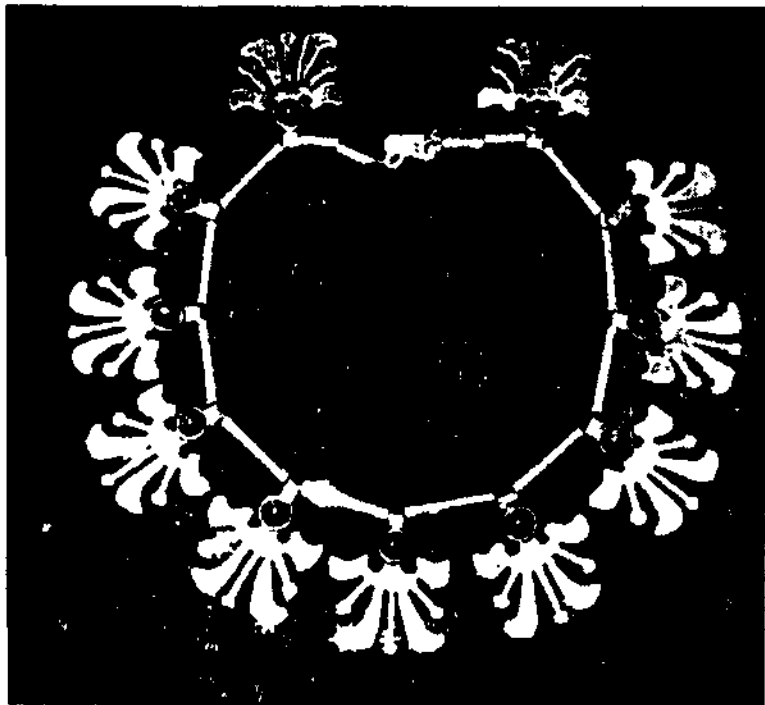

PAT SMITH, who has been with the craft show from the very beginning, began organizing this show early last spring. Names of exhibitors are gathered through Countryside's own contacts, fairs taking place locally throughout the summer, and art departments of major and area universities. Craftsmen familiar with the show now seek out the gallery.

There's not a single item displayed that one couldn't do without, but then again . . . what a great conversational piece anything would make. Here, impracticality counts.

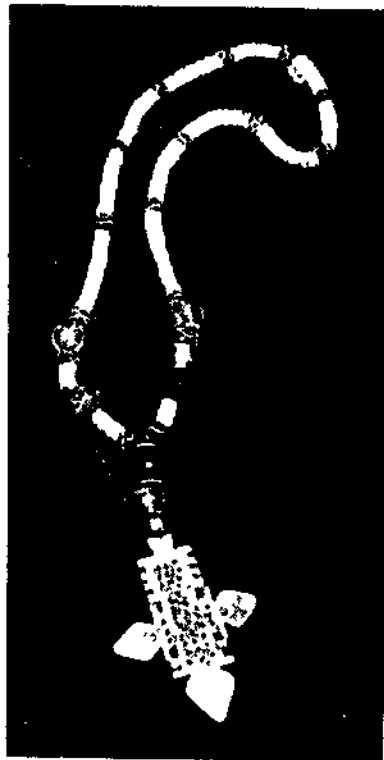

The market continues through Jan. 17 of the new year. Hours are 1-5 p.m. Tuesday through Sundays.

THIS CERAMIC PIECE was designed by Marc Sijan of Milwaukee.

COUNTRYSIDE'S Designer-Craftsmen Market features a vast array of unusual jewelry like this necklace fashioned by Ted Trendel of Chicago.

ONE OF A KIND, Gary Whitbeck is the craftsman of this necklace.

MRS. PAT SMITH arranges some of the dolls made by individual members of Countryside Art Center to feature this year's "doll" theme. The necklace worn by Mrs. Smith was made by Gary Whitbeck.

WILLIAM HEINEMANN of Rolling Meadows High School took a first in printmaking in Harper College high school art exhibit. Art is on exhibit now at Harper.

Family gift bazaar

Crafting for Christmas

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Donna Lichner has had Christmas on her mind for a long time . . . ever since Dec. 23 of last year. And so have her husband, Robert, and their four children.

But that's because the Lichners annually convert their living room into a den of small crafts. A very well organized, family operation, the Lichners work together all year to amass enough gift items to sell at their own home bazaar which opens this weekend.

"Since last Christmas, we've worked almost daily," said Mrs. Lichner, who, in addition to her education in art, relies on her past experiences as a flower arranger.

MRS. LICHNER creates most of the actual Christmas decorations including centerpieces, wreaths and wall hangings. She mounts small bouquets of straw flowers on plaques, crochets doll clothes and constructs shadow boxes that highlight the antics of Raggedy Ann and Andy.

"I like to make some things that don't have to be packed away right after Christmas," she said.

Her husband paints in his spare time and canvases of wildlife, his main interest, line the walls of the front room. During the summer months the entire family accompanies him on weekends while he exhibits in local art fairs.

The three oldest children, aged 12, 10 and 8, help their mother with the Christmas ornaments and also, on their own, design "little people" using marbles as bases and felt scraps and shells for trim.

"WE EXPANDED TO include the children. They wanted to become involved, too," continues Mrs. Lichner. Even her father, who is retired, helps out by cutting wood into the appropriate sizes for the flower and vue d'optique plaques.

This is the second consecutive year for the Lichner's holiday bazaar. Because of last year's success, they decided to repeat the venture.

To make sure her decorations are up-to-date Mrs. Lichner takes time out to browse in area gift shops.

"This year it's plaids, and red and white gingham," she said pointing to her straw wreaths that are highlighted by elves and bold plaid ribbons. Gingham shows up in many of her shadow boxes.

Hours of the Lichner bazaar are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. tomorrow and Sunday and again Nov. 17, 18, 23, 24 and 25. Their home is located at 2105 S. Rohlfing Road in Palatine just south of Arlington Park Towers.

ALL READY FOR Christmas. Many of this year's holiday centerpieces feature bright, bold plaids in addition to the traditional colors of red and green.

Harper displays student art

Winners of the high school art exhibit sponsored by Harper College were announced this week.

A first place in painting was won by Sue Sartian of Barrington High School. A Glenbrook North student, Chris Kowall, placed second in painting.

William Heinemann of Rolling Meadows High School received a first in printmaking. Second in the same category was awarded to Ernesto Fernandez of Glenbrook North High School.

Bill Meurer, also of Glenbrook North, took a first in photography and Jack Reynolds of Barrington High School placed second.

Ann Woodard of Forest View High School received a first place award in drawing and Jeff Petterson of Prospect High School was named second.

The public can view the exhibition, which is on display through Nov. 21, in the lower level of the campus Learning Resources Center, Building F, during college hours.

Four entries were accepted from each high school within the Harper College district. Max Von Isser, professor of art at Elgin Community College, judged the student show.

'40 Carats' at Guild Playhouse Nov. 16

A new angle on the generation gap is revealed in "Forty Carats," the Broadway comedy success opening a six-performance run at Guild Playhouse in Des Plaines, Friday, Nov. 16.

Bert Miller of Evanston plays the central role of Ann Stanley in the Des Plaines Theatre Guild production, which proposes to bridge the age span with an August to May marriage. Mrs. Miller won DPTG's Best Actress award last spring for her performance as Eleanor of Aquitaine in "The Lion in Winter." She was directed in that drama by Nancy Kote, who is again in the director's chair for "Forty Carats."

This comedy is about a romance of an insistent Romeo of 22, played by Tom Prehls of Wheeling, with a lady admitting to 40. The same two French playwrights, Barillet and Gredy, who wrote the comedy hit "Cactus Flower," are the authors of "Forty Carats," which has been adapted from its original Parisian version into a thoroughly American comedy by Jay Allen.

OTHERS IN THE cast include Jean Kay of Mount Prospect as Ann's socially ambitious mother, Maud Hayes, and Tom Ventress of Arlington Heights as her ex-husband but still good friend, Billy Boylan. Ventress directed the Guild's opening production, "South Pacific," and is turning actor for this second play which will run Nov. 16, 17, 23, 24 and Dec. 1 and 8.

Ann Stanley's 17-year-old daughter, Trina, is being played by Christine Gysler of Des Plaines, fresh from her role as the native girl, Liat, in "South Pacific."

Another DPTG director-turned-actor in "Forty Carats" is Ken MacCowan of Glenview, to be seen as the Texas millionaire, Eddy Edwards, who is also in pursuit of the fashionable New York real estate agent, Ann Stanley.

Parents of the 22-year-old Romeo, Peter Latham, will be portrayed by Dick Galloway of Park Ridge and Betty Kandlbinder of Palatine. Other cast members are A. J. Riegler, Des Plaines, as Mrs. Margolin; Helen Motycka of Carpentersville as Mrs. Adams; and Mike Sims of Wauconda as Pat.

Tickets may be reserved by calling the box office, 296-1211, between noon and 8 p.m. any day except Sunday. Curtain time for all six performances is 8:30 p.m. at Guild Playhouse, 620 Lee St., Des Plaines.

Collecting

with Grace Carolyn

A few weeks ago I journeyed with the Salt Creek Questers on a tour of the Pullman Community, located south in Chicago, at 111th and Cottage Grove. The tour starts in the park, which faces the old Florence Hotel, a fading and tired Queen Anne style structure built as a showplace for visitors to Pullman, housing in her day thousands of foreign guests and dignitaries. "The Grand Old Lady of 111th Street" is in a state of slightly decadent elegance, as she sits with peeling paint and sagging verandas, reflecting on long ago pleasanter days.

It is with a mixture of admiration and pity that one tours Pullman, which became one man's dream of what an ideal town should be, conceived with elaborate planning and attention to detail, but leaving out the essentials of human rights. George Pullman modeled his town after the same idea in the town of Saltaire, in Northern England, which he visited in 1873. Sir Titus Salt, its founder, was an early advocate of Fourierism, the philosophy of keeping workers happy with pleasant surroundings, good working conditions, and a completely organized society. While Sir Titus respected his workers as people, George Pullman created a feudal society in which the workers were considered his property.

GEORGE PULLMAN built his model town just as he built his Pullman Sleeping Cars, to be orderly, clean and with an appearance of luxury. The town was an advertisement to promote the company, which had a monopoly of the railway sleeping and dining car business in America.

Architect Solon Beman was responsible for most of the designs of Pullman, including the typical row houses with separate entrances and varying front elevations. Beman believed in the town and felt that George Pullman was justified in his idea of "practical philanthropy."

which would guarantee larger profits with fewer problems from his workers. We were told by the tour guide that Beman felt, however, that the town should be named for himself as architect. Pullman told him they would compromise by using part of both their names, the first syllable of his and the last of Beman's, and that the town would be called "Pullman."

Although some newer construction and remodeling have changed the fronts of some of the row houses, many buildings remain as originally constructed, and it is fascinating to note the various details of design which were used to vary the style of the buildings for a pleasing effect. Many people of Pullman are descendants of the workers who struck for better conditions in 1894, thereby setting off a reaction of labor unrest throughout the country.

THE TOUR TAKES in numerous notable buildings including the Administration Hall and Clock Tower, the Market Square, the Casino, the stables, the Arcade, Greystone Mansion and the Greenstone Church. The tour decent from the Chicago School of Architecture Foundation presents a lively and informative discussion with background material on Pullman which makes the approximately two-hour tour most enjoyable.

Whatever your opinion of paternalism, labor problems and George Pullman, America's first totally planned company town is a part of the Chicago area's history no one should miss. The cost is a reasonable $1 and a group may arrange to be conducted through Pullman by calling the architectural school at 312/326-1393.

If you have questions, please write, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope, to Grace Carolyn Dahlberg, in care of Paddock Publications, Box 289, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

The Book Stall

EDITED BY
Playboy Press, $7.95

The time, 1892. The place, a stuffy courtroom in New Bedford, Mass., deep in the heart of puritan New England. Thirty-two-year-old Lizzie Borden, the well respected daughter of a well respected man, is on trial for the bloody axe murders of her father and step-mother.

Most of the evidence pointed to Lizzie as the murderer. She was the only person known to be in the house at the time of the crime; she had convinced the maid to go on an errand. Lizzie hated her stepmother and with her father dead, she stood to inherit a comfortable fortune. The head of a hatchet, exactly the length of the gashes found on the victims, was found buried in ashes in the basement cellar by police.

Still Lizzie was acquitted. Her lawyer kept asking the jury, "Does she look like a murderer?" Apparently she didn't.

"THE TRIAL OF Lizzie Borden . . . was the most sensational murder trial of the 19th century in America," writes Richard E. Rubenstein. "Some 80 years later, children skipping rope in Los Angeles or New York could be heard chanting, 'Lizzie Borden took an axe, gave her mother forty whacks. . . .'"

Rubenstein opens his anthology with the Borden case, skillfully taking advantage of people's morbid fascination with murder. Then the editor switches the mood, giving the reader a taste of other examples of stimulating courtroom combat, examples that deal just as seriously with the questions of law and morality: an obscenity case, a libel suit, political trials and military court martials.

The cases are recounted by experts — lawyers, judges and reporters who were there. Chicago Seven attorney William Kunstler recreates the savage attacks some of them made by a then obscure congressman named Richard Nixon, in the perjury trial of Alger Hiss; Justice Michel A. Musmanno tells of the trial of war criminal Adolph Eichmann, a trial in which Musmanno himself testified for the prosecution.

REBEL LAWYER Melvin Belli, who "hangs his membership plaque to the American Bar Association upside down in his bathroom," according to authors Albert Averback and Charles Price, talks of how he fought his case against Cutter Laboratories for producing a polio vaccine that backfired. Charles Rembar writes about his defense of John Cleland's "Memoirs of a Woman of Pleasure" (Fanny Hill) in an obscenity trial, one of a series that established the American public's right to read sexually stimulating books.

Among the other cases covered are the trial of Al Capone and the pretty shaky evidence that put the gangster behind bars for tax evasion and the court martial of Lt. William Calley.

"Great Courtroom Battles" is not a book for students of the law; it does not delve into technicalities or the intricacies of legal technique. Instead Rubenstein, associate professor of political science at Roosevelt University in Chicago and a lawyer, has chosen selections that give easy-to-read descriptions of the crime, highlights of the testimony and eventually, the verdict.

Some of those verdicts may surprise you: as in the Borden case, the jury's finding doesn't always seem to correspond with the evidence. It's books like this one that makes you wonder: does it really matter if a defendant is guilty or innocent as long as he has a skillful lawyer?

—Karen Blecha

THE TOWER

David McKay Company $7.95

Think about it as you drive to work Monday morning, as you hit the Kennedy Expressway and you see the Sears Tower rise up against the horizon. The guy who made the drawings and inspected the wiring and checked the joists is human just like the rest of us.

Richard Martin Stern's novel, "The Tower," tells the story of architectural nurturing and workmanship in the tallest and most sophisticated building in the world that is doomed by greed, kickbacks, shoddy construction and inspection payoffs.

All this sounds rather routine with today's FHA scandals, indictments of building developers and local officials. But for this to happen to a building of this magnitude (125 stories high), in the heart of a metropolitan area, seems rather remote, we hope.

Stern's book is entertaining and exciting but falls short of its professed goal of making the massive building a living character with almost human qualities in order that the reader empathize with its imminent and irreversible destruction.

STERN TELLS THE events of a single day, beginning with the dedication of the Tower. He unfolds the characters through the ceremonies where he introduces ambassadors, a governor, millionaires and waiters, who find themselves caught in the peak of the building, many whose fate is sealed by the ravaging fire that climbs floor by floor, so quickly that not all can be rescued by a special breeches buoy hung from the tower to an adjacent building.

There is at least one of Stern's characters who seems totally realistic. Bent Armitage, the governor of the state, who takes charge of hundreds of hysterical men and women who are trapped. It is he who holds the group together, who keeps sanity in the face of death. His qualities are suited to this role and he has an insight into the Tower and buildings like it.

Armitage tells the mayor: "Your city is breaking up anyway, new poverty is moving in and solid middle class support moving out. In not too long you'll have left only people living in penthouses and riding in limousines, and people living in slums mugging each other in the streets and subways. . . . What I'm saying is that our brand new shining beautiful World Tower is not a sign of progress at all; it's a sign of retrogression. . . ."

STERN'S BOOK makes for interesting, sometimes even spellbinding reading, but often his characterization except for Armitage seems artificial. He injects people who are all too brave in the face of death, and all too willing to dance and drink and philosophize while the building burns beneath them.

There also are subplots and situations which seem to fit more appropriately in a daytime television soap opera. For example Nat Wilson, the man who is responsible for the on-the-job work at the Tower has a wife who is involved with the man who is partially responsible for the building's destruction by endorsing substandard workmanship.

But then, possibly, by bringing in these relationships Stern will make his book as popular as the daytime dramas.

Playback

by Tom Von Malder

Incredibly, each new Who album is better than the last and that puts them light years ahead of any other rock and roll band. Their newest "Quadrophenia" (MCA Records) is an album sure to be copied again and again as was their earlier trend-setting "Tommy."

Like "Tommy," "Quadrophenia" is billed as a rock opera of sorts. Unlike "Tommy," "Quadrophenia" has a simpler plot and much more sophisticated music.

Pete Townshend, whom I have called a genius before, wrote all of "Quadrophenia." What a marvelous confirmation of his genius.

The plot, which really isn't told that much through the music, but rather through some liner notes — is all about teenage life in Britain in the mid-60s. The hero, Jimmy, is a mod (one type of street gang) and he has go-ins with rockers (the other type). And there are all the other frustrations of being a teenager.

The music begins after our mod hero has gotten himself stranded on an island. What's happening is he's thinking about his life: "With my life flashing before me. Only it isn't flashing, it's crawling. Now it's just the bare bones of what I am."

THOSE "BARE BONES" are the four parts of Jimmy's character. Each member of the Who becomes one of those parts — the tough guy or helpless dancer, the romantic, the lunatic and the beggar or hypocrite. Townshend has written a theme for each of the four parts of Jimmy's character and these themes open the album, then flow throughout the work. Sometimes these themes emerge powerfully and combine as in the title song and "The Rock."

Some of Townshend's best songs have been written for "Quadrophenia." To name a few, I'd include "3:15," "Love Reign O'er Me," "Is It In My Head?" and "I've Had Enough." The band's playing is its best ever with Townshend including a variety of instrumentation, one being a nicely handled synthesizer. Lead singer Roger Daltrey is stunning, especially on some not-so-easy-to-sing songs, such as "The Punk Meets the Godfather."

There's enough of the old Who here to make parts sound familiar. However, it is the band's quantum leap to some future where rock has indeed become an art form that astounds. This has to be the album of this year and many years to come.

ALSO RECOMMENDED: "Lo & Behold" (Sire Records) by Dennis Coulson. Dixie Dean, Tom McGuinness and Hughie Flint. This album is one of those overlooked joys you stumble across occasionally. Released in England more than a year ago, only recently was it put out here.

All the songs are written by Bob Dylan, with four from 1963-64. Some have never before been recorded. The producer is Manfred Mann, the British rocker who is a greater admirer of Dylan's.

The music is done simply, but powerfully and the vocals are steady. Particularly fine are versions of "Open the Door, Homer," "Let Me Die In My Footsteps," "Lay Down Your Weary Tune" and "The Death of Emmett Till." As a bonus, the lyrics are printed on the album cover.

"Early Treasures" (Bell Records). These are 11 of Donovan's earliest recordings — all from the Janus label. With his often rougher voice, Donovan comes across as a much more powerful, convincing singer and poet in his songs like "Catch the Wind," "Colours" and "Hey Gyp."

M&S auditions for 'Night Watch'

Members of Masque and Staff meet Monday, 8:30 p.m., at the Elk Grove Village Public Library. Tryouts for the theater guild's next production, "Night Watch," will be conducted following the meeting. There are parts for five men and four women.

Rehearsals for "Night Watch" will begin the last week in November. Scheduled dates of production are Jan. 18, 19, 23 and 26 at Dempster Junior High School, Mount Prospect.

Country Store two years old

Visitors to the Museum Country Store, 110 W. Fremont, Arlington Heights, will be offered cake and coffee today and tomorrow to celebrate the store's second birthday.

On Nov. 11, 1971, the Historical Society of Arlington Heights opened the store on the ground floor of the former Muller soda pop factory. It retains the flavor of yesterday with its brick floor and hand-painted window shades. But instead of all the trappings relating to pop-bottling, the walls now hold antiques, collectibles and handcrafts sold on consignment. Penny candy jars on the counter entice young customers into the atmosphere of "olden days."

Approximately 350 persons supply the shop with merchandise now, according to Lewis Smith, who manages it for the Historical Society with his wife, Helen. Proceeds support the museum buildings, which include the Frederick Muller home built in 1862 at 500 N. Vail and the coach house and log cabin behind it. There is also an exhibit hall on the second floor of the pop factory building.

From next Tuesday until Christmas the Country Store will be open Tuesdays through Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Hours of the other museum buildings are: Wednesday 2-4 p.m.; Saturday 1-4 p.m.; Sunday 2-5 p.m.

Art show judge

Michael Brown, assistant professor of art at Harper College, will judge entries in the indoor art fair at Buffalo Grove Mall Shopping Center, Dundee and Arlington Heights Roads in Buffalo Grove, this weekend.

The art fair, free to the public, is open from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. tomorrow and from 10 to 5 on Sunday.

You're Invited to the grand opening of a romantic island.

No hats, horns or balloons. But we can promise you a beautiful introduction to a superb, new dining experience. Listen to the distant, silvery sound of a tropical waterfall while you tempt yourself with an exotic appetizer. Relax in the midst of primitive colors and thatched textures. Enjoy a dinner of delicate Chicken Honolulu, zesty Pepper Beef Tahiti or anyone of our extraordinary entrees. All exquisitely prepared in the flame of an ancient recipe.

End your evening with coconut honey ice cream, fresh pineapple topped with flaming rum or, if you dare, passion fruit sherbet. Kona Kai. It's not just a great restaurant. It's a romantic island. A feast for your senses.

Entr'acte

Watercolorist Thelma Spain of Des Plaines is currently being featured in a one-woman show at the Bank of Rolling Meadows in the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center.

Fourteen recent works by Mrs. Spain are being displayed in the bank through Nov. 26.

Shore life, particularly the dunes and gulls, is Mrs. Spain's favorite subject matter. She enjoys capturing the muted, misty atmosphere she often observed in the early morning along the shores of Toms River, N. J., her former home.

Mrs. Spain has participated in juried shows at Golf Mill, Woodfield, Randhurst and Edens Plaza. She is now serving in her second year as president of Des Plaines Art Guild.

JOHN KNUDSEN, associate professor of art at Harper College, currently has an exhibition of his works featured at the University of Illinois in Champaign.

The display of 50 paintings and prints will continue through Nov. 30 in the Illinois Memorial Union art gallery.

Several of the works have been exhibited at the Art Institute of Chicago during the last four "Chicago and Vicinity" exhibitions. Other pieces were completed this summer.

A Palatine resident, Knudsen holds a master's degree in painting and printmaking from the State University of Iowa. He has exhibited in many national and regional shows and has been featured in one-man shows around the country.

Knudsen will be exhibiting works during January at Luther College, Decorah, Iowa.

During the spring semester, Knudsen will be on sabbatical leave for study in Paris under Stanley William Hayter, a leader in contemporary printmaking techniques.

Knudsen's work is handled by North American Artists' Association in Rolling Meadows.

A PLENIGLASS painting exhibit by Norm Siegel is being presented Sunday, 1 to 8 p.m., in the clubhouse of Village in the Park.

The apartment complex is located two and a half miles west of Woodfield Shopping Center on Golf Road in Schaumburg.

THE NOVEMBER exhibitor in the Art Corner of Des Plaines National Bank is Marj Richards of Glenview.

Mrs. Richards, president of the Artists Guild of Chicago, will be at the bank tomorrow, 9 a.m. until noon, to do portrait sketches, her specialty.

Her collection of works on view through Nov. 30 includes oils and watercolors. She also creates handcrafted jewelry.

A graduate of Northwestern University and the American Academy of Art, she has also studied at the Art Institute of Chicago where she is currently a staff assistant. She also offers art instruction and illustrated lectures concerning art and art history.

Artist to attend gallery opening

Dina Larot, a Viennese artist currently earning wide critical acclaim throughout Europe, will be in Arlington Heights Sunday to open the first United States exhibition of her paintings and sketches.

The special Larot show begins Sunday at 1:30 p.m. and continues through Nov. 30 at Joseph Schneller Co., 17 S. Dunton Ave., Arlington Heights.

Miss Larot has selected Schneller as exclusive North American representative for her work. Her showing inaugurates the firm's new gallery of antique and contemporary art as well as retail furniture showrooms.

WINNER OF THE 1961 Grand Prize de Peinture, Bergerac, she has been featured in all the leading European art journals and recently concluded a series of successful one-woman shows in Paris, Florence, Cologne and Vienna.

The Sunday open house at Schneller also will include a concert appearance by Franz Benteler and His Royal Strings from the Consort Room of the Continental Plaza Hotel, Chicago.

Country Chords host guest month

Country Chords Chapter of Sweet Adelines is hosting a guest month beginning this Tuesday, 8 p.m., at the Palatine Presbyterian Church, Rohlwing and Palatine Roads.

Any woman interested in singing, whether barbershop or other music, is invited to attend the Tuesday night meetings this month.

"We're going to start our guest month with an interchapter party. Concordia Chapter of Chicago and a prospective Sweet Adelines chapter from Melieny will be visiting us Tuesday," said Mrs. Ronald Campbell of Arlington Heights, membership chairman.

"We hope that women in this area will join us to learn a barbershop style song and to hear about the plans of Country Chords for the next few months."

Country Chords Chapter was chartered in 1955 and now has a membership of some 60 women. It is one of 570 chapters throughout the United States, Canada and the Panama Canal Zone. Information, 359-6214 or 253-6277.

Circus tickets on sale locally

Tickets for the benefit circus Sunday afternoon, Nov. 18, starring Mr. Ned the Ringmaster and Cooky the Clown are being sold at two area locations.

Arlington Heights Junior Woman's Club, sponsor of the show, will have members selling them at $1.50 each at Frontier Park, 1933 N. Kenilworth, Arlington, Monday through Friday (Nov. 12-16), from 7 to 8:30 p.m. and again Saturday, Nov. 17, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Tickets will also be available at the First Arlington National Bank, Campbell and Danton, Nov. 12-16 from 1 to 3 p.m.

There will be two performances of the show, at 1:30 and 3:30 p.m. in Prospect High School Gym, Mount Prospect. It features several circus acts and some audience participation games.

'The Music Man' opens tonight

Tonight the stage of Wheeling High School comes alive with the marching beat of "Seventy-six Trombones," the harmony of "Lida Rose," the glowing romance of "Til There Was You" and the youthful charm of "Gary, Indiana."

It's opening night for Best Off Broadway's production of "The Music Man." The performance begins at 8:30 p.m. in the theater of Wheeling High, Route 83 (Elmhurst Road) at Hintz Road.

"The Music Man" is a tale of notoriety which turns to honesty and suspicion which turns to trust because of love and a small boy, Winthrop, who is played by Michael Grizzi of Chicago.

Harold Hill, the music man, will be played by Steve Strong of Chicago, and his leading lady, Marian the librarian, by Fran Pitchford of Arlington Heights.

Other performances are Nov. 10, 16 and 17 with a 2:30 p.m. matinee scheduled on Sunday, Nov. 18. Tickets, 392-4873.

ACORN JEWELRY

Materials: 12 acorns big needle
12-inch elastic thread tiny screw eye
leather shoelace or narrow cord clear nail polish, lacquer, or shellac

Before making this acorn jewelry, soak the acorns in a dish of water for a few hours. This makes them soft enough to string. Glue any loose caps back on when the acorns dry.

To make the acorn bracelet, tie a big knot about an inch from the end of the elastic thread. Thread the other end through the needle. Poke it through the lower part of each acorn — not the cap.

If the needle sticks part way through, pull it through with pliers. Push the acorns close together. When the bracelet is big enough to go around your wrist, tie the ends of the elastic together. Trim off the ends.

To make a matching acorn necklace, screw a tiny screw eye into the cap of one acorn. Poke a leather shoelace or narrow cord through the screw eye. Tie the ends and slip the necklace around your neck. You may want to coat your acorns with clear nail polish, lacquer or shellac to make them shine.

Nordic Hills: a secluded discovery

by GENIE CAMPBELL

CARSON INN NORDIC HILLS has just about everything going for it... a relaxed, resort atmosphere, excellent food and good, fun entertainment. What's more, the resort is very close to home, tucked away in Itasca just off Route 33 between Routes 19 and 20.

Away from big city congestion and noise, Nordic Hills is secluded in a beautiful setting. The main dining room with its appealing Scandinavian flavor overlooks the shaded golf course. Enjoy the menu. I did. It's not often quite the lorraine is offered as an appetizer nor Scandinavian Beef Steak braised in beer and onion, baked in flaky crust, included on the list of main entrees.

Downstairs in the Playroom TONY GRIFFITH is singing to packed houses Friday and Saturday nights. A resident of Elk Grove Village, Tony's livelihood is sales. Indeed, he considers himself very lucky. Not everyone has an opportunity to "live" a hobby or as he puts it... "singing is my weekend therapy." And the enjoyment he receives from performing on stage shows, from his opening number of "Tie a Yellow Ribbon" to the closing encore, "This Is My Life." It's a strong, clear voice that characterizes all of Griffith's numbers. How many men can turn their weekday tensions into beautiful song?

The "mini-show" also features MARIO PIZZOFERRATO on the cove and comedian DANNY RIO - "I voted for Nixon. I ain't got no beef." Rio is introduced as "Nordic Hills' own Jimmy Durante." I agree. He sounds, acts, even looks like the famous comedian. But give the audience a chance. Let them discover it for themselves. If they can't, he'd better change noses.

The large indoor pool at the entrance might entice some people to stay all weekend. And Nordic Hills' added feature is its downstairs VULCAN'S FORGE. The eating is casual. Grill your own steak on live coals provided for you, pick out the cut you want first from the meat counter. Nice idea. It's the first of its kind I've seen in the Chicago area.

It's a "Grand Night for Singing" up at the TOP OF THE TOWERS, particularly if you are listening to the melodic notes of BOB CARROLL, one of the most powerful singers I have yet to hear perform in the hotel's penthouse restaurant.

Bob's last appearance in Chicago was as the star of "Fiddler on the Roof" at the Chicago Opera House in 1971 and prior to that at the Auditorium Theatre. He toured across the country in the role of Tevye for three years. And if you didn't catch the show, at least you will get a feel for what you missed with his "Fiddler" medley starting out with my favorite, "If I Were a Rich Man."

But Carroll's total professionalism is not to be easily dismissed. He's as comfortable with such classics as "Sorrento" and "Arrivederci" as he is with "Alexander's Ragtime Band." You just might find yourself staying through for the second show.

Carroll is at Arlington Park Towers through Nov. 24. He's one entertainer I would very much like to see come back. Quite noticeably his style complements the overall elegance of the room.

No longer is it necessary for FRANKIE AVALON to hold his nose in order to boost his career. But he does it anyhow, just for old times sake when he presents his hit medley of songs in the BLUE MAX of the HYATT REGENCY O'HARE where he is performing nightly through Nov. 17.

"De De Dinah" and "Venus," two of his first numbers recorded in the '50s, sounded even better than I remember them, but Avalon, of course, is much more mature and so is his voice. Naturally, an 11-piece orchestra as backup doesn't hurt. Avalon's accompaniment, particularly in the beginning, is perhaps a little overpowering. He's not holding his nose anymore, so what does he have to hide?

Very personable on stage, Avalon jokes about his large family... seven kids with another on the way... and takes off with an impersonation routine that touches John Wayne, Gary Cooper, Kirk Douglas and James Cagney.

Comedian GREG LEWIS precedes Avalon on stage. Unfortunately, there is nothing complimentary to say.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I'm among the many who have found serving wine to be a delight, but isn't the snobbery about the thing overdone? For instance, storing the bottles on their sides. As tight as they're sealed, I can't imagine what difference it makes if you keep them upright. — Tina Flesch

This is one part that isn't snobbery. Tina. Corks are porous. If they dry up, air seeps through and ruins the wine. That's why all wine bottles are stored on their sides — to keep the corks moist and tight.

Dear Dorothy: I wore a lovely, expensive velvet skirt all day at a festival. When I got home the seat of the skirt looked like crushed velvet. Anything I can do? — Mary Beth E.

If it's crushproof rayon velvet, steaming it in the bathroom will bring it back. However, if it's acetate — and moisture was involved in the crushing — it may never return to its original state. Pass a steam iron over it — without touching the material — and hope.

Dear Dorothy: Because of a high cholesterol count, I've been using buttermilk, which I thought was made of skim milk. Now I hear that buttermilk sometimes is made from whole milk. Is there any way to be sure buttermilk is made from skim milk? — Mrs. Ed Roghair

First, there are very few areas where buttermilk is made from whole milk. Second, unless it is specifically stated on the package, you can assume the buttermilk is made from skim milk.

Dear Dorothy: While putting away summer things, I noticed my white bag which seems to be made of soft plastic or vinyl is quite dingy. Any suggestions how to clean it? — Alicia Verona Try the detergent wax recommended for white kitchen appliances.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Padlock Publications, Suburban Living, Box 250, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Death penalty is alive and well

by TOM TIEDE

RALEIGH, N.C. — Sam A. Poole represents something out of America's recent past. A middle-aged black man, he was arrested last year and charged with entering a home with intent to rob and rape. A jury found him guilty. Today, though he protests his innocence, though no rape took place and Poole was convicted merely of intent, he sits in the state's death row waiting to be executed by electricity.

And he is not alone. Although the U.S. Supreme Court ruled more than a year ago that capital punishment, as it had been imposed, is illegal under the Constitution, some 20 men and women currently are awaiting death in the nation — 11 of them, including Sam Poole, right here in North Carolina.

The American death penalty is far from being dead.

The Supreme Court did not say that executing felons was unconstitutional. Only that the laws of execution were illegal because they were unevenly imposed. Thus proponents of capital punishment have rallied in many states to change the laws to satisfy the courts and get back to the routine business of electrocuting, gassing or hanging the bad guys.

NORTH CAROLINA is one of 20 states which have enacted new legislation to ward off this end. Deciding that the chief objection of the Supreme Court was that the death penalty was "freakishly used," that is to say discretionary, thus cruel and unusual, North Carolina decided to make the penalty mandatory for murder 1, arson, rape and burglary 1. Thus Poole, not having killed anyone, was trapped by the mandatory sentence, and could conceivably die because a jury thought he "wanted" to rape.

Other states have passed somewhat narrower death laws. Idaho has instituted automatic capital punishment for various kinds of murder only. Florida permits execution for rape, but only when the victim is 11 years old or under. California has recently made the death penalty mandatory for 11 types of murder, including killers of police officers and train saboteurs. Connecticut laws permit the death sentence for narcotics pushers who sell their goods to people who die from the drug use.

Yet however framed the laws, their sudden proliferation is arousing anew the historic antagonists of the death penalty controversy. Those who thought the question was settled by the 1972 Supreme Court ruling are back to the barricades. No one has been executed in the nation since 1967, but now there is a growing possibility the punishment will be administered again (not to the 631 people on death row prior to the court decision, however; their penalties have or are expected to be modified) and forces are regrouping on both sides of the issue.

PUBLIC OPINION, apparently, is siding with the new death penalties. A Gallup Poll taken last year indicated 57 per cent of the people queried favored reinstatement. President Nixon and other politicians have called for executions in certain circumstances. Proponents point to the fact that if U.S. capital punishment is cruel and unusual, as the Eighth Amendment prohibits, three fourths of the world's nations, those that have some form of death penalty, are equally barbaric.

Besides the commonness of the penalty, proponents believe that street crime in America is such now that something must be done. Milton Rector, director of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency, says people are searching for "any answer to cut the crime rate." And that rate, assuredly, is staggering: last year's 18,529 known U.S. murders were 5 per cent over 1971 and rape in this country has increased 70 per cent since 1967.

"I know it's an old argument," says one prison superintendent, "but I still believe that if a man is risking the gas chamber, he'll think twice before he shoots his wife."

Opponents naturally insist otherwise. David Kendall, of the NAACP Legal Defense Fund, a group that has fought capital punishment since 1965 (primarily because in the last 43 years 52 per cent of all murder executions and 90 per cent of all rape executions involved blacks), says that public opinion has nothing to do with it. "The Bill of Rights was written to put some things beyond the reach of shifting majorities. If we relied on merely public opinion, why, we might not even have newspapers."

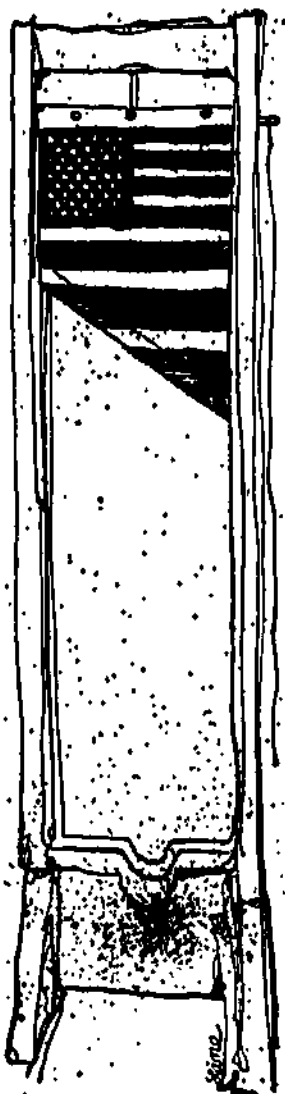

AS FOR CUTTING crime and the deterrence factor, Kendall says such hopes are illusory. Now, he asks, can the crime rate be reduced by capital punishment when since 1930, out of some 400,000 murder convictions, only 334 people were executed? Criminals can read figures too.

And deterrence? Kendall tells of the San Quentin inmate who helped to install the gas chamber there and then killed three people when he was released from prison. He might also tell of the Ohio State Penitentiary inmate who designed improvements on that institution's electric chair, then was paroled, then was arrested for murder and eventually died in the same chair he helped maintain and engineer.

And so the old argument is resurrected. None of it, perhaps, applying to the case of Sam A. Poole of North Carolina. He sits here waiting to die for a rape that didn't take place. It's highly ironic, and more than frightening, that he is in this predicament because the highest court in the land tried once to protect him as an American from cruel and unusual punishment.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Capital punishment drive mounts across the nation

by CHARLOTTE MOULTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Twenty-one states have revived the death penalty since it was struck down by the Supreme Court, saving 600 persons from execution.

Generally speaking, the new laws confine capital punishment to such crimes as mass murder, murder of a policeman, fireman or prison guard, and murder while perpetrating rape, kidnapping, arson or hijacking of a commercial vehicle.

Two young men held in Houston in the homosexual slaying of more than 25 boys could draw the death penalty if convicted under a recently enacted Texas law.

Florida was the first state to reestablish capital punishment after the Supreme Court ruled existing statutes unconstitutional June 20, 1972. Florida's action came in a special legislative session last December.

The law provides for a two-trial system, with guilt or innocence decided in the first trial and punishment in the second. A jury may consider special circumstances in the second trial and recommend life or death, but the trial judge has the final say. His reasons must be set forth in writing.

ADDITIONAL U. S. Supreme Court rulings on capital punishment are certain, and the Florida law could be the first one considered.

The justices did not reach any over-all agreement in their 5-4 decision last year on capital punishment. All four of President Nixon's appointees dissented, and each of the nine justices wrote his own opinion.

Justices William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall concluded that the ban on "cruel and unusual punishment" in the 8th Amendment to the Constitution prohibits imposition of the death sentence under any circumstances.

Justices Potter Stewart and Byron R. White, who often go along with the Nixon appointees, held that the 8th amendment was violated by the haphazard way the death penalty was imposed, with some guilty persons being sentenced to die while others were spared.

Justice William O. Douglas also found the laws "selectively applied."

THE JUSTICES' comments, as well as those of Chief Justice Warren E. Burger in his dissent, guided state legislators in fashioning new statutes.

Said Burger: "Legislative bodies may seek to bring their laws into compliance with the court's ruling by providing standards for juries and judges to follow in determining the sentence in capital cases or by more narrowly defining the crimes for which the penalty is to be imposed."

"The legislatures can and should make an assessment of the deterrent influence of capital punishment, both generally and as affecting the commission of specific types of crimes."

Besides Texas and Florida, other states that have reestablished capital punishment are Rhode Island, California, North Carolina, Georgia, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Tennessee, Idaho, Louisiana, Wyoming, Utah where the condemned have a choice of death by hanging or a firing squad, Ohio, Connecticut, Indiana, Arkansas, Arizona, Nevada, Nebraska and Montana.

GOV. MILTON SHAPP of Pennsylvania once said no one would be executed in his state while he was governor. But recently he gave ground, saying he would "not necessarily" veto a capital punishment bill.

The Pennsylvania house approved a bill mandating death in the gas chamber for seven types of crime, including slaying of hostages or a witness to another murder or a felony.

In New York, a bill calling for the death penalty in the murder of a police officer or a corrections officer is up for consideration in the legislature next January. Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who once led efforts to wipe out the penalty, now favors the bill, which is being pushed by police unions.

IN ILLINOIS, two separate bills were enacted by Gov. Daniel Walker, who has said he favors some form of capital punishment, especially for murder of prison guards.

The high court's 1972 decision saved one of Illinois' most publicized death row inmates, Richard T. Speck. Now 31, he was convicted of the July, 1966, murders of eight student nurses in a Chicago townhouse. He is now serving a life term.

An impasse developed in Colorado after various bills failed to clear the legislature. Voters are scheduled to have their say in the November, 1974, election.

ROTC commission

Stuart J. Parker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart M. Parker, 106 N. Eighth Ave., Des Moines, has been commissioned a second lieutenant upon completion of the U.S. Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps program at the University of Arizona. Lieutenant Parker also received a B.S. degree in pharmacy.

The lieutenant, a 1963 graduate of Maine West High School, earned a B.S. degree in biology in 1970 at the University of Illinois and is a member of Kappa Psi.

Completes ROTC course

Gary L. Shields, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Shields, 1131 Sixth Ave., Des Moines, recently completed an Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps field training encampment at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio.

Cadet Shields is a 1971 graduate of St. John's Military Academy and attends Bradley University, Peoria.

Suburbanites: 'It's just a matter of survival'

The energy shortage: how you'll feel it...

by The Herald Staff

The prospect of a chilly winter and gas shortages was accepted as a fact of life yesterday by Northwest suburban residents in the wake of President Nixon's call for voluntary cutbacks of energy consumption Wednesday.

Many people say they are already turning down the heat, starting car pools and turning off the lights whenever possible. In fact, the only widespread negative feeling about the cutback was a suspicion that not enough other people will voluntarily restrict themselves to make a difference in the energy crisis.

"We usually turn our thermostats down in the evening anyway, and very seldom drive over 50, but will everyone do it? Are they going to do it in Washington, too?" asked Wheeling resident Mrs. Michael Grabus.

"I don't think too many people will voluntarily start being careful about power use. It will only happen when it is a forced rationing," predicted Barbara Murphy, a Hoffman Estates resident. But for many of the residents questioned by Herald reporters, the early rumblings of impending voluntary restrictions were taken to heart.

SEVERAL PEOPLE began taking the train to Chicago instead of driving when the summer gas shortages began. Others use car pools for shopping trips and recreational outings.

Fuel shortages also are being taken seriously by homeowners contemplating smaller, more economical cars.

"Our present one is a gas-eater," one woman admitted. Even traditionally speedy American drivers say they are willing to slow down to 50 miles per hour. Some believe that mandatory 50 mph speed limits are needed.

Ralph Bossert of Arlington Heights says he will be driving slower now. And he goes one step further.

"I believe that legislation should have been taken a long time ago," Bossert said of the gas shortage. And legislation encouraging smaller engines for cars should be passed, too, according to Bossert.

ANOTHER fair-weather conservation measure is used by a Des Plaines Man.

"My husband rides a bike to work. He's been doing it for some time," said Mrs. Judy Sickinger of Des Plaines.

For some people, the energy crisis is a job crisis, too.

"Damn right I'm worried and turning off more lights and driving slower and heating less. It means my job if we don't have fuels," said a Schaumburg pilot who works with a major airline.

Mike Scimeca, a gasoline station owner in Hoffman Estates, says he's mad. "In general, because everybody is just worried about being rationed. I'm not only rationed already, I don't have the right to raise my gas prices when the oil companies keep raising mine."

Scimeca says he'll do his share to conserve energy at home, "because I'm worried about it all running out, but I just hope I can go on making a living."

SOME RESIDENTS blame politics for the crisis. One man said the shortage is "a plot to get the Alaska (oil) pipeline through." Another believed that earlier administrations didn't do enough to start conserving years ago.

"This is something that has been going on for years," said one Arlington Heights woman.

On the other side of the political coin, one person said Nixon "was smart to urge voluntary measures." Joe Owens of Arlington Heights said, "I think there was no other alternative."

Kenneth Fraley, a Rolling Meadows resident, is confident that Americans will "get together to work on this thing and do exactly what he (Nixon) wants us to do."

"The American people are noted for that — when they have to do something, they get together and do it," Fraley said.

BUT FOR OTHER homeowners, the struggle to conserve energy comes as a byproduct of the fight to save money.

"I've got four kids and a wife. It costs too much to live now. If I don't constantly scream about shutting off lights, closing doors and save, save, save, on bills, we'd starve," said one Hoffman Estates homeowner.

"Nixon? Heck, he's not asking me to do anything I haven't had to do to survive," he said.

Lowering home thermostats can ease the heating oil crunch.

Annexation, zoning asked for flower shop

Business use of Heitkotter farm hit

by JOE FRANZ

About 15 Buffalo Grove residents have raised objections to an annexation and zoning request which would allow business use on the Heitkotter Farm, west of Ill. Rte. 83 and south of Checker Drive.

Austin Brodman, owner of JoAnn's Country Flowers, 125 N. Buffalo Grove Rd., has asked for annexation and zoning so he can operate his flower shop at the new location. He plans to operate his business out of the existing barn and move into the existing farm house.

Under his proposal the portion of the property where the barn is located would be zoned business and the area where the house is would be zoned residential. Brodman said he does not plan to build any new structures on the site.

The residents, all from the Strathmore subdivision, to the rear of the property, voiced their objections at Wednesday night's public hearing before the plan commission. Although there were no objections to the flower shop, the residents said they feared granting business zoning would "open the door" to less desirable commercial development of the area in the future.

UNDER THE annexation agreement, however, Brodman has agreed not to build or subdivide the property until approval has been given by the village. If he were to sell the property at a later date, the new owner would have to come before the village before the property could be developed.

Homeowners, however, said once the zoning is given, the village would be obliged to approve any project that conformed to the zoning. It is unlikely that the area would be developed commercially because the majority of the 4.5-acre site would be zoned residential. The only area that would be zoned for business is the property the barn is standing on.

Plan Comr. Burt Harris suggested the village consider zoning the entire tract for residential, but giving a variation to allow operation of the flower shop.

The residents agreed with the proposal, but commissioner Stan Haarr said he did not think zoning laws would permit such a variation. The commission will refer the proposal to the village attorney for a legal opinion.

The existing Lake County zoning does not allow operation of a retail flower shop on the property. The village master plan designates the Heitkotter property for residential development.

WILLIAM MOORE, Brodman's attorney, said his client has no interest in developing the property, but only wants to use the existing buildings. Brodman wants Buffalo Grove to annex the land rather than to have it remain unincorporated, Moore said.

Brodman has an option to buy the land, but will do so only if he is granted the needed zoning.

Moore told the residents his client plans to take numerous steps to keep the area from turning into a nuisance. He said the flower shop will not damage property values of neighboring homes.

"Our neighbors are hopefully going to be our customers," Moore said. "We don't want to get them mad at us."

Brodman has agreed to construct a berm and plant shrubs and trees at the rear of his property to shield the parking area from the homes. The only access to the property would be through an entrance off Rte. 83, thus eliminating the possibility of the project creating traffic congestion in residential areas.

The area would be for the sale of flowers only and not as a nursery where plants would be grown, Moore said. In addition, the flower shop would probably not have evening hours, he added.

COMR. HOWARD Mendenhall said he thought the proposal provided for a good use of the property. "It looks like an excellent chance to get something other than high density apartments and townhouses on the property," he said.

Haarr said because Brodman has agreed not to operate a restaurant or tavern on the property, there is little chance the site would ever turn into something undesirable.

The plan commission is scheduled to vote on the request Wednesday.

Blood donors still needed

Blood donors are still needed for Sunday's drive at Buffalo Grove High School. The blood donor commission urges anyone who would like to donate to contact the village hall, 537-8984, today.

Donations will be taken at the high school, Arlington Heights and Dundee roads, between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. According to drive chairman Harold Gianopoulos, a goal of 100 to 150 pints of blood has been set.

Donations will go toward the village program which provides free blood replacement anywhere in the country for all residents if four per cent of the population donates one pint of blood per year.

Persons eligible under the program will be given as much blood as they need for as long as they need it.

Anyone planning to give in Sunday's drive must be between 18 and 56 years old and weigh at least 110 pounds. Persons who have had hepatitis are not eligible to donate.

Most municipal buildings to close Monday

Elementary school and high school districts, Park districts and most municipal buildings in the Northwest suburbs will be closed Monday in honor of Veterans Day.

Rolling Meadows City Hall and the village halls in Arlington Heights, Hoffman Estates and Elk Grove Village will be open, however. Post offices, public libraries and Harper College in Palatine also will be open as will Elk Grove Township offices.

OK sought for businesses at Dundee Road, Betty Drive

Developer Ray Brozio has asked Buffalo Grove for permission to construct a building which would house retail businesses on a half-acre tract on the south side of Dundee Road at Betty Drive.

Earlier the village approved a plan for the property which would have allowed operation of a pottery shop. Brozio, however, has purchased the property and wishes to change the plan.

Brozio presented his proposal for the site to the plan commission Wednesday night. Under his plan the building would contain five stores. The plan approved for the previous owner included using an existing building which has not been torn down.

Brozio's attorney, Jack Whiler, told the plan commission he feels his client's plan is better than the previous proposal. The new plan, he said, conforms to the present zoning of the property. The property is zoned for business.

Whiler said he is not sure what kind of businesses would rent the stores, but said he has talked with real estate firms, a carpeting company, an auto parts store, a furniture store and a delicatessen, all of which expressed an interest in renting space.

UNDER THE agreement with the village, a restaurant or tavern would not be allowed on the property.

Several members of the plan commission said they do not really favor the project, but realize the size of the property limits the type of development. Plan Commission Chairman Carl Gerlich suggested the developer consider renting the building for use by doctors or dentists. Whiler said he would look into the possibility, but did not think he would be successful.

The plan commission will consider Brozio's request next week at its regular meeting.

Finish ditch by winter?

Buffalo Grove officials plan to meet with Levitt and Sons Inc. next week to finalize plans for the restoration of the Aspen drainage ditch in Lake County.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said yesterday work on the ditch will be completed by winter. The portion of the ditch in question lies north of Twisted Oak Ln.

Charge driver pointed gun at passing auto

A Buffalo Grove man was arrested on two counts on unlawful use of a weapon yesterday by Buffalo Grove police, after he allegedly pointed the gun at a family in a passing vehicle Sunday.

Police said Donald A. Whitlock, 22, of 3 Villa Verde Dr., allegedly pointed his gun at the Emil Wojtecko family, 7 Regent Court, East, Buffalo Grove, about 2:30 p.m. Sunday on Ill. Rte. 53, south of the Dundee Road ramp. When police investigated the incident, they said they found Whitlock's revolver protruding from under his car's front seat.

Wojtecko told police Whitlock allegedly pulled out in front of him Sunday near Villa Verde Apartments and then drove slowly to the Dundee Road ramp and waited an "overly long" time to go onto Route 53. Wojtecko said he honked at the other car and finally passed it, when the alleged incident occurred, police said.

For Prospect Heights

Incorporation papers may be filed

by TOM VON MALDEN

Incorporation petitions for Prospect Heights may be filed in court as early as next week, according to the Prospect Heights Improvement Association, the group spearheading efforts to form the new municipality.

PHIA board member Richard Wolf said petitions are being circulated now to support the incorporation request. Two hundred signatures of registered voters from the unincorporated area are needed. There are approximately 3,300 registered voters in the less than 4-square-mile area being considered for incorporation.

If the incorporation application cannot be readied by next week, Wolf said all efforts will be made to submit it to the courts by the end of the month. PHIA Pres. Jack Gilligan explained the situation is such that his group and the people of Prospect Heights cannot afford to wait. The three surrounding communities, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Wheeling, he said, are continually annexing pieces of unincorporated Prospect Heights.

"I'M SURE W. E. will be ready by the end of the month," Gilligan said. "We want to let it (the filing date) be a surprise. I think the board really hasn't made up its mind."

He added that many people are watching the PHIA board just to see if they slip up and one such slip, he said, would be to announce a filing date and then not be able to actually file them.

While the petitions are being signed, the PHIA's boundary committee continues to prepare the required legal descriptions of properties to be included within the new city. Both Gilligan and Wolf agreed that changes in the proposed boundaries could be made at almost any time — even after the application is before the court, according to Gilligan.

ON MONDAY THE PHIA board in an executive session reaffirmed previously announced boundaries, which include parts of Pal-Waukee Airport, Rob Roy Golf Course and Waterman Avenue — all some points with the neighboring communities. The board also decided not to include commercial properties not already

A few tickets will be available at the door for the Wheeling American Legion's Eggs and Issues Breakfast Saturday, which will feature U. S. Atty. James R. Thompson.

The breakfast will begin at 8:30 a.m. at the Clayton House Motel, 1090 S. Milwaukee Ave. Originally, it was scheduled at the Union Hotel Restaurant. The Union, however, has been sold and is closed for remodeling.

Most of the 150 tickets available for the breakfast have already been sold. Interest in the breakfast has been stimulated by the current investigation that has called a number of Wheeling officials before a federal grand jury. The investigation conducted by Thompson's office is focusing on alleged building and zoning shakedowns in Wheeling.

Thompson, however, has said he expects to limit his remarks to his office and its operations. The topic of his speech will be "Integrity and Public Service."

Members of the American Legion will be stationed at the Union Hotel to direct breakfast-goers to the new location.

A question-and-answer period is expected to follow Thompson's speech.

School board to open remodeling bids Monday

The Dist. 96 School Board Monday will open bids for the remodeling of Kildeer School in Long Grove at 7 p.m. in the library of the school.

The regular school board meeting will follow at 8 p.m.

Kildeer School will be closed in January after the opening of Twin Groves School in Buffalo Grove. Current enrollment in the district, just over 1,140 students, is not sufficient to operate all three schools in the district, according to the school board.

THE REMODELING at Kildeer will probably begin as soon as the building is vacated. It is expected to take about one year to complete, but school officials do not plan to reopen the school until the fall of 1975.

The work will include enclosing the central courtyard to expand the library into a larger resource center and converting adjacent classrooms into "pod areas."

Other business on the agenda of Monday night's meeting includes:

- Discussion of a proposed outdoor education program.
- Review bids for school furniture at Twin Groves School.
- Discuss transportation of students to Twin Groves School.
- Discuss donations from developers Donald Scholz and Company and the DeBruler Co.

Church council delegates named

The Rev. Dimitri Cosby of Mount Prospect and Thomas Szabo of Buffalo Grove will represent Holy Resurrection Orthodox Church of Prospect Heights at the 3rd All-American Council of the Orthodox Church in America. The council will be held Tuesday through Nov. 15 in Pittsburgh.

More than 500 clergy and lay delegates will attend this first council in 50 years held outside the New York City Cathedral or South Canaan, Pa. monastery/seminary.

Holy Resurrection Church was founded in 1970 to serve the spiritual needs of Eastern Orthodox Christians in the Northwest suburbs. Divine liturgy is celebrated at 10 a.m. Sundays at Prospect High School, 801 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect. Sunday school and adult discussion groups follow the service.

Wheeling violinist in Chicago concert

Wheeling High School student Jane Allen will be among 100 violinists from the Chicago area participating in the annual Thanksgiving weekend of the Youth Symphony of Greater Chicago.

The concert is scheduled for 8:15 p.m. Friday, Nov. 23 in orchestra hall, Chicago.

Youth Symphony members, chosen from 50 high schools in the area, are selected by professional musicians on the basis of competitive auditions.

Miss Allen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Sedan, 338 Marvin Pl., Wheeling.

Thermostats and lights, yes, but...

Merchants not ready to curb hours

On the brink of the Christmas Shopping Super Bowl, merchants are reacting with caution to President Nixon's suggestion shopping centers curtail business hours to conserve energy.

Nobody is rushing to make the first move to comply, and it appears that no salesman is going to cut into his selling time without assurance his fellows will take the same handicap.

Other energy-saving measures are being practiced or considered, however. Shoppers who prefer enclosed malls where they can stash coats in lockers during spending sprees may instead wear those coats as the heat goes down. Stores that have advertised their wares even when they were closed for the night may be turning off their signs in all except business hours. Interior lights may be snuffed where window light will suffice, and indoor night lights likely will be kept to the minimum to maintain security.

AT RANDHURST Shopping Center in Mount Prospect, temperatures dropped about a month ago from the old thermostat setting of 72 degrees to a slightly cooler 68 to 70. The President advised 66 to 68 degrees as a "healthier" setting.

Rather than dimming lights, Randhurst is replacing incandescent and neon bulbs with fluorescent lighting inside and mercury vapor systems outdoors. Paul Dasso, divisional vice president of Randhurst Corp., said the new lighting systems will provide better light at less energy consumption.

But Dasso pointed out potential ill effects if shopping hours are curtailed. Shoppers who stay home will use energy there too, he said, pointing to the high consumption from many home light fixtures and television sets in use at the same time. Also, said Dasso, curtailed business hours could be detrimental to the entire economy, because some employees would be put out of work.

Randhurst officials have no present plan to shorten business hours, but are "studying the situation," Dasso said.

THE ILLINOIS Retail Merchants Association also is looking into the holiday shopping hour question, and may suggest certain stores, those with little business at 9 a.m., wait an extra hour before opening each morning. Other stores with similar low business hours may be able to eliminate those hours, said Hugh E. Muncy, president.

Muncy said the association will ask its 18,000 members to "take a closer look" at holiday hours, and suggested there is "every reason to assume retailers will cooperate totally" with President Nixon's guidelines.

Muncy also suggested a number of measures to be passed along to the membership. They include reduction of speeds of company vehicles to 50 mph, lowering of thermostat settings, encouraging employee car pools, encouraging shoppers to carry packages instead of having them delivered and curtailing unnecessary light use.

The association has no objection to switching back to Daylight Savings Time, said Muncy.

Smaller merchant organizations also are looking into energy saving possibilities. The subject likely will be discussed at the next board meeting of the

Hoffman Estates Chamber of Commerce But Chamber Pres. Charles Brazelton pointed out smaller stores and centers have been trying to stimulate more business instead of less. He doubted any merchants would curtail hours unless all agree to do so.

Brazelton also noted, with the energy supply at a crisis shortage, sales of energy-consuming appliances have not dropped, and may even have increased while sales in general are down.

Schools take a 'wait-and-see' stance

by WANDALYN RICE

Local schools are taking a cautious approach to the idea of turning down the heat during the school day to conserve fuel, but many already have started other fuel-conservation measures.

Only Oakton Community College in Morton Grove had immediate plans to turn the heat in the classrooms down to the 68 degrees recommended by President Nixon. In addition, according to an Oakton official, every other light in hallways will be turned out.

Other school officials said they will take a "wait-and-see" posture on the question of whether to turn down heat in classrooms during the day. However, many said they started thinking about conserving energy in other ways several weeks ago.

ELK GROVE Township Dist. 59, which last month made preliminary plans for energy cutbacks, said yesterday it plans a workshop today for custodians on power conservation and next week will hold programs for students on ways they can help in the crisis.

Tom Cosgrove, director of physical plant for High School Dist. 214, seemed to sum up the feelings of many school officials yesterday when he said, "If I turn all these buildings down to 68 degrees this afternoon, I could have 10,000 mothers upset at me tomorrow. This seems to me to be a decision for the administration, the board and the parents. I didn't feel it was my place to take immediate action."

However, Cosgrove said Dist. 214 also has already taken some steps to conserve energy by turning temperatures in the schools down 10 degrees at night. In addition, he said administrators have turned off excess lights in offices and "we assume the custodians should be turning the lights off at night."

Other districts report taking similar actions. In Mount Prospect Dist. 57, Assistant Supt. J. C. Busenbart said school principals have been encouraged to find ways to conserve power. Teachers are being asked to turn lights out in classrooms if they will be gone more than 15 minutes, he said, and plans are being made to turn thermostats down during the day, but the amount of reduction has not been determined.

IN HIGH SCHOOL Dist. 211, a computer system installed as an experiment last summer at Schaumburg High School is resulting in savings on heating and electricity, according to Business Mgr. James Slater.

The system, Slater said, has so far cut back on the use of natural gas by 33.5 per cent and on electricity by 23.5 per cent compared to last year. Slater said the staffs in other schools are being asked to turn off lights in the other schools and to take other conservation methods.

The other problem facing school districts in the energy shortage involves gasoline for school buses and for service vehicles. So far, bus companies have reported that fuel is available for buses, but a spokesman for Ritzenthaler Bus Lines in Arlington Heights said, "We just don't know what's going to happen."

Cosgrove said that so far gasoline has been available for High School Dist. 214 drivers' education cars in areas where the school district has been buying from village-operated tanks. However, he said at Prospect High School, where driver education cars have been filled from the tank the school district uses for maintenance vehicles the school district is running short.

"We can no longer fill the Prospect cars from the tanks because we have to keep our emergency vehicles ready to go," Cosgrove said. "I suppose we should have been buying from the Village of Mount Prospect all along, but I guess we can't look back now."

Square Dance News

ARLINGTON SQUARES
Do you ever wish the "Good Ol' Days" were here again? They will be tonight for all who square dance with the Arlington Squares at St. Simon Church, 712 W. Kensington Rd., Arlington Heights. Every Thursday will call from 8:30 p.m. to 11 p.m. and the hostesses will teach the round-of-the-month at 8 p.m.

Happy Twirlers will be dancing tonight at the Congregational Church, Graceland and Marion streets in Des Plaines, with the Charles Weilers doing the calling. A "new figure" workshop from 8 to 8:30 p.m. provides the intermediate (plus) dance from 8:30 to 10:30 p.m.

Happy Twirlers sponsor a beginners class at the Trinity Lutheran Church, 675 W. Algonquin Rd. in Des Plaines, every Tuesday night from 8 to 10 p.m. The "experimental figure" workshop on the second and fourth Sundays from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the same church, continues to grow. All qualified dancers are welcome. A new beginner round dance class will be starting soon, and for more information call 824-1161.

RAND RAMBLERS
Rex Stearns from Sheridan, Ill., will be calling the squares tomorrow night for the Rand Ramblers at the Boy Scouts of America Building, 1522 W. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights, beginning at 8:30 p.m.

Rounds begin at 8 p.m. with Mary and Marg Tetzlaff, and dancing will continue until 11 p.m. All area dancers are invited.

Tomorrow night the Bucks and Does Square Dance Club welcomes all area square dancers to their dance with Paul "Foxy" Thompson square dancing at 8 p.m. Lee Simpson and Shirley Kenick will cue rounds throughout the evening at the Dempster Junior High School, Dempster Street (just west of Ill. Rte. 53) in Mount Prospect.

The theme of the dance is "Gay 90s Gala," and fellows are asked to wear their mustaches (real or otherwise), fancy garters and vests, or anything else they may have to get in to the swing. Girls can hustle their butties and maybe win a prize with their guy. However, costumes are really not necessary for attendance, but they sure add to the fun. The cost for the evening's entertainment of refreshments and dancing until 11 p.m. is $2.50 per couple.

Suburbanites: 'It's just a matter of survival'

The energy shortage: how you'll feel it...

by The Herald Staff

The prospect of a chilly winter and gas shortages was accepted as a fact of life yesterday by Northwest suburban residents in the wake of President Nixon's call for voluntary cutbacks of energy consumption Wednesday.

Many people say they are already turning down the heat, starting car pools and turning off the lights whenever possible. In fact, the only widespread negative feeling about the cutback was a suspicion that not enough other people will voluntarily restrict themselves to make a difference in the energy crisis.

"We usually turn our thermostats down in the evening anyway, and very seldom drive over 50, but will everyone do it? Are they going to do it in Washington, too?" asked Wheeling resident Mrs. Michael Grabus.

"I don't think too many people will voluntarily start being careful about power use. It will only happen when it is a forced rationing," predicted Barbara Murphy, a Hoffman Estates resident. But for many of the residents questioned by Herald reporters, the early rumblings of impending voluntary restrictions were taken to heart.

SEVERAL PEOPLE began taking the train to Chicago instead of driving when the summer gas shortages began. Others use car pools for shopping trips and recreational outings.

Fuel shortages also are being taken seriously by homeowners contemplating smaller, more economical cars.

"Our present one is a gas-eater," one woman admitted. Even traditionally speedy American drivers say they are willing to slow down to 50 miles per hour. Some believe that mandatory 50 mph speed limits are needed.

Ralph Bossert of Arlington Heights says he will be driving slower now. And he goes one step further.

"I believe that legislation should have been taken a long time ago," Bossert said of the gas shortage. And legislation encouraging smaller engines for cars should be passed, too, according to Bossert.

ANOTHER fair-weather conservation measure is used by a Des Plaines man.

"My husband rides a bike to work. He's been doing it for some time," said Mrs. Judy Sickinger of Des Plaines.

For some people, the energy crisis is a job crisis, too.

"Damn right I'm worried and turning off more lights and driving slower and heating less. It means my job if we don't have fuels," said a Schaumburg pilot who works with a major airline.

Mike Scimeca, a gasoline line owner in Hoffman Estates, says he's mad "in general, because everybody is just worried about being rationed. I'm not only rationed already, I don't have the right to raise my gas prices when the oil companies keep raising mine."

Scimeca says he'll do his share to conserve energy at home, "because I'm worried about it all running out, but I just hope I can go on making a living."

SOME RESIDENTS blame politics for the crisis. One man said the shortage is "a plot to get the Alaska (oil) pipeline through." Another believed that earlier administrations didn't do enough to start conserving years ago.

"This is something that has been going on for years," said one Arlington Heights woman.

On the other side of the political coin, one person said Nixon "was smart to urge voluntary measures." Joe Owens of Arlington Heights said, "I think there was no other alternative."

Kenneth Fraley, a Rolling Meadows resident, is confident that Americans will "get together to work on this thing and do exactly what he (Nixon) wants us to do."

"The American people are noted for that — when they have to do something, they get together and do it," Fraley said.

BUT FOR OTHER homeowners, the struggle to conserve energy comes as a byproduct of the fight to save money.

"I've got four kids and a wife. It costs too much to live now. If I don't constantly scream about shutting off lights, closing doors and save, save, on bills, we'd starve," said one Hoffman Estates homeowner.

"Nixon? Heck, he's not asking me to do anything I haven't had to do to survive," he said.

Lowering home thermostats can ease the heating oil crunch.

Repeat of 1972 contest

Abner Mikva will oppose Young in 1974 election

by STEVE BROWN

What proved to be one of the most hotly contested political races in the area in 1972 has shaped up to be an instant replay for 1974 as former Congressman Abner Mikva will oppose U.S. Rep. Samuel Young for the 10th Congressional District seat.

While Mikva has not detailed his plans, The Herald has learned he will definitely oppose Young. Mikva has scheduled a press conference Monday in Skokie.

Young announced last week that he would seek reelection. The congressman said he considers himself an "underdog" in the next election.

Mikva, who lost to Young by only 7,000 votes, will probably resign from his position as chairman of the newly created State Ethics Board in the near future.

Mikva's candidacy will campaign hard against Young's voting record and frequent support of Nixon Administration programs.

Young said last week that he considers himself an "independent Republican" and while he has supported a number of administration proposals, he has voted against the President on programs which conflict with his views.

THE 1972 CAMPAIGN proved the most costly congressional race in the state according to several citizen watchdog groups that monitor campaign spending.

It appears neither candidate will face any primary opposition in April. County Comr. Floyd Fulle, who ran against Young in the GOP primary, has indicated his support of the congressman. Meanwhile Mikva's former opponent, Niles Village President Nicholas Blase, has already thrown his support to Mikva.

Mikva's candidacy received another boost over the weekend when Democratic committeemen from five north suburban townships endorsed him for the race.

Mikva has served two terms in Congress, representing a district on the city's south side before being reapportioned out of a seat. Mikva's effort to seek election in the newly created 10th district brought charges of carpetbagging from some critics and supporters of Young, who has been a resident of the district for more than 25 years.

While a congressman, Mikva proved to be an outspoken liberal and heavily favored strict regulations concerning campaign contributions.

IT IS EXPECTED campaign morality will rival Young's record in Congress as a major campaign issue.

Young and his supporters drew some criticism during the last campaign for making false statements about Mikva's voting record and other personal attacks. Young has promised to make the forthcoming campaign one of the fairest elections ever. During his recent press conferences, he promised a series of new wrinkles that he will add to his campaign to make the race fair.

New law could keep city's only day care center open

by DOROTHY OLIVER

Des Plaines' only residential day care center would meet zoning requirements and be able to remain open if the city's proposed day care ordinance gains approval from city fathers.

Angel Town's A Baby Town, 2329 Birch St., is being sued by the city for operating in a residential neighborhood and violating the single-family usage zoning ordinance.

The center, which cares for 20 infants, will meet standards set forth in the new ordinance.

Aldermen are now reviewing the final draft of the ordinance which will be reported out of the city code and judiciary committee Nov. 19. The ordinance will then be referred to the zoning board of appeals for public hearings before the council takes final action.

"I'm satisfied with the ordinance," said Ald. Alan Abrams (8th) chairman of the committee. "It is a reasonable compromise and offers procedures and standards to make a day care center compatible with the residential area."

ABRAMS ADDED he expected a good deal of discussion from other aldermen before the ordinance is adopted. "There has always been discussion in the past whenever it has been before the council."

A number of aldermen have opposed the ordinance, arguing it would allow centers in residential areas therefore infringing on the rights of the people in the neighborhood.

Abrams has countered that by requiring day care centers to have special use permission from the zoning board; residents will have the opportunity to speak out against it during public hearings.

"The pressure will increase for this type of facility (day care centers) and we will be prepared with some type of orderly adoption in Des Plaines," Abrams said in defending the need for the ordinance.

The proposed ordinance covers day care homes and day care centers.

A day care home would be permitted without a special use permit in residential neighborhoods. The homeowner may care for up to eight children under 18, including the family's own children. A day care home would not be allowed in apartments and other multi-family areas.

DAY CARE CENTERS in residential neighborhoods would have to meet the following special use standards:

- The parcel of land must include a minimum of 500 square feet of lot area per child, a minimum of four linear feet of lot frontage per child, and must meet the lot size and frontage requirements in

Most municipal buildings to close Monday

Elementary school and high school districts, Park districts and most municipal buildings in the Northwest suburbs will be closed Monday in honor of Veterans Day.

Rolling Meadows City Hall and the village halls in Arlington Heights, Hoffman Estates and Elk Grove Village will be open, however. Post offices, public libraries and Harper College in Palatine also will be open as will Elk Grove Township offices.

Ski lessons offered

The Des Plaines Park District is again offering ski lessons for children and adults at locations to be announced. Youth, ages 10-18, will leave from Rand Park at 5 p.m. on Tuesday, Jan. 8, 15, 22 and Feb. 5. The bus will return at 10 p.m. The fee is $40 which includes lessons, rental and transportation. Deduct $10 if the participant has his own equipment.

Adults will leave from Rand Park at 6 p.m. on Fridays, Jan. 11, 18, 25, and Feb. 1, 8. The bus will return at 11 p.m. The program fee is $45 which includes equipment, lessons, and transportation. Again, deduct $10 if participant owns his own equipment.

Registrations are now being taken at the Park District office, 748 Pearson St., or call 296-6106 for information.

Ballet, modern dance classes

The Des Plaines Park District will offer a women's ballet and modern dance class this winter. The class will be held at Rand Park on Thursdays from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. starting Jan. 10. Anyone interested in good exercise and a lot of fun should register at the Park District office, 748 Pearson St., or call 296-6106 for information.

Goldman and his wife, Robin, have two children, Jason, 2 and Jamil, 6. He is a member of the mid-states Professional Photographers of America.

Training for parents

Michael Jacobson, coordinator for the Chicago Effectiveness Training Association, will discuss Parent Effectiveness Training in the second of the Psychological Challenges Lectures sponsored by MONACEP at Maine South High School Nov. 13 at 8 p.m.

The program for the evening is entitled "P.E.T. Your Way to Happiness." Happiness is a tension free environment, according to Jacobson, a psychotherapist and counselor. He will show how a family can learn to interact freely and happily because they have open lines of communication.

Single admission to the lecture is $1.50. Senior citizens, 60 years of age, and residents of Niles or Maine townships, may purchase admission at one-half price upon proof of residence. For more information call 696-3600.

Education conference

Maine West High School office education students will spend Nov. 14 in the Chicago loop for the annual Office Education Association Conference Day.

The morning is planned for students and their coordinating teachers to visit large offices to learn of future career possibilities. Following the visits, the Blackstone Sheraton Hotel will be the scene of a luncheon for the entire group. Television personality Jean McCarthy will address the group on the role of women in business today. The day will complete when the group attends a current theatrical offering.

OEA is a nationally-affiliated organization which provides cultural and social experiences besides office skill competition on the area, state and national levels.

Small countries lecture

The small countries of Europe will be featured in the Maine Oakton Niles Adult and Continuing Education Program travel lecture at Niles North High School, 9800 Lawler Ave., Skokie, Nov. 13, at 8 p.m.

"Europe's Vestpocket Countries," a beautiful color film featuring six tiny European principalities and states — Liechtenstein, Andorra, San Marino, Luxembourg, the Vatican, and Monaco — will be personally presented by photographer-lecturer Richard Linde.

Linda has traveled extensively throughout Europe, the Middle East, Russia and the Orient and is the author of numerous magazine articles.

Admission for the travel lecture is $1.50. Senior citizens, over 65 years of age and residents of Niles or Maine Townships, are admitted for half price upon proof of age and residence. For information call 696-3600.

Family Sabbath services

Students of the Maine Township Jewish Congregation Sunday School, first graders, will participate in the Family Sabbath Eve Services Friday, Nov. 16, 8:30 p.m., in the Synagogue Auditorium, 8800 Ballard Rd., Des Plaines. This "Shalom Welcome" service will be their first opportunity to participate in a formal religious ceremony. Early services in the Synagogue Chapel will be recited at 4:15 p.m.

Howard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sapoznik, 7002 Greenleaf, Niles, will celebrate his Bar Mitzvah Nov. 17, 9:30 a.m. The Sabbath ends that afternoon with the 4:15 Mincha service.

The Annual Synagogue Art Auction is Nov. 17, 9 p.m. — Champagne preview 8 p.m. Hundreds of art objects will be auctioned at low prices, and an invitation is extended to the entire community to share this event. Admission is $1.50.

Bingo will be Sunday evening, 8 p.m. Everyone is welcome to this weekly activity.

Student evaluations issued by today

by JILL BETTNER

Student performance evaluations for the first grading period will be issued by today in School Dist. 26, Mount Prospect.

City offices

to close Monday

Des Plaines municipal offices will be closed Monday in observance of Veteran's Day in Illinois.

While the holiday is officially on Sunday, city employees will be off Monday to mark the occasion.

Des Plaines Public Works Comr. Joseph Schwab said there will be no city refuse pickup on Monday. He added the work will be made up during the week.

Parents are scheduled to meet with teachers as part of a new reporting system adopted by the district this year.

Instead of traditional report cards with letter grades, a checklist of expected criteria for each school subject will be used to report pupil progress. The checklist also includes teacher evaluations of the student's attitudes and work habits.

STUDENTS WHOSE parents are unable to attend the teacher conferences will take home the checklist along with a teacher explanation about the meaning of evaluation.

Al Levin, director of curriculum, said that the new reporting system is designed to measure student progress against his own capabilities rather than judging him against his classmates.

"The child is judged only against himself," Levin said. "He may come back with a nice report card even though he's not the top student in the class. It all depends on individual progress."

The checklist includes evaluations of the student's performance in several areas within one subject. For example, under language arts, it will indicate if he demonstrates effort in reading, can express ideas, understands and uses grammar well and correctly spells words. The idea, Levin said, is to pinpoint exact areas where the student may have problems.

TO GIVE parents an indication of how well a child is performing in relation to the rest of his class, the checklist includes a section that reports the student is achieving below his grade level, at grade level or above grade level.

Levin said that because a student competes only with himself under the new reporting system, even if he is reported working below his grade level, he may be considered doing well in school.

"The child is measured against his capabilities and the progress he's made, so he may be doing the best that he can," Levin said. "With this system, he isn't punished by being compared to other students in the class with greater capabilities who would normally take the top grades."

LEVIN SAID because informal reports are issued to parents throughout the year on pupil progress, parents should not be shocked at the results of the checklists at the teacher conferences.

Teachers frequently send notes home with students describing a job well done in school or poor pupil performance.

The grading period ending this week is the first of four evaluation periods during the year. Levin plans to survey the effectiveness of the new reporting system after the parent-teacher conferences and recommend any changes if necessary in the procedure.

In contract dispute between teachers, board

If strike, both sides guilty: parent

by DOROTHY OLIVER

Teachers and board members will share the guilt if teachers strike in the Dist. 62 contract dispute, a parent told board members at a recent special session.

The Board of Education met Wednesday night to discuss the 10-month old contract dispute. Another special session is set for 7:30 p.m. Monday at the administration building, 777 Algonquin Rd.

"It's the public you're serving and it's the public that suffers if teachers strike," one mother said. "I think both sides are guilty if that happens."

A resident in the district for 20 years, the woman said schools had never had this type of crisis before.

"We turn around and get a new superintendent and all of a sudden we have problems," she said. "We get to the point where nothing can be settled without a strike."

ANOTHER PARENT noted that all the Maine Township school districts seem to be having similar problems.

"All of a sudden, Maine Township schools seem to have erupted — I'd like to know why this has happened," she said.

Earlier this week, Dist. 62 board pres. James Kremers said teachers in districts experience long contract talks "seem to use the same tactics and strategy."

He said a parent at Monday night's board meeting commented on the involvement of the Illinois Education Association (IEA) and said "it seemed as if someone was calling all the shots for teachers."

The Des Plaines Education Association (DPEA) announced earlier this week that Jo Anderson Jr., an IEA representative, will serve on the teacher negotiating team. No date has been set for a negotiation session.

Teachers voted Tuesday to strike Nov. 19 if no settlement is reached in the dispute. The DPEA is asking that teachers have a voice in educational policymaking, including class size and working conditions.

The board contends that nonsalary items are board prerogatives and can't be negotiated. Kremers told parents at the special session that teachers did have input into policies through various committees.

ONE PARENT said the committee system must not be viable "or we wouldn't have the situation that exists."

"The teachers by setting this strike date are saying something is wrong with this process," he said.

Stuart Kisten, head of the board negotiating team, told the committees hadn't been used by teachers.

"If no one tries them, how can you write them off," he said.

Beautification appointment

A member of the Des Plaines Woman's Club was named to serve on the recently created Beautification Commission.

Mrs. Savena Gorsline, of 1803 Thacker St., Des Plaines was named to a one-year term.

Mrs. Gorsline's appointment brings to seven the number of members appointed to the new group. She has been a lifelong resident of the city.

Student works on display

Nathanson School, Potter and Church streets, Des Plaines, is celebrating National Book Week, Nov. 12 - 18, in an extraordinary way. Books, Inc., in the Golf Mill Shopping Center is displaying students' creative illustrations of books they have read.

All teams have contributed their own original ideas to the display, kindergarten through team six, from bookmarks to puppets, murals, or posters.

Rock club meeting

The Illinois Lithophiles Ltd. Rock Club will hold its monthly meeting Nov. 14, at 7:30 p.m. in the community room of Des Plaines Funeral Home, 1717 Rand Rd., Des Plaines. The guest speaker is Gilbert Rudiger with his slide presentation of "Eden Valley Wood." The public is invited.

Student paper drives

Even Maine East High School is being affected by the paper shortage that concerns the entire country, and SAVE (Students Against the Violation of the Environment) is trying to combat this problem in its own way by sponsoring paper drives every two months.

Nov. 15 and 16, a drive will be conducted in front of the Maine East fieldhouse, beginning both days at 7:30 a.m.

A Litterer paper truck will be at the school to collect the paper. SAVE members ask you to clean out your garage or basement and bring the paper to the school.

Children's theater

The Des Plaines Park District is offering a children's theater production on Saturday, Nov. 24 at the Maine West Auditorium at 1:30 p.m. The production presented by the Tom Thumb Players will be "Tom Sawyer and All, with excerpts from stories that children love best.

The play appeals most to kindergarten through fifth grade children. All tickets are 50 cents and can either be purchased at the Park District office, 748 Pearson St., or at the door.

Park garden plots

The Des Plaines Park District will be offering garden plots starting this coming spring. The plots are located in the power line area adjacent to Terrace School. The area will be divided into 20 by 20' lots. For information call 296-6106.

Twp. to consider revenue-sharing fund allocations

The Elk Grove Township Board will be holding special meetings for the next few months to discuss how revenue-sharing funds will be allocated.

Presentations are expected at most of the meetings from groups and organizations which have applied for grants from township revenue funds. The township was awarded funds. Only about $100,000 of the total has officially been allocated.

"We'll be determining at the meetings whether or not to sponsor various programs which have applied for grants," said Richard Hall, township supervisor.

Hall said the first special meeting will be Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the township office, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd. A presentation will be given by a new organization, "Shelter."

Hall said the organization will provide temporary care to children who have been mistreated or abused by their parents. The care will be provided until the courts can find a permanent home for the children, Hall said.

The organization will serve Wheeling, Schaumburg and Palatine townships in addition to Elk Grove Township.

New law would aid day care center

the zoning district in which it is located.

- There must be a minimum of 50 square feet of enclosed activity area per child within the structure.

- There must be a minimum of 150 square feet of outdoor activity area per each child that could be expected to be outdoors at any one time.

- The activity area must be fenced.
- Storage facilities for movable outdoor play equipment must be provided.

- No signs will be allowed other than a name plate no larger than one square foot.

- No more than two day care centers will be allowed in a one-square-mile area.

- Hours of operation will be limited to 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

The special use provision would also allow the zoning board or the plan commission to require additional safeguards to protect the children using the facility. They must also approve the site plan for the building, taking into consideration

Ex-congresswoman to speak

Helen Gahagan Douglas, former California congresswoman, will speak at a reception in her honor, given by the Democratic Women-Tenth Congressional District, 1:30 p.m. at the Michigan Shores Club, 911 Michigan Ave., Wilmette, on Nov. 20. Ticket reservations may be made by calling 251-2812 or 251-8078.

High school students will take over in 'Youth Week'

More than 40 area high school students will take over Des Plaines during National Youth Achievement Week, beginning Saturday.

The week long program, which is sponsored by the City of Des Plaines and Optimist Club, is aimed at giving the young people exposure to different forms of government activity.

The students, who represent four local high schools, will be named junior city officials for the week and be assigned to various city offices.

The group will also tour civic offices in Springfield, the Chicago State Center, and the offices of Bell Telephone, and Trans World Airlines.

THE PROGRAM will get under way on Saturday with swearing in ceremonies at the Des Plaines City Hall. The ceremony will be conducted by Circuit Court Judge Anton Smiegel and remarks by Mayor Hebert Behrel. The students will be taken on a tour of city facilities including the police and fire departments and Forest Hospital. A luncheon will be held at the Elks Club.

The students will also take part in an essay contest on the subject "What's right with our nation."

Anti-shoplifting week proclaimed

In cooperation with a public education program on shoplifting, Mayor Herbert Behrel has proclaimed Nov. 11 through Nov. 17 as "Everything has a Price Week."

The program is sponsored by the retail division of the Des Plaines Chamber of Commerce, in cooperation with the Illinois Retail Merchants Association.

Merchants groups and other authorities have described shoplifting as one of the country's fastest-growing crimes.

PTA notes

The South School PTA will hold a bake sale Nov. 15 and 16 during the parent-teacher conferences in the new gym from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. both days.

Margaret Wagner, Orchard Place School, and Katie Selez, a member of Des Plaines Elementary School Dist. 62, recently attended the PTA Dist. 21 legislative breakfast in Glenview.

State Rep. Aaron Jaffe and Robert Juckett, and State Sen. John Nimrod, all of the 4th District, attended. Maryanne Blair, aide of State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, also attended.

The PTA thanked the legislators for their efforts this year which resulted in a new school-aid formula, school construction bond act, and a state board of education.

$2,200 motorcycle stolen from garage

A motorcycle owned by a Rolling Meadows man was stolen when burglars broke into a Des Plaines garage where the cycle was being kept, said police.

The cycle, owned by Alan DeRusha, 22, of 5601 Carriageway Dr., was discovered missing Tuesday when police said he noticed the garage at the home of his parents at 930 Parkview Ln., had been entered.

Taken from the garage along with the motorcycle were $300 worth of tools, police said. DeRusha valued the cycle at $2,200.

In another break-in, burglars stole another $175 worth of tools from the home of Ernest Colman, 219 Grove Ave., said Des Plaines police.

Colman, who noticed the break-in Tuesday said the tools were taken from a back room of his home and that the burglars probably made their way in through the front of his home.

Man pleads guilty to 18 years of theft

A Palatine man was given two years probation yesterday after pleading guilty to charges in connection with the theft of some $1,500 in merchandise over the last 18 years from the Wieboldt Distribution Center, 300 Northwest Hwy., Des Plaines.

Richard Zelfeldt, 55, of 1100 E. Foksett, a 39-year Wieboldt employee, had been charged with writing shipping orders for such merchandise as furniture, toys and household articles and sending them to his home under a false name.

ZELFELDT WAS given the probation at a hearing before Associate Judge Simon Porter in Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

He was arrested last July after a security agent, Michael Panapoulos discovered the thefts through a check of company shipping records.

According to police reports at the time, Panapoulos discovered Zelfeldt actually lived at the address and became suspicious of him after checking further and noticing similar orders dating back 18 years.

Suburbanites: 'It's just a matter of survival'

The energy shortage: how you'll feel it..

by The Herald Staff

The prospect of a chilly winter and gas shortages was accepted as a fact of life yesterday by Northwest suburban residents in the wake of President Nixon's call for voluntary cutbacks of energy consumption Wednesday.

Many people say they are already turning down the heat, starting car pools and turning off the lights whenever possible. In fact, the only widespread negative feeling about the cutback was a suspicion that not enough other people will voluntarily restrict themselves to make a difference in the energy crisis.

"We usually turn our thermostats down in the evening anyway, and very seldom drive over 50, but will everyone do it? Are they going to do it in Washington, too?" asked Wheeling resident Mrs. Michael Grabus.

"I don't think too many people will voluntarily start being careful about power use. It will only happen when it is a forced rationing," predicted Barbara Murphy, a Hoffman Estates resident. But for many of the residents questioned by Herald reporters, the early rumblings of impending voluntary restrictions were taken to heart.

SEVERAL PEOPLE began taking the train to Chicago instead of driving when the summer gas shortages began. Others use car pools for shopping trips and recreational outings.

Fuel shortages also are being taken seriously by homeowners contemplating smaller, more economical cars.

"Our present one is a gas-eater," one woman admitted. Even traditionally speedy American drivers say they are willing to slow down to 50 miles per hour. Some believe that mandatory 50 mph speed limits are needed.

Ralph Bossert of Arlington Heights says he will be driving slower now. And he goes one step further.

"I believe that legislation should have been taken a long time ago," Bossert said of the gas shortage. And legislation encouraging smaller engines for cars should be passed, too, according to Bossert.

ANOTHER fair-weather conservation measure is used by a Des Plaines Man.

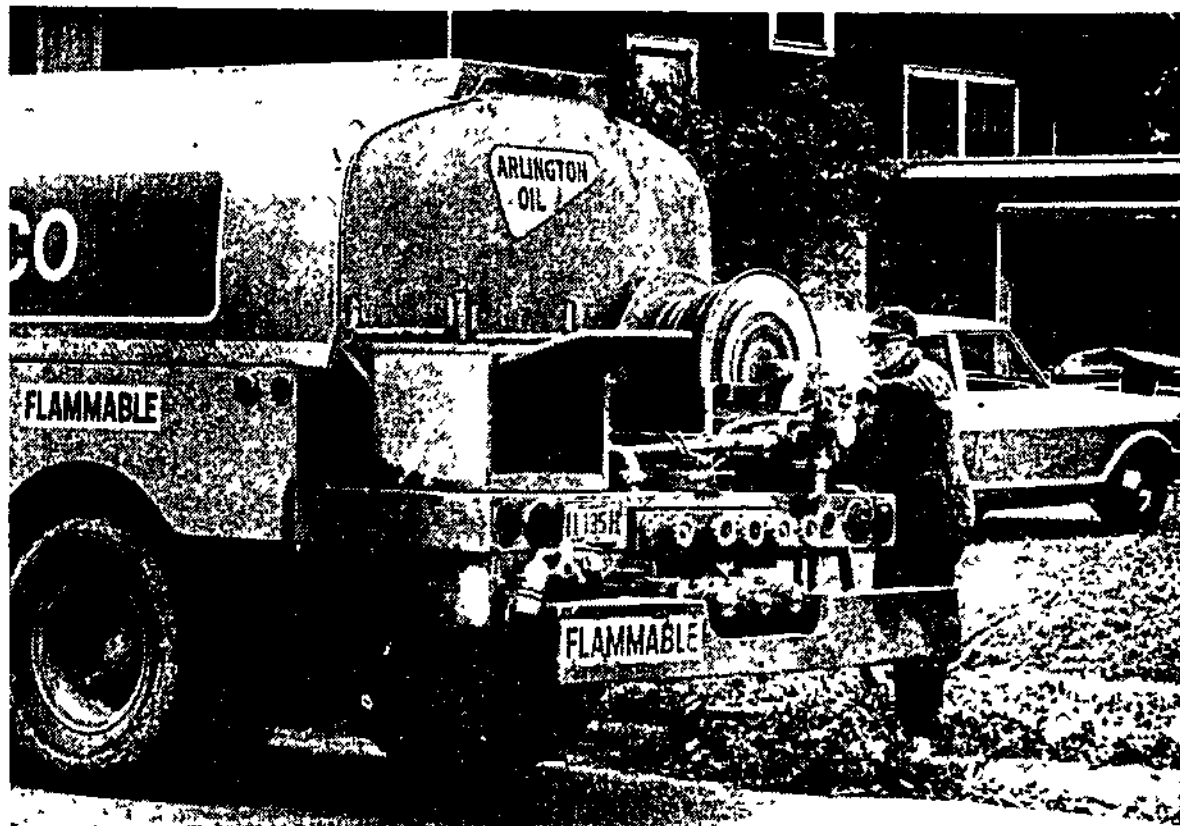

"My husband rides a bike to work. He's been doing it for some time," said Mrs. Judy Sickinger of Des Plaines.

For some people, the energy crisis is a job crisis, too.

"Damn right I'm worried and turning off more lights and driving slower and heating less. It means my job if we don't have fuels," said a Schaumburg pilot who works with a major airline.

Miko Scimeca, a gasoline station owner in Hoffman Estates, says he's mad "in general, because everybody is just worried about being rationed. I'm not only rationed already, I don't have the right to raise my gas prices when the oil companies keep raising mine."

Scimeca says he'll do his share to conserve energy at home, "because I'm worried about it all running out, but I just hope I can go on making a living."

Lowering home thermostats can ease the heating oil crunch.

For Mid-Suburban League title

Grenadiers play 'underdog' again—now in Super Bowl

by BOB GALLAS

The Mid-Suburban League coaches said no.

The Herald sports staff said no way. Many fans agreed.

But come kickoff time tonight, the Elk Grove Grenadiers will be representing the South division in the MSL Super Bowl for the third year in a row.

The pre-season polls all picked the Forest View Falcons to keep the Grenadiers from still another South division title and meet Hersey in the title game. After two years of being the heavy, the team everyone wanted to beat, the Grenadiers quietly enjoyed their underdog role and set to proving to everyone else what they knew all along.

The Grenadiers will keep their title of underdog going into tonight's game which starts at 7:30 p.m. on some two-field. Hersey, picked by some as two-touchdown favorites, are eight-point favorites by a consensus of "The Herald" sports staff.

HERSEY, RANKED as high as fifth in the Chicagoland area, has only been beaten once this year, in an opening season heartbreaker to St. Viator. Elk Grove, meanwhile, has lost to Arlington and Riverside-Brookfield.

A full house of about 4,500 fans is expected for the contest. Tickets are available at the school today and at the door tonight on a non-reserved basis. Ticket prices are $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for students. Gates will open at 6:30 p.m.

Elk Grove coach Don Schnake said his team hasn't done anything differently in preparing for the title clash tonight. Schnake's troops were scheduled for a light practice last night. They'll have all day today to get ready for the game. School will be closed for a teacher's workshop.

The game will be broadcast on WWM-FM 92.7 Radio, starting at 7:20 p.m. by WM sports director Bud Kelly and Herald sports editor Bob Frisk.

ELK GROVE holds a 6-2 edge over the Huskies including two victories in "Superbowl" competition.

Among the spectators at tonight's game will be a number of village officials. Ronald Cherrick, village trustee, predicted a win for the Grenadiers. "We've beaten them (Hersey) in the last two superbowl," said Cherrick. "The burden will be on them (Hersey)," he added.

Another village trustee, Nanci Vanderweel, said she also plans to attend the game while predicting an Elk Grove win. "I'll be there even if it's 20 below," she said.

Explorer Scout knows police work first hand

by FRED GACA

Some of Tom Nowak's classmates consider him a "piglet," but he considers himself a future policeman, hopefully with the Elk Grove Village force.

Tom, 15, a junior at Elk Grove High School, is one of seven members of Explorer Post 491. The post is sponsored by the police department and the local chapter of the Fraternal Order of Police. Boys in the post work with the department, assisting policemen in their duties.

Under the present schedule, each boy in the post spends one evening per week at the department. They usually divide their time between working on the alarm desk and riding with a patrolman.

Tom said he became interested in police work from watching police television shows. Now that he has worked with the department, he finds "a lot of difference" between real police work and television shows.

"YOU TAKE A show like 'The Rookies' or 'Adam-12', every call is a robbery or a rape or something like that. Every call is something exciting," he said.

"When you work at the department, sometimes it is boring and sometimes it is really moving."

When working on the police desk, the Explorers have several tasks to do.

"The first thing to do is the filing," said Tom. "After that, you help on the desk."

When an officer is on patrol, he often calls the desk to request a check on a particular license number, if the patrolman stops someone, he may ask if any warrants are out against the person. The Explorer Scout on the desk assists in running these checks.

WHEN RIDING in the patrol cars, the scouts serve as an extra pair of eyes, looking for anything suspicious. They also learn while they ride, observing the techniques of the patrolman.

"You learn a lot of things, like how to use the reflection of a street light to tell from a distance if a window is open instead of going to see if the window is there," said Tom.

The Explorers are permitted to observe the patrolmen making out reports for minor incidents. They also observe arrests and interrogations and can practice on the police firing range.

When tours of the department are given or a person has to be fingerprinted, the scouts may assist in the tasks.

For their work with the officers, the scouts are not paid. They do get paid for odd jobs around the department such as cleaning the pistol range and washing patrol cars.

ANY MONEY earned by the scouts goes into the treasury to be used for various purposes, including buying uniforms. The scouts recently started wearing uniforms from the regular department clothing issue.

At school, Tom occasionally gets harassment from some of the other students "They call you 'piglet' or 'baby pig' You get some slack from some of the kids, especially if they have been busted. They accuse you of 'narcing' on them," said Tom.

"I take it very lightly, usually I ignore it. At first, it annoys you, but after a while you get used to it."

For every student with a bad opinion of police and police work, there are those who are not critical of the department.

"Some kids are really interested and ask a lot of questions about the department," said Tom.

ACCORDING TO Tom, the opinion of the police that a student has depends on the contact they have had with the police. If a young person has gotten a ticket for speeding in the school parking lot, they don't like the police. "But a lot of guys think it is good that the cops are watching," he said.

Tom has found a better acceptance of

Two visitors to the suburbs view President

Abzug: Nixon should quit, election should follow

by KATHY BOYCE

U.S. Rep. Bella Abzug of New York said she plans to introduce a bill in Congress for a special Presidential election next November if President Nixon leaves office.

If Congress confirms President Nixon's vice-presidential nominee Gerald Ford, "we may well be electing the President of the United States for you," said Rep. Abzug. She said she believed that once Ford is confirmed by Congress, members of the Republican Party will ask Nixon to resign.

"Mr. Ford is not the free choice of the people," said Rep. Abzug. Nixon has chosen a successor "as one does almost in a monarchy, not in a democracy," she said. "And the laws providing for succession should be changed."

IT IS "THE great majority of Americans that have been abused and it is the Americans that now have to act," said Rep. Abzug. "You picked the President," she said. "It's your problem."

Rep. Abzug has also written a bill for Nixon's impeachment and she claims she has advocated his impeachment for 18 months. "The fact is that the American public can no longer believe what Mr. Nixon says or does," she said. It is "quite evident that this great democracy of ours has almost been stolen from us."

The government has become corrupt and the American public must start cleaning it up by electing a new President, said Rep. Abzug.

"What the founders of our nation wanted to provide was an impeachable President because they had an unimpeachable king," said Rep. Abzug. It is "a fundamental safeguard against what we had rebelled against."

The Congress that passed the 25th amendment, which says the President may pick the vice-presidential successor, "really never contemplated a double vacancy or that it might be an impeachable President who will do the picking," Rep. Abzug said.

In the past year, "the American people have learned a lot," said Rep. Abzug. There are "a lot of wonderful things in this country and we still have a chance to be the greatest democracy in the world," she said, adding, "there is evidence that in this country democracy is not only breathing and alive, but it can kick a little."

WHEN PRESIDENT Nixon fired special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox, he made "the biggest mistake of his life," she said the controversy over Watergate and the firing of Cox "reflects a continuing schism in American life" over what politics should be.

It has "gotten to the point where the Watergate inquiry began to look like a political whodunit," Rep. Abzug said. Her bill for impeachment charges Nixon with seven separate violations of the law; including defiance of a court order, the firing of Cox, obstruction of justice, impounding of federal money, and falsification of records regarding the bombing of Cambodia.

General Haig: 'Vindication not resignation'

by STEVE BROWN

With a theme of "vindication, not resignation," more than 500 Republican supporters gathered last night to cheer Presidential adviser Gen. Alexander Haig, who spoke in a fund-raising address for U.S. Rep. Sam Young, R-10th.

Haig delivered a speech on the topic of "The Global Strategic Situation," and reviewed what he considered "administrative accomplishments and the challenges of the future."

Prior to the speech, Haig declined to answer any questions about the Watergate situation. "I'm not here to answer those types of inquiries," the general said. Haig emphatically stated, however, that President Nixon would not resign. "We have a great deal to get done," Haig said. "We have a basic strategy to get out about the Watergate situation," he stated, adding the facts of the matter would come out in the courts.

HAIG SAID THE President felt he should deny the possibility of his resignation Wednesday night because of the "great deal of speculation about the topic."

The general said the President has shown few signs of strain or fatigue because of the pressures of either Watergate or the other international crises. "Anybody could see the President was feeling fine from his television speech Wednesday night," Haig explained.

Haig also said he did not feel there would be any new large-scale attack against the news media in the future. The general arrived at the North Shore Hilton Hotel in Skokie just prior to the dinner. He returned to Washington immediately after his speech.

Congressman Young said he and Haig had only a brief conversation during their plane ride from Washington to the Glenview Naval Air Station. He said they talked primarily about the Middle East situation. "We discussed the fact that Henry Kissinger is Jewish and whether or not this would cause a problem in the negotiations with the Arabs," Young said. He added they both agreed this would not be a factor.

IN PREPARED remarks, Young asked the partisan crowd to offer a silent prayer for President Nixon, so that he would have "strength, courage and wisdom."

"In my opinion, the President has done everything he can to try to re-establish the confidence of the American people in the independence of the Watergate investigation," Young said.

A host of local GOP dignitaries attended the $75-a-plate dinner. They included insurance magnate W. Clement Stone. Stone told The Herald that he still had confidence in the Republican Party.

Total of eight seek appointment

Four file for school board on last day of applications

Four candidates filed for appointment to the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education Wednesday, the last day candidate applications were accepted.

Howard Orlebeke, of Inverness, Patricia Caldwell of Schaumburg, Frank Redisi of Schaumburg, and Jean Fiesler of Palatine, join four other candidates who filed last week in seeking appointment to the vacancy on the board created Oct. 25 when board member Paul Hughes resigned because of poor health.

Board members will interview the eight candidates tomorrow and will make the appointment during their next meeting Nov. 15 at Hoffman Estates High School. The candidate selected will serve on the board until regular school board elections next April.

ORLEBEKE is president of Stolley and Orlebeke, manufacture representatives in Elmhurst. He attended the University of Illinois and Northwestern University and has a bachelor's degree in science. He and his wife who live at 1550 W. Banbury in Inverness have two children attending Fremd High School.

Mrs. Caldwell, 134 Hilltop Dr., Schaumburg, is past president of the Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates League of Women Voters and is a deacon at the Presbyterian Church of the Cross in Hoffman Estates. She said she is particularly interested in new state laws for school finance. She has two children, one in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 and one at Schaumburg High School.

Redisi, 107 Paxton, Schaumburg, is a certified public accountant for Killam and DeValk accounting firm in Elmhurst. He is a former teacher of fifth and seventh grades at St. Augustan grammar school in Chicago.

"I was always interested in education," said Redisi, who said he hopes to "bring his business experience to the board" if appointed. He and his wife have been committee members for the Northwest Chapter of Lukemia League. They have two children, one enrolled in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54.

MRS. FISLER is a consultant on youth at The Bridge youth services bureau in Palatine where she coordinates community activities for the bureau. She is also on the board of directors for Shelter, Inc., a not-for-profit agency now forming in the Northwest suburbs to provide shelter care for neglected and abused children. She is on the board of elders at the Presbyterian church in Palatine and on its community action and day-care center committees.

"I'm very interested in young people and have had the opportunity to be involved with many young people," said Mrs. Fiesler, of 921 S. Mallard Dr., Palatine. As a member of the Dist. 211 board she said she would "try to understand the needs of young people in the school system and serve the best interest of the community."

The other candidates who have filed for appointment are Lee Dodgion, candidate in Hoffman Estates Village board elections last April, Shirley Munson, former Palatine village trustee, Dianne Marks, former member of the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education, and John Heuman, candidate in Dist. 211 board elections last April.

the police among the village residents who are not students.

"Most people, as far as I can tell, support them (the police). They think the police are doing a good job and they realize all the problems a policeman has," he said.

After graduation from Elk Grove High School, Tom plans to get an associate's degree from Harper Junior College in either criminal justice, political science or police science. He has not made any definite nite plans after Harper, but would like to attend a regular college to get a degree.

WHEN HE IS old enough, Tom wants to take the examination for cadet in the village police department. If he is successful, he can be a cadet while going to school.

Eventually, Tom wants to be a policeman and said he would like to work with the Elk Grove Village police department.

"I really like the village force. I like the size of the town and I know the area," said Tom.

"I'd like to do plain-clothes or undercover work. I'd like to work with kids. I think I could be effective because I know their problems," said Tom.

Music students make solos

Mrs. James B. Roberts, a teacher of piano and voice in Elk Grove Village, recently presented a group of her younger students in an informal recital.

Students appearing on the program were: Jennie Anderson from Roselle; Maria and Kristen Bahnmaler from Mount Prospect. Students from Elk Grove Village were: Chuck Christie, Sheryl Kranow, Linda Christie, Andrea Blumstein, Scott Blumstein, Sally Cersosimo, Kaysee Cox, Glen Hansen, Carol Krasnow, Lynette Anderson, Karen Shofner, Jay Bickel, June Bickel, Beth Cox, Pamela Kane and Steve Anderson.

An obse solo was given by Jennie Anderson, a student of Robert Wise of Roselle.

Community Council meet

The Dist. 59 School Community Council will meet Wednesday, Nov. 14, in the Learning Center at Grove Junior High School, 777 Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village starting at 8 p.m.

Guest speaker will be Dr. Erwin Stevenson, Assistant Supl. for Instruction for the Elk Grove Township School District, which serves Elk Grove Village, and parts of Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines.

Dr. Stevenson will speak on the function of learning centers in the schools and how they help children take a more active part in their own education.

All Dist. 59 parents and friends are invited to attend the meeting. The talk will be followed by an open discussion and refreshments.

Unbeaten in league play

Police dominate basketball

The Fraternal Order of Police (FOP) basketball squad continued to dominate play in the Elk Grove Park District's basketball league with two easy wins this week. The team still leads the league with a perfect 6-0 record.

FOP cruised past Western Kraft Monday night 64-39 then dumped Reynolds and Reynolds Wednesday, 57-33. In other games, the Bank of Elk Grove team remained one game behind FOP with a 5-1 record by notching two wins this week. The bank squad beat Chrysler Corp., 53-

Snowtires stolen

Snowtires and rims, valued at $330, were taken from a truck at Hoskin Chevrolet, 175 N. Arlington Heights Rd. According to police, the tires were taken earlier this month, but the theft was not discovered until this week.

Burglary nets office machines

Burglars pried the back door off the Demac Co., 1350 Louis Ave., Tuesday night and took several office machines.

According to Elk Grove Village police, the hinges of the door were taken off and the lock forced open. Apparently the burglar broke a floodlight illuminating the area before removing the door.

Taken from the building were two dictating machines, a cassette tape player, two speakers and a clock. Typewriters and other machines in the office were not disturbed.

No loss estimate was reported to police.

Grease fire in home

A grease fire Tuesday caused an estimated $1,075 damage to a home at 569 Yarmouth Rd., Elk Grove Village. According to village firemen, the fire started when a broiler was used to heat a dinner.

Jaycee 'rap session'

There will be an informal "rap session" for any men interested in joining the Elk Grove Village Jaycees on Nov. 20.

The get-together will start at 8 p.m. at the home of Ralph Hogan, Jaycee president, of 31 Kennilworth Ave., Elk Grove Village. For more information, call 437-6534.

Four men were named "Jaycee of the Month" at a recent meeting of the Jaycees. John Wright, Jim Hansen, Pat O'Day and Dom Zommer were named for their work on Jaycee projects.

Book fair at Rupley

The Rupley School P.T.O. will sponsor a book fair Nov. 13 and 14, in Room 146 of the school, 205 E. Oakton St., Elk Grove Village.

The book fair hours will be 9:05 to 11:45 a.m. and 1 to 4:30 p.m. The fair will also be open 7 to 9 p.m. on Nov. 14.

Everyone is invited to come and select a book of their choice. Children's and adult books will be available.

Proceeds from the fair will help pay for the cultural arts programs and other school projects.

Vandals break window

Vandals broke a window on a car parked in the Garth Industries parking lot, 188 Seegers Ave. Monday afternoon. Damage was estimated at $50.

Suburbanites: 'It's just a matter of survival'

The energy shortage: how you'll feel it...

by The Herald Staff

The prospect of a chilly winter and gas shortages was accepted as a fact of life yesterday by Northwest suburban residents in the wake of President Nixon's call for voluntary cutbacks of energy consumption Wednesday.

Many people say they are already turning down the heat, starting car pools and turning off the lights whenever possible. In fact, the only widespread negative feeling about the cutback was a suspicion that not enough people will voluntarily restrict themselves to make a difference in the energy crisis.

"We usually turn our thermostats down in the evening anyway, and very seldom drive over 50, but will everyone do it? Are they going to do it in Washington, too?" asked Wheeling resident Mrs. Michael Grabus.

"I don't think too many people will voluntarily start being careful about power use. It will only happen when it is a forced rationing," predicted Barbara Murphy, a Hoffman Estates resident. But for many of the residents questioned by Herald reporters, the early rumblings of impending voluntary restrictions were taken to heart.

SEVERAL PEOPLE began taking the train to Chicago instead of driving when the summer gas shortages began. Others use car pools for shopping trips and recreational outings.

Fuel shortages also are being taken seriously by homeowners contemplating smaller, more economical cars.

"Our present one is a gas-eater," one woman admitted. Even traditionally speedy American drivers say they are willing to slow down to 50 miles per hour. Some believe that mandatory 50 mph speed limits are needed.

Ralph Bossert of Arlington Heights says he will be driving slower now. And he goes one step further.

"I believe that legislation should have been taken a long time ago," Bossert said of the gas shortage. And legislation encouraging smaller engines for cars should be passed, too, according to Bossert.

ANOTHER fair-weather conservation measure is used by a Des Plaines Man.

"My husband rides a bike to work. He's been doing it for some time," said Mrs. Judy Sickinger of Des Plaines.

For some people, the energy crisis is a job crisis, too.

"Damn right I'm worried and turning off more lights and driving slower and heating less. It means my job if we don't have fuels," said a Schaumburg pilot who works with a major airline.

Mike Scimeca, a gasoline station owner in Hoffman Estates, says he's mad "in general, because everybody is just worried about being rationed. I'm not only rationed already, I don't have the right to raise my gas prices when the oil companies keep raising mine."

Scimeca says he'll do his share to conserve energy at home, "because I'm worried about it all running out, but I just hope I can go on making a living."

SOME RESIDENTS blame politics for the crisis. One man said the shortage is "a plot to get the Alaska (oil) pipeline through." Another believed that earlier administrations didn't do enough to start conserving years ago.

"This is something that has been going on for years," said one Arlington Heights woman.

On the other side of the political coin, one person said Nixon "was smart to urge voluntary measures." Joe Owens of Arlington Heights said, "I think there was no other alternative."

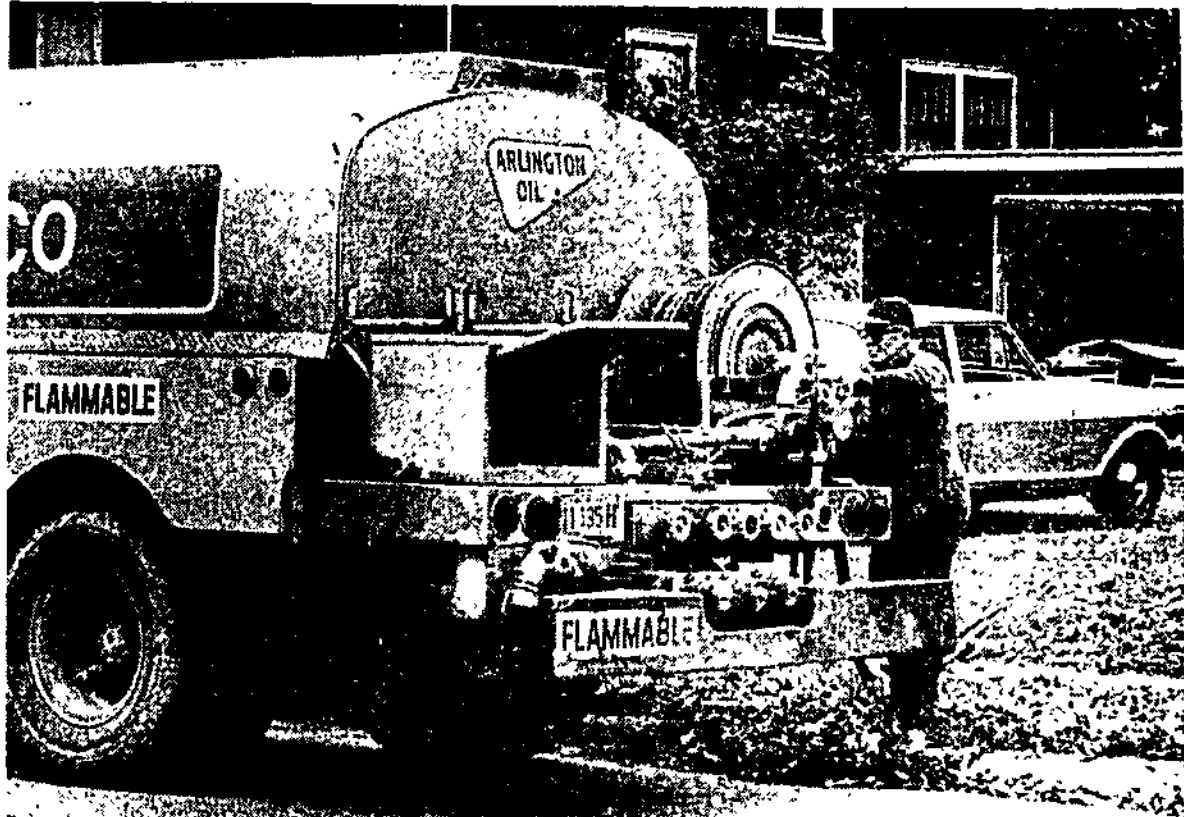

Kenneth Fraley, a Rolling Meadows resident, is confident that Americans will "get together to work on this thing and do exactly what he (Nixon) wants us to do."

"The American people are noted for that — when they have to do something, they get together and do it," Fraley said.

BUT FOR OTHER homeowners, the struggle to conserve energy comes as a byproduct of the fight to save money.

"I've got four kids and a wife. It costs too much to live now. If I don't constantly scream about shutting off lights, closing doors and save, save, on bills, we'd starve," said one Hoffman Estates homeowner.

"Nixon? Heck, he's not asking me to do anything I haven't had to do to survive," he said.

Lowering home thermostats can ease the heating oil crunch.

Total of eight seek appointment

Four file for school board on last day of applications

Four candidates filed for appointment to the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education Wednesday, the last day candidate applications were accepted.

Howard Orlebeke, of Inverness, Patricia Caldwell of Schaumburg, Frank Redisi of Schaumburg, and Jean Fislser of Palatine, join four other candidates who filed last week in seeking appointment to the vacancy on the board created Oct. 25 when board member Paul Hughes resigned because of poor health.

Board members will interview the eight candidates tomorrow and will make the appointment during their next meeting Nov. 15 at Hoffman Estates High School. The candidate selected will serve on the board until regular school board elections next April.

ORLEBEKE is president of Stolley

The other candidates who have filed for appointment are Lee Dodgion, candidate in Hoffman Estates Village board elections last April, Shirley Munson, former Palatine village trustee, Dianne Marks, former member of the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education, and John Heuman, candidate in Dist. 211 board elections last April.

Man allegedly exposes himself

A middle-age man allegedly exposed himself to two girls Wednesday night in the Palatine Public Library, 149 N. Brockway St.

The girls reported the incident to a librarian who told Palatine police officers the man walked out of the library and drove away with his car's lights off.

The man is described as approximately 45 years old, 5 foot 6 inches tall, weighing 160 to 165 pounds with freckles and red to sandy hair.

No arrests has been made.

Fremd open house Tuesday at 7:45 p.m.

Parents of students from Fremd High School will attend their child's classes Tuesday night in an open house and reception at the school.

Beginning at 7:45 classes will be held for 15-minute sessions. Parents are asked to follow their child's schedule, attending classes to meet teachers and discuss goals and teaching methods in each class.

Exhibits will be on display in the cafeteria and the Fremd drama club's mime troupe will perform in room 125. Dist. 211 Supt. Richard Kolze will be there to greet parents. Refreshments will be served in the cafeteria.

Most municipal buildings to close Monday

Elementary school and high school districts, Park districts and most municipal buildings in the Northwest suburbs will be closed Monday in honor of Veterans Day.

Rolling Meadows City Hall and the village halls in Arlington Heights, Hoffman Estates and Elk Grove Village will be open, however. Post offices, public libraries and Harper College in Palatine also will be open as will Elk Grove Township offices.

Abzug: Nixon should quit, election should follow

by KATHY BOYCE

U.S. Rep. Bella Abzug of New York said she plans to introduce a bill in Congress for a special Presidential election next November if President Nixon leaves office.

If Congress confirms President Nixon's vice-presidential nominee Gerald Ford, "we may well be electing the President of the United States for you," said Rep. Abzug. She said she believed that once Ford is confirmed by Congress, members of the Republican Party will ask Nixon to resign.

"Mr. Ford is not the free choice of the people," said Rep. Abzug. Nixon has chosen a successor "as one does almost in a monarchy, not in a democracy," she said. "And the laws providing for succession should be changed."

IT IS "THE great majority of Americans that have been abused and it is the Americans that now have to act," said Rep. Abzug. "You picked the President," she said. "It's your problem."

Rep. Abzug has also written a bill for Nixon's impeachment and she claims she has advocated his impeachment for 18 months. "The fact is that the American public can no longer believe what Mr. Nixon says or does," she said. It is "quite evident that this great democracy of ours has almost been stolen from us."

The government has become corrupt and the American public must start cleaning it up by electing a new President, said Rep. Abzug.

"What the founders of our nation wanted to provide was an impeachable President because they had an unimpeachable king," said Rep. Abzug. It is "a fundamental safeguard against what we had rebelled against."

The Congress that passed the 25th amendment, which says the President may pick the vice-presidential successor, "really never contemplated a double vacancy or that it might be an impeachable President who will do the picking," Rep. Abzug said.

In the past year, "the American people have learned a lot," said Rep. Abzug. There are "a lot of wonderful things in this country and we still have a chance to be the greatest democracy in the world," she said, adding, "there is evidence that in this country democracy is not only breathing and alive, but it can kick a little."

WHEN PRESIDENT Nixon fired special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox, he made "the biggest mistake of his life," she said the controversy over Watergate and the firing of Cox "reflects a continuing schism in American life" over what politics should be.

It has "gotten to the point where the Watergate inquiry began to look like a political whodunit," Rep. Abzug said. Her bill for impeachment charges Nixon with seven separate violations of the law; including defiance of a court order, the firing of Cox, obstruction of justice, impounding of federal money, and falsification of records regarding the bombing of Cambodia.

General Haig: 'Vindication not resignation'

by STEVE BROWN

With a theme of "vindication, not resignation," more than 500 Republican supporters gathered last night to cheer Presidential adviser Gen. Alexander Haig, who spoke in a fund-raising address for U.S. Rep. Sam Young, R-10th.

Haig delivered a speech on the topic of "The Global Strategic Situation," and reviewed what he considered "administrative accomplishments and the challenges of the future."

Prior to the speech, Haig declined to answer any questions about the Watergate situation. "I'm not here to answer those types of inquiries," the general said. Haig emphatically stated, however, that President Nixon would not resign. "We have a great deal to get done," Haig said. "We have a basic strategy to get out about the Watergate situation," he stated, adding the facts of the matter would come out in the courts.

HAIG SAID THE President felt he should deny the possibility of his resignation Wednesday night because of the "great deal of speculation about the topic."

The general said the President has shown few signs of strain or fatigue because of the pressures of either Watergate or the other international crises. "Anybody could see the President was feeling fine from his television speech

Wednesday night," Haig explained.

Haig also said he did not feel there would be any new large-scale attack against the news media in the future. The general arrived at the North Shore Hilton Hotel in Skokie just prior to the dinner. He returned to Washington immediately after his speech.

Congressman Young said he and Haig had only a brief conversation during their plane ride from Washington to the Glenview Naval Air Station. He said they talked primarily about the Middle East situation. "We discussed the fact that Henry Kissinger is Jewish and whether or not this would cause a problem in the negotiations with the Arabs," Young said. He added they both agreed this would not be a factor.

IN PREPARED remarks, Young asked the partisan crowd to offer a silent prayer for President Nixon, so that he would have "strength, courage and wisdom."

"In my opinion, the President has done everything he can to try to re-establish the confidence of the American people in the independence of the Watergate investigation," Young said.

A host of local GOP dignitaries attended the $75-a-plate dinner. They included insurance magnate W. Clement Stone. Stone told The Herald that he still had confidence in the Republican Party.

Archaeology exhibit

An archaeological exhibit of diggings from southern Illinois will be displayed at the Palatine Public Library starting today through Nov. 18.

College and high school students from the Chicago area have been excavating the farm site down to cultural layers dating back to 8,000 B.C.

Objects unearthed at the site will be on display in the children's library during regular library hours, at 149 N. Broadway St., Palatine.

Gripentrog honored

Neale A. Gripentrog, Mount Prospect, has been named board member of the year by the Countryside Center for the Handicapped in Barrington. Gripentrog is one of 30 volunteer board members for the center.

He helped organize the first annual golf outing in September which raised $10,000 for the center's building fund. Countryside Center for the Handicapped works with mentally retarded, physically or emotionally handicapped children and adults from Cook, Lake and McHenry counties.

Free film on reactors set

A free showing of the British film, "How Safe Are American Reactors?" will be open to the public at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Room 212, in Building A at Harper College.

The movie is a documentary on the dangers of nuclear power, and its showing is sponsored by the Pollution and Environmental Problems (PEP) organization based in Palatine.

Pack 188 seeks members

Cub Scout Pack 188, sponsored by Christ Lutheran Church, is recruiting new members.

Interested families are invited to attend the Nov. 18 pack meeting at Christ Lutheran Church, 41 S. Rollwing Rd., Palatine, at 7:30 p.m. or contact Bob Lindgard at 338-0530 for more information.

Several awards were presented at the October Pack meeting. Bobcat Badges were presented to Cliff Hene, Kinley Jackson, John Laville and Louis Paulos. The Arrow of Light badge was given to Weibels Mark Doebler.

Service pins for one year were presented to Cub Scout Ed Long and Den Leader Mrs. Long; two year service pins went to Cub Scout Stan Dolecki and Den Leader Mrs. Dolecki; and three year pins were given to Dave Carlino and Mark Doebler.

Crusade passes $9,000; now $6,000 short of goal

The Palatine Crusade of Mercy has passed the $9,000 mark and is only $6,000 away from reaching its 1973 campaign goal.

The $9,000 represents a collection of 60 per cent of the $15,000 goal during the first month of the campaign.

"I am pretty confident we will reach our goal this year," said Charles Foos, president of the local crusade.

The $9,000 compares to $3,495 for the same period during the 1972 campaign. In 1972 the campaign fell nearly $4,000 short of its $15,000 goal.

Foos attributes part of the success of this year's campaign to an increase in contributions from local businesses and professions.

MORE THAN $2,500 has already been collected from 38 local businesses and additional pledges have been made, said Foos. He added there are more businesses contributing this year and already the business drive is $500 ahead of the total collected last year.

Campaign workers have personally contacted 75 per cent of the local businesses and plan to contact the remaining businesses within the next few weeks.

Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15 employees have contributed more than $800, nearly 16 times as much as last year's contribution of $52. The High School Dist. 211 campaign drive is currently in progress and won't be concluded until Nov. 21.

A SECOND MAILING will be going out to Palatine residents within the next week. This will enable those who desire to make their contribution prior to the end of the year and take advantage of the tax deduction to do so, said Foos.

The residential sector, which has always been the backbone of the campaign, is doing well again this year, according to Foos. He reported fewer residential contributors than past years but larger donations per contributor.

The main thrust of the 1973 campaign, which has the theme "People Helping People," is expected to end by the first of the year.

The money raised in the local drive will stay in the community. For every dollar raised locally the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy contributes $2 making up the difference between the $15,000 local goal and the $45,000 needed by the 13 local organizations which share the funds.

Local organizations receiving Crusade of Mercy funds are: Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Campfire Girls, Countryside Center, United Servicemen's Organization, Salvation Army welfare fund and community service, Homemakers, Santa Teresita Church day care center, Northwest Mental Health, Clearbrook Center and Camp Reinberg.

Octoberfest fete tonight

Octoberfest in November will be celebrated by the Willow Wood Civic Association tonight at the Hans Bavarian Lodge in Wheeling. Tickets are available to association members by contacting Bill Martin at 359-5098.

Crusade of Mercy election

New officers of the Palatine Crusade of Mercy will be elected at the Dec. 5 meeting at 8 p.m. at Palatine Township Hall, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine.

All Palatine Township residents are invited to attend the meeting.

'Book Week' events set

Children's Book Week will be celebrated next week at the Palatine Public Library, 149 N. Broadway St., featuring a Tuesday family night program. The family night will include stories, songs, and puppet plays, beginning at 7:30 for one hour.

Also available during the week is the Koster archeological exhibit, Thursday afternoon film and a special Book Week book marker for each child.

Murder suspect in court

Defense motions to suppress evidence against murder suspect Israel Pequeno, 18, of Palatine, are expected to be presented today as pre-trial hearings continue in the case surrounding the slaying March 26 of Sharon Soyka, 17, of Rolling Meadows.

The hearing is scheduled to take place today in Cook County Criminal Court before Judge Benjamin Mackoff. Pequeno is being held without bond in Cook County Jail for allegedly shooting Miss Soyka to death in her home more than seven months ago. Pequeno, 503 W. Wood Street, Palatine, allegedly shot the girl in her home at 3717 Oriole Lane after the two quarrelled about continuing to date each other.

Today's hearing will be the fifth held since Pequeno was taken into custody by Rolling Meadows police following the shooting. Assistant state's attorneys prosecuting the case have said if a jury trial is requested by Pequeno, a trial probably will not begin until sometime next year.

FUTURE MAN

AN IN-DEPTH PROFILE

WHAT WILL WE BE LIKE IN THE FUTURE? Several noted scientists and writers have described their impressions of FUTURE MAN. They studied developments in learning, teaching methods, general trends in society, and current research. They analyzed this information and came to rather definite conclusions as to what "FUTURE MAN" will be like:

- HE WILL BE FINANCIALLY INDEPENDENT AS A RESULT OF INCREASED MOTIVATION AND ACHIEVEMENT ...
- MAN WILL MASTER A GREAT MAJORITY OF HIS HEALTH PROBLEMS ...
- HE WILL HAVE MORE INSIGHT AND GREATER SELF-CONFIDENCE ...
- HE WILL HAVE BETTER FAMILY RELATIONS ...

ALL THESE FANTASTIC FUNCTIONS DESCRIBED FOR "FUTURE MAN" ARE BEING PRACTICED NOW! TODAY BY GRADUATES OF THE SILVA MIND CONTROL CENTER. JOIN THE FAMILY OF MAN BY LEARNING TO FUNCTION AT THESE SUPERIOR LEVELS OF MIND.

Over 200,000 people have graduated from this astounding course... They make up the nucleus of the Family of Man. They have been exposed to a unique concept of human development and many graduates report that they:

- Can master insomnia • Control headaches • Can eliminate habits such as smoking and weight • Have increased their memory power • Have new-found creative ability • Are more intuitive.

Suburbanites: 'It's just a matter of survival'

The energy shortage: how you'll feel it...

by The Herald Staff
The prospect of a chilly winter and gas shortages was accepted as a fact of life yesterday by Northwest suburban residents in the wake of President Nixon's call for voluntary cutbacks of energy consumption Wednesday.

Many people say they are already turning down the heat, starting car pools and turning off the lights whenever possible. In fact, the only widespread negative feeling about the cutback was a suspicion that not enough other people will voluntarily restrict themselves to make a difference in the energy crisis.

"We usually turn our thermostats down in the evening anyway, and very seldom drive over 50, but will everyone do it? Are they going to do it in Washington, too?" asked Wheeling resident Mrs. Michael Grabus.

"I don't think too many people will voluntarily start being careful about power use. It will only happen when it is a forced rationing," predicted Barbara Murphy, a Hoffman Estates resident. But for many of the residents questioned by Herald reporters, the early rumblings of impending voluntary restrictions were taken to heart.

SEVERAL PEOPLE began taking the train to Chicago instead of driving when the summer gas shortages began. Others use car pools for shopping trips and recreational outings.

Fuel shortages also are being taken seriously by homeowners contemplating smaller, more economical cars.

"Our present one is a gas-eater," one woman admitted. Even traditionally speedy American drivers say they are willing to slow down to 50 miles per hour. Some believe that mandatory 50 mph speed limits are needed.

Ralph Bossert of Arlington Heights says he will be driving slower now. And he goes one step further.

"I believe that legislation should have been taken a long time ago," Bossert said of the gas shortage. And legislation encouraging smaller engines for cars should be passed, too, according to Bossert.

ANOTHER fair-weather conservation measure is used by a Des Plaines man.

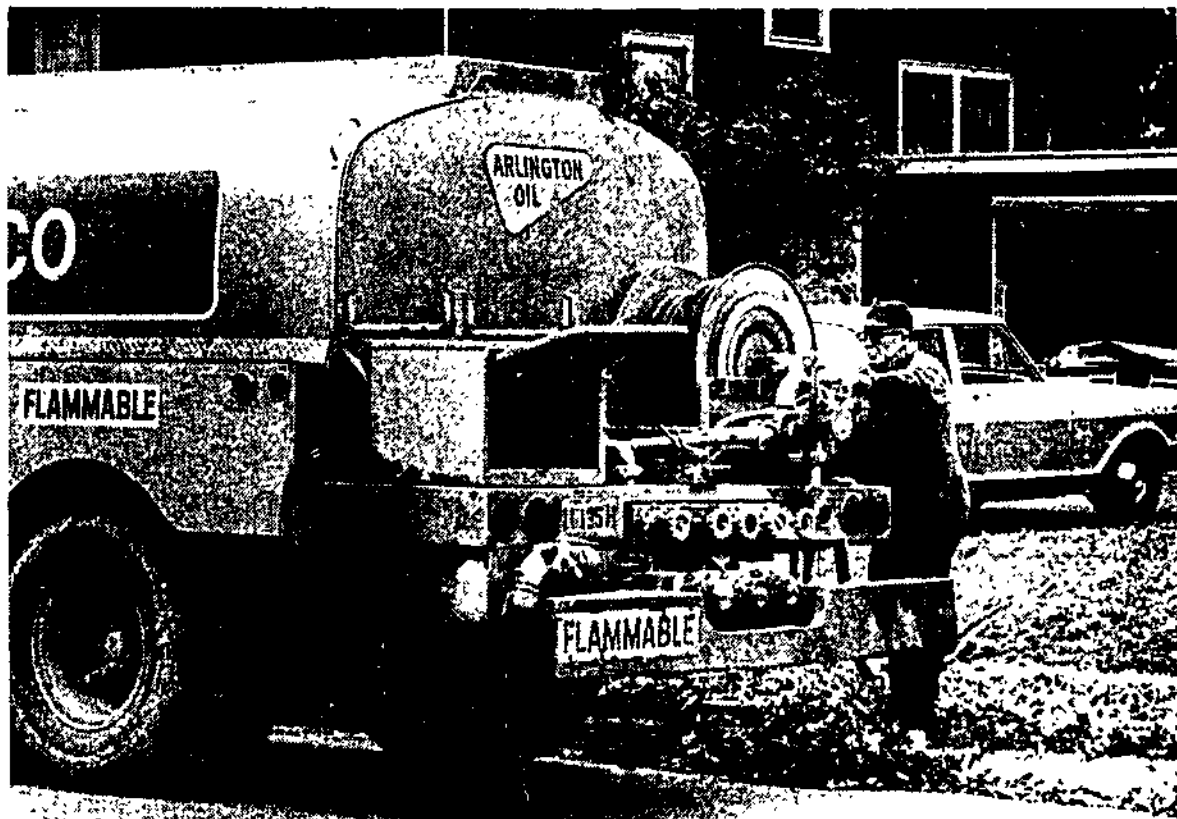

"My husband rides a bike to work. He's been doing it for some time," said Mrs. Judy Sickinger of Des Plaines.

For some people, the energy crisis is a job crisis, too.

"Damn right I'm worried and turning off more lights and driving slower and heating less. It means my job if we don't have fuels," said a Schaumburg pilot who works with a major airline.

Mike Scimeca, a gasoline station owner in Hoffman Estates, says he's mad "in general, because everybody is just worried about being rationed. I'm not only rationed already, I don't have the right to raise my gas prices when the oil companies keep raising mine."

Scimeca says he'll do his share to conserve energy at home, "because I'm worried about it all running out, but I just hope I can go on making a living."

Lowering home thermostats can ease the heating oil crunch.

SOME RESIDENTS blame politics for the crisis. One man said the shortage is "a plot to get the Alaska (oil) pipeline through." Another believed that earlier administrations didn't do enough to start conserving years ago.

"This is something that has been going on for years," said one Arlington Heights woman.

On the other side of the political coin, one person said Nixon "was smart to urge voluntary measures." Joe Owens of Arlington Heights said, "I think there was no other alternative."

Kenneth Fraley, a Rolling Meadows resident, is confident that Americans will "get together to work on this thing and do exactly what he (Nixon) wants us to do."

"The American people are noted for that — when they have to do something, they get together and do it," Fraley said.

BUT FOR OTHER homeowners, the struggle to conserve energy comes as a byproduct of the fight to save money.

"I've got four kids and a wife. It costs too much to live now. If I don't constantly scream about shutting off lights, closing doors and save, save, save, on bills, we'd starve," said one Hoffman Estates homeowner.

"Nixon? Heck, he's not asking me to do anything I haven't had to do to survive," he said.

Second phase of improvement program

Library plans new lounge to attract young people

The Rolling Meadows Public Library is making plans for a student lounge that would include record players, projectors, sofas and tables in an attempt to get more young persons into the library.

The $25,000 contributed by the city to the library this year will be used to redecorate the central part of the main floor between the entrance and the reference room and purchasing furniture for the children's area. The library is located at 3110 Martin Lane.

"We're trying to get out young people into the library," said library director Miss Virginia Connell.

Miss Connell said that more youngsters than ever before are using the library, but the numbers aren't "nearly enough." She said the library reaches only a small percentage of the students.

THE NEW LOUNGE is one part of a three-part library-improvement program. The first part, Phase I, was the creation of a children's wing out of the basement, which had been used as storage area.

Most of Phase I was completed last year at a cost of $50,000 Miss Connell said. The children's room still needed some tables, chairs and shelving that the $50,000 donated by the city did not cover. The additional furniture and the lounge area for high school and college students is Phase II, Miss Connell said.

Phase III is the construction of an addition to house the constantly increasing number of books in the library. "We've been able to move ahead (in the purchase of books) rather rapidly in the last few years," Miss Connell said.

She said this was due to help from the Friends of the Library who raised an estimated $1,000 each year for the last few years and a recent $1,000 given by the city for books.

Proposed project may be approved after 6 years

Almost six years after first approaching the city with a development proposal for land on East Frontage Road south of Kirchoff Road, developer Ted Meyer may be close to receiving approval from Rolling Meadows officials.

Meyer appeared before the Rolling Meadows Plan Commission Wednesday with a plan to build 14 single-family homes on the 2½-acre site. The plan is the fourth presented by Meyer since 1967 when the city first turned down Meyer's proposal for a townhouse development on the site.

Subsequent plans, including apartments and condominiums, were also refused by the city. Meyer's newest plans however, appeared to be acceptable not only to officials but to residents living near the site. The homeowners in the past have objected to Meyer's attempts to build multi-family units.

MEYER APPEARED before the commission Wednesday at the suggestion of the public works-building and zoning committee to attempt to win preliminary approval for the project. But commissioners said they could not vote on the plan because insufficient information on dimensions and details of the plan had to be reviewed.

A subcommittee of the commission was appointed to review the project and return with a recommendation on which the commission could act perhaps next month. Commission Chairman Richard Schar said if preliminary approval was granted soon, the project could be completed.

MISS CONNELL said she did not know if the library would have to hold a referendum for the addition or could find the money through other sources.

As presently envisioned, the lounge will have modern wallpaper and decorations, comfortable sofas, record players with headphones and audio visual equipment.

The amount of equipment will depend on the cost of the various items, Miss Connell said. Members of the library board are looking into the costs of furniture and audio-visual equipment and supplies.

At present, they are considering a sound slide projector, microfilm projectors and other items used in the area schools. "We hope students will feel free to visit their library and be able to work in the same fields and areas they have in the schools," Miss Connell said.

Most municipal buildings to close Monday

Elementary school and high school districts, Park districts and most municipal buildings in the Northwest suburbs will be closed Monday in honor of Veterans Day.

Rolling Meadows City Hall and the village halls in Arlington Heights, Hoffman Estates and Elk Grove Village will be open, however. Post offices, public libraries and Harper College in Palatine also will be open as will Elk Grove Township offices.

Abzug: Nixon should quit, election should follow

by KATHY BOYCE

U.S. Rep. Bella Abzug of New York said tonight that she plans to introduce a bill in Congress for a special Presidential election next November if President Nixon leaves office.

If Congress confirms President Nixon's vice-presidential nominee Gerald Ford, "we may well be electing the President of the United States for you," said Rep. Abzug. She said she believed that once Ford is confirmed by Congress, members of the Republican Party will ask Nixon to resign.

"Mr. Ford is not the free choice of the people," said Rep. Abzug. Nixon has chosen a successor "as one does almost in a monarchy, not in a democracy," she said. "And the laws providing for succession should be changed."

IT IS "THE great majority of Americans that have been abused and it is the Americans that now have to act," said Rep. Abzug. "You picked the President," she said. "It's your problem."

Rep. Abzug has also written a bill for Nixon's impeachment and she claims she has advocated his impeachment for 18 months. "The fact is that the American public can no longer believe what Mr. Nixon says or does," she said. It is "quite evident that this great democracy of ours has almost been stolen from us."

The government has become corrupt and the American public must start cleaning it up by electing a new President, said Rep. Abzug.

"What the founders of our nation wanted to provide was an impeachable President because they had an unimpeachable king," said Rep. Abzug. It is "a fundamental safeguard against what we had rebelled against."

The Congress that passed the 25th amendment, which says the President may pick the vice-presidential successor, "really never contemplated a double vacancy or that it might be an impeachable President who will do the picking," Rep. Abzug said.

In the past year, "the American people have learned a lot," said Rep. Abzug. There are "a lot of wonderful things in this country and we still have a chance to be the greatest democracy in the world," she said, adding, "there is evidence that in this country democracy is not only breathing and alive, but it can kick a little."

WHEN PRESIDENT Nixon fired special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox, he made "the biggest mistake of his life," she said. The controversy over Watergate and the firing of Cox "reflects a continuing schism in American life" over what politics should be.

It has "gotten to the point where the Watergate inquiry began to look like a political whodunit," Rep. Abzug said. Her bill for impeachment charges Nixon with seven separate violations of the law, including defiance of a court order, the firing of Cox, obstruction of justice, impounding of federal money, and falsification of records regarding the bombing of Cambodia.

General Haig: 'Vindication not resignation'

by STEVE BROWN

With a theme of "vindication, not resignation," more than 500 Republican supporters gathered last night to cheer Presidential adviser Gen. Alexander Haig, who spoke in a fund-raising address for U.S. Rep. Sam Young, R-10th.

Haig delivered a speech on the topic of "The Global Strategic Situation," and reviewed what he considered "administration accomplishments and the challenges of the future."

Prior to the speech, Haig declined to answer any questions about the Watergate situation. "I'm not here to answer those types of inquiries," the general said. Haig emphatically stated, however, that President Nixon would not resign. "We have a great deal to get done," Haig said. "We have a basic strategy to get out about the Watergate situation," he stated, adding the facts of the matter would come out in the courts.

HAIG SAID THE President felt he should deny the possibility of his resignation Wednesday night because of the "great deal of speculation about the topic."

The general said the President has shown few signs of strain or fatigue because of the pressures of either Watergate or the other international crises. "Anybody could see the President was feeling fine from his television speech

Wednesday night," Haig explained.

Haig also said he did not feel there would be any new large-scale attack against the news media in the future. The general arrived at the North Shore Hilton Hotel in Skokie just prior to the dinner. He returned to Washington immediately after his speech.

Congressman Young said he and Haig had only a brief conversation during their plane ride from Washington to the Glenview Naval Air Station. He said they talked primarily about the Middle East situation. "We discussed the fact that Henry Kissinger is Jewish and whether or not this would cause a problem in the negotiations with the Arabs," Young said. He added they both agreed this would not be a factor.

IN PREPARED remarks, Young asked the partisan crowd to offer a silent prayer for President Nixon, so that he would have "strength, courage and wisdom."

"In my opinion, the President has done everything he can to try to re-establish the confidence of the American people in the independence of the Watergate investigation," Young said.

A host of local GOP dignitaries attended the $75-a-plate dinner. They included insurance magnate W. Clement Stone. Stone told The Herald that he had confidence in the Republican Party.

POSSING FOR AN old-fashioned portrait are three of the Sacred Heart of Mary students acting in the school's upcoming drama production, "Spoon River Anthology." Mary Clara Brady, left, plays the elderly seamstress; Joe Herrigas, center, plays the town deacon, and Carrie Mitchell, right, acts the part of the town's school teacher. The play will be shown tonight and tomorrow night at 8 in Sacred Heart's School Theater, 2800 Central Rd., Rolling Meadows.

sidered by the city council sometime in December at the earliest.

Schar and the commission were also critical of the building and zoning committee made up of aldermen and the failure to notify the commission that Meyer had been told to appear before it. He said poor communication between the commission, the committee and other city department heads has caused repeated embarrassment to the commission and developers who are not made aware of the information they must present to the commission before recommendations of approval can be made.

"I'M CRITICIZING THE building and zoning committee, not you, Mr. Meyer," Schar said. "I don't see why we could not have a copy of the minutes of that (committee) meeting."

The Rywick Village plan calls for the construction of 14 single-family bi-level homes which would sell for about $48,500, Meyer told the commission. The site would also include private streets within the subdivision and a section of open land which would be used as common land for recreation, Meyer said.

A homeowners association for the subdivision is also planned, he said.

If the plan is subsequently approved by the city council, it will mean the end of more than six years of effort by Meyer to develop the land.

In 1967, Meyer received preliminary zoning approval to build residential units—either single-family homes, apartments or condominiums—on the site. But although zoning for the land was approved, multiple-family projects which Meyer proposed were repeatedly turned down by the council.

MEYER TOLD the building and zoning committee last month that he had been able to obtain financing for the single-family project recently. Financing for a single-family development had not been available before now, Meyer said.

Two residents living on Holly Lane near the proposed development said after the meeting Wednesday they would not object to the single family home project and added other residents in the area had also expressed acceptance of the new proposal.

Residents to discuss nearby vacant land

Holly Lane meetings are scheduled

Residents of the Holly Lane area in Rolling Meadows, who for years have fought attempts to turn vacant property behind their homes into commercial developments, will be allowed to meet with city plan commission members in January to discuss acceptable uses of the vacant land.

The meeting was scheduled at the request of Ald. Kenneth Retzke (5th), who resides on Holly Lane. In a letter to plan commission chairman Richard Schar, Retzke said the meeting could allow a free interchange of ideas between commissioners and residents on the best and most acceptable use of the land.

The vacant property behind the homeowners' lots is located on Kirchhoff Road between Owl Drive and East Frontage Road. The land is currently located in unincorporated Cook County but various developers have tried unsuccessfully in recent years to annex the property to the city and develop it commercially.

MOST RECENT were the attempts of the Continental Baking Company to use the land for a bakery thrift store. Zoning for the store was turned down by the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals and also by the city, largely due to the protests of the Holly Lane residents.

The meeting between the commission and the residents was not agreed on unanimously, however, as some commissioners questioned the proposal.

Comr. Walter Jacobsen said residents on Holly Lane have opposed every plan ever presented for development of the property. "We could turn down 50 proposals before we ever find one they would accept," Jacobsen said. He said restaurants like the ones which have been proposed for the land in the past, including a Pizza Hut, "have to go somewhere."

But Comr. Elizabeth Brissenden disagreed. "I don't think the Dog 'n Suds and Pizza Huts have any place in the city," she said, adding that such establishments "demean" the city.

Jacobsen's wife, Patricia, another commissioner, also criticized the proposed meeting, saying it would set a precedent that might lead to other aldermen wanting meetings with the commission to plan developments.

RETZKE DEFENDED the plan saying it would provide a rare opportunity for residents to give their thoughts to city officials on decisions directly affecting them. Supporting Retzke were Schar and Commissioners Robert Byrnes, Keith Bane and Kenneth White.

"I think it is part of the responsibility of the plan commission to keep in mind the interests of local residents as well as the city," Bane said. He added he would be "strongly in favor" of meeting with the residents. "In my opinion it would be establishing a good precedent."

"The more information we can get, the more able we'll be to make a reasonable master plan and please some of the people," White said.

The commission then voted 8-1 on a motion by Byrnes and Bane to hold the meeting. The dissenting vote was cast by Mrs. Jacobsen.

Parents charged

A Palatine couple has been charged with child neglect following complaints that their five-year-old daughter was frequently left unsupervised.

Palatine police charged Mr. and Mrs. Americo Espinosa, 139 S. Quentin Rd., with child neglect Wednesday following complaints from a neighbor that the Espinosa child was left unsupervised while the parents were at work.

The Palatine Police Department has turned the case over the Illinois Child and Family Services division. No court date has been set.

Total of eight seek appointment

Four file for school board on last day of applications

Four candidates filed for appointment to the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education Wednesday, the last day candidate applications were accepted.

Howard Orlebeke, of Inverness, Patricia Caldwell of Schaumburg, Frank Redisi of Schaumburg, and Jean Flesler of Palatine, join four other candidates who filed last week in seeking appointment to the vacancy on the board created Oct. 25 when board member Paul Hughes resigned because of poor health.

Board members will interview the eight candidates tomorrow and will make the appointment during their next meeting Nov. 15 at Hoffman Estates High School. The candidate selected will serve on the board until regular school board elections next April.

ORLEBEKE is president of Stolley and Orlebeke, manufacture representatives in Elmhurst. He attended the University of Illinois and Northwestern University and has a bachelor's degree in science. He and his wife who live at 1530 W. Banbury in Inverness have two children attending Fremd High School.

Mrs. Caldwell, 134 Hilltop Dr., Schaumburg, is past president of the Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates League of Women Voters and is a deacon at the Presbyterian Church of the Cross in Hoffman Estates. She said she is particularly interested in new state laws for school finance. She has two children, one in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 and one at Schaumburg High School.

Redisi, 107 Paxton, Schaumburg, is a certified public accountant for Killam and DeValk accounting firm in Elmhurst. He is a former teacher of fifth and seventh grades at St. Augustin grammar school in Chicago.

"I was always interested in education," said Redisi, who said he hopes to "bring his business experience to the board" if appointed. He and his wife have been committee members for the Northwest Chapter of Lukemia League. They have two children, one enrolled in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54.

MRS. FISLER is a consultant on youth at The Bridge youth services bureau in Palatine where she coordinates community activities for the bureau. She is also on the board of directors for Shelter, Inc., a not-for-profit agency now forming in the Northwest suburbs to provide shelter care for neglected and abused children. She is on the board of elders at the Presbyterian church in Palatine and on its community action and day-care center committees.

"I'm very interested in young people and have had the opportunity to be involved with many young people," said Mrs. Flesler, of 921 S. Mallard Dr., Palatine. As a member of the Dist. 211 board she said she would "try to understand the needs of young people in the school system and serve the best interest of the community."

The other candidates who have filed for appointment are Lee Dodgion, candidate in Hoffman Estates Village board elections last April, Shirley Munson, former Palatine village trustee, Dianne Marks, former member of the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education, and John Heuman, candidate in Dist. 211 board elections last April.

Builder purchases tract by proposed development

Irving Rootberg has purchased an 80-acre tract adjoining the proposed Shefner townhouse rental development on Mudhank Road in Hoffman Estates. Rootberg plans a residential project for the land.

The land purchase was revealed Wednesday night at a special plans commission hearing on Nathan Shefner's rezoning request, and was confirmed yesterday by Michael Rootberg, son of the owner of Admiral Builders. Rootberg said he could not comment on plans for the 80 acres, except note Admiral Builders has constructed numerous planned unit developments (PUDs) in the area. Rootberg currently is expected to request PUD zoning for a parcel along Bode Road in the Village of Schaumburg.

Little action was taken at the Shefner hearing, because Shefner's attorney was ill and unable to attend. Proceedings were rescheduled for 8 p.m. Dec. 5 in the municipal building, 1200 N. Gannon Dr.

THE PLAN COMMISSION, over Shefner's objection, will allow William Brathwaite to cross-examine and present witnesses. Brathwaite is the attorney for Inverness and the Barrington Area Council of Governments (BACOG). Part of Shefner's land, which is not included in the project but adjoins it, is in South Barrington, a BACOG member.

The commission also decided to seek an official position statement concerning the Shefner project from South Barrington. Shefner's 52.7-acre site now is zoned for single-family homes on one-acre lots. He wants rezoning to allow construction of 107 buildings in eight clusters around a retention pond. The buildings would contain 490 townhouse units, and no building would have more than two stories.

When the hearing reconvenes, the plan commission will question Shefner and his witnesses, and allow opponents of the project to question them or to present other witnesses.

$1,400 in appliances reported stolen

Schaumburg police are investigating two burglaries reported late Wednesday.

Appliances totalling $1,400 were reported missing from a storage garage at Consumers Development and Construction, Ltd., 531 Verde Dr.

Merchandise included four General Electric portable garbage compactors, one General Electric refrigerator and six sets of faucets.

According to police there was no sign of forcible entry.

George Shatzer, 201 N. Brockway, Palatine, told police tools, valued at $375, were taken from his pick-up truck parked at Schaumburg Township Public Library.

Most municipal buildings to close Monday

Elementary school and high school districts, Park districts and most municipal buildings in the Northwest suburbs will be closed Monday in honor of Veterans Day.

Rolling Meadows City Hall and the village halls in Arlington Heights, Hoffman Estates and Elk Grove Village will be open, however. Post offices, public libraries and Harper College in Palatine also will be open as will Elk Grove Township offices.

Abzug: Nixon should quit, election should follow

by KATHY BOYCE

U.S. Rep. Bella Abzug of New York said she plans to introduce a bill in Congress for a special Presidential election next November if President Nixon leaves office.

If Congress confirms President Nixon's vice-presidential nominee Gerald Ford, "we may well be electing the President of the United States for you," said Rep. Abzug. She said she believed that once Ford is confirmed by Congress, members of the Republican Party will ask Nixon to resign.

"Mr. Ford is not the free choice of the people," said Rep. Abzug. Nixon has chosen a successor "as one does almost in a monarchy, not in a democracy," she said. "And the laws providing for succession should be changed."

IT IS "THE great majority of Americans that have been abused and it is the Americans that now have to act," said Rep. Abzug. "You picked the President," she said. "It's your problem."

Rep. Abzug has also written a bill for Nixon's impeachment and she claims she has advocated his impeachment for 18 months. "The fact is that the American public can no longer believe what Mr. Nixon says or does," she said. It is "quite evident that this great democracy of ours has almost been stolen from us."

The government has become corrupt and the American public must start cleaning it up by electing a new President, said Rep. Abzug.

"What the founders of our nation wanted to provide was an impeachable President because they had an unimpeachable king," said Rep. Abzug. It is "a fundamental safeguard against what we had rebelled against."

The Congress that passed the 25th amendment, which says the President may pick the vice-presidential successor, "really never contemplated a double vacancy or that it might be an impeachable President who will do the picking," Rep. Abzug said.

In the past year, "the American people have learned a lot," said Rep. Abzug. There are "a lot of wonderful things in this country and we still have a chance to be the greatest democracy in the world," she said, adding, "there is evidence that in this country democracy is not only breathing and alive, but it can kick a little."

WHEN PRESIDENT Nixon fired special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox, he made "the biggest mistake of his life," she said. The controversy over Watergate and the firing of Cox "reflects a continuing schism in American life" over what politics should be.

It has "gotten to the point where the Watergate inquiry began to look like a political whodunit," Rep. Abzug said. Her bill for impeachment charges Nixon with seven separate violations of the law; including defiance of a court order, the firing of Cox, obstruction of justice, impounding of federal money, and falsification of records regarding the bombing of Cambodia.

General Haig: 'Vindication not resignation'

by STEVE BROWN

With a theme of "vindication, not resignation," more than 500 Republican supporters gathered last night to cheer Presidential adviser Gen. Alexander Haig, who spoke in a fund-raising address for U.S. Rep. Sam Young, R-10th.

Haig delivered a speech on the topic of "The Global Strategic Situation," and reviewed what he considered "administrative accomplishments and the challenges of the future."

Prior to the speech, Haig declined to answer any questions about the Watergate situation. "I'm not here to answer those types of inquiries," the general said. Haig emphatically stated, however, that President Nixon would not resign. "We have a great deal to get done," Haig said. "We have a basic strategy to get out about the Watergate situation," he stated, adding the facts of the matter would come out in the courts.

HAIG SAID THE President felt he should deny the possibility of his resignation Wednesday night because of the "great deal of speculation about the topic."

The general said the President has shown few signs of strain or fatigue because of the pressures of either Watergate or the other international crises. "Anybody could see the President was feeling fine from his television speech Wednesday night," Haig explained.

Haig also said he did not feel there would be any new large-scale attack against the news media in the future. The general arrived at the North Shore Hilton Hotel in Skokie just prior to the dinner. He returned to Washington immediately after his speech.

Congressman Young said he and Haig had only a brief conversation during their plane ride from Washington to the Glenview Naval Air Station. He said they talked primarily about the Middle East situation. "We discussed the fact that Henry Kissinger is Jewish and whether or not this would cause a problem in the negotiations with the Arabs," Young said. He added they both agreed this would not be a factor.

IN PREPARED remarks, Young asked the partisan crowd to offer a silent prayer for President Nixon, so that he would have "strength, courage and wisdom."

"In my opinion, the President has done everything he can to try to re-establish the confidence of the American people in the independence of the Watergate investigation," Young said.

A host of local GOP dignitaries attended the $75-a-plate dinner. They included insurance magnate W. Clement Stone. Stone told The Herald that he still had confidence in the Republican Party.

Transit center planning to begin soon

Preliminary planning for a regional transportation center in Schaumburg will begin with a review of proposals presented by Mayor Robert O. Atcher in 1971.

Members of the newly formed mass transportation committee, formerly the airport study committee, will meet with Atcher in the near future to coordinate plans and define needs.

A 20-acre site in the southern part of the village near Irving Park Road, Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park and Schaumburg Airport, has been tentatively selected for the proposed center.

"We intend to set down a planning method to determine what we have and what is needed in the area of mass transportation," Fred Dietrich, committee chairman, said this week.

DIETRICH indicated the committee will need the assistance of Village Engr. Joe Zgonina and Administrator John Coste.

Meetings will also be planned with Milwaukee Road and Chicago and North Western railway officials, along with Schaumburg Transportation Co. owners.

The center would contain rail, bus and truck facilities along with a possible commuter station and parking area. An expanded and possibly village-owned airport would also be part of the complex.

DIETRICH REVIEWED the status of an airport feasibility study now awaiting federal funding approval.

He noted the State of Illinois has agreed to fund one-sixth of the cost of the study and has earmarked $9,893 for this purpose.

The local scene

Hospital aide to speak

A representative of Hoffman Estates Community Hospital will speak to the Hoffman Estates-Schaumburg Chamber of Commerce Tuesday morning.

Terry Schuessler representing American Medical Corp., the hospital's developers, will discuss plans for the facility and show an artist's rendering and a short film.

Deputy Fire Chief Ed Kalasa will talk briefly about recent fires in the Hoffman Estates area and will answer questions.

The meeting begins 8 a.m. at the Captain's Cove restaurant, Higgins and Roselle roads, Hoffman Estates.

Twinbrook YMCA on radio

Twinbrook YMCA is featured in a public service announcement featured on WJJD radio for the 1973 Crusade of Mercy campaign.

In the announcement, Bob Williams, executive director, tells how Twinbrook YMCA is providing services meeting human needs in the community.

He relates the story of a lonely boy who found direction for life from volunteer workers at Twinbrook YMCA. The local YMCA is one of 75 agencies in the Chicago metropolitan area participating in the WJJD spot announcement project.

Village, schools to close

Schaumburg village, township and elementary school district offices, will be closed Monday in observance of Veteran's Day.

Hoffman Estates village offices will remain open for business. All schools in Dist. 54 will be closed Monday.

Normal business hours will resume Tuesday in the Schaumburg village, township and school district offices.

All village offices are open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays while the school district and township offices are open from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Youth, 19, arrested, then hospitalized

A 19-year-old Roselle youth was rushed to Alexian Brothers Medical Center Wednesday after two Schaumburg policemen saw him swallow an unidentified substance, a sub spokesman said yesterday.

Andrew Jones, Rte. 1, Roselle was still hospitalized yesterday. No report was available on his condition.

Jones had fled from the youth officer at Schaumburg High School after being arrested on criminal trespass charges. He was approached again by police at a nearby shopping center but escaped again, police said.

Library board wrapup

New meeting room policy approved

Anything and everything goes, except a religious service, at Schaumburg Township Library, board members decided Wednesday, as they revamped the meeting-room-use policy.

The library trustees reversed a former meeting-room rule which prohibited political or religious groups from using the library meeting rooms. Any political or religious group can now use the meeting rooms.

The library staff and friends of the library groups have first priority in reserving meeting rooms for library-oriented programs. Blocks of time are now being reserved by both the children's and adult services heads for library programs and cultural or entertainment events. But many hours are open for commuter use.

The library will accept applications for meeting-room use until Nov. 15, for the six-month period between January and June.

Anyone who wants to reserve a room must send in a written request. These will be reviewed in order of priority and by date of application. Groups may not use rooms more than once a week except in case of rehearsal for a theatre production.

Trustee Ruth Tressalt said religious groups will be asked to hold only informational meetings or service club meetings. They must refrain from holding services in the rooms.

Sunday business boom

Sunday business is booming in the Schaumburg Township Public Library.

Librarian Michael Madden, reporting on the first months of Sunday opening to library board members Wednesday, said business has more than doubled.

A survey of Sunday patrons showed the general reaction was "we love it," he said. Most people said it's easier coming to the library on Sunday, he added.

Parents of very young children said it gives them a chance to come to the library "without the kids or worrying about a sitter because my husband or my wife is at home," said Madden.

Some patrons said Sunday was the only day they had an auto home during the day.

Sunday hours are 1 to 5 p.m.

Christmas decorations wanted

Library patrons are being asked to create and contribute Christmas decorations to the Schaumburg Township Public Library.

The contribution will earn three donors cash prizes. The Friends of the Library is sponsoring a Christmas decorations contest with first-place winner receiving a $25 savings bond and second- and third-place winners receiving $10 each.

Library patrons are asked to pick up contest applications blanks at the library. The applications specify materials to be used, the size decorations should be and other restrictions.

People who want to participate in the contest must return the applications by Nov. 25, and the decorations must be delivered between 1 to 5 p.m. Dec. 2, for judging Dec. 16.

Trustee Sonja Terasas is contest chairman.

AN IN-DEPTH PROFILE

WHAT WILL WE BE LIKE IN THE FUTURE? Several noted scientists and writers have described their impressions of FUTURE MAN. They studied developments in learning, teaching methods, general trends in society, and current research. They analyzed this information and came to rather definite conclusions as to what "FUTURE MAN" will be like:

- MAN WILL MASTER A GREAT MAJORITY OF HIS HEALTH PROBLEMS...
- HE WILL HAVE MORE INSIGHT AND GREATER SELF-CONFIDENCE...

ALL THESE FANTASTIC FUNCTIONS DESCRIBED FOR "FUTURE MAN" ARE BEING PRACTICED NOW - TODAY BY GRADUATES OF THE SILVA MIND CONTROL! JOIN THE FAMILY OF MAN BY LEARNING TO FUNCTION AT THESE SUPERIOR LEVELS OF MIND.

Over 200,000 people have graduated from this astounding course... They make up the nucleus of the Family of Man. They have been exposed to a unique concept of human development and many graduates report that they:

- Can master insomnia
- Control headaches
- Can eliminate habits such as smoking and weight
- Have increased their memory power
- Have new-found creative ability
- Are more intuitive

YOU TOO CAN HAVE THESE RESULTS... YOU TOO CAN GAIN FINANCIAL SECURITY BY GREATER ACHIEVEMENT... YOU TOO CAN HAVE BETTER FAMILY RELATIONS... YOU TOO CAN HAVE MORE LEISURE TIME... DO IT NOW!!! You'll find that you too can become "Future Man" TODAY. The Silva Method works and is fully guaranteed.

Suburbanites: 'It's just a matter of survival'

The energy shortage: how you'll feel it...

by The Herald Staff
The prospect of a chilly winter and gas shortages was accepted as a fact of life yesterday by Northwest suburban residents in the wake of President Nixon's call for voluntary cutbacks of energy consumption Wednesday.

Many people say they are already turning down the heat, starting car pools and turning off the lights whenever possible. In fact, the only widespread negative feeling about the cutback was a suspicion that not enough other people will voluntarily restrict themselves to make a difference in the energy crisis.

"We usually turn our thermostats down in the evening anyway, and very seldom drive over 50, but will everyone do it? Are they going to do it in Washington, too?" asked Wheeling resident Mrs. Michael Grabus.

"I don't think too many people will voluntarily start being careful about power use. It will only happen when it is a forced rationing," predicted Barbara Murphy, a Hoffman Estates resident. But for many of the residents questioned by Herald reporters, the early rumblings of impending voluntary restrictions were taken to heart.

SEVERAL PEOPLE began taking the train to Chicago instead of driving when the summer gas shortages began. Others use car pools for shopping trips and recreational outings.

Fuel shortages also are being taken seriously by homeowners contemplating smaller, more economical cars.

"Our present one is a gas-eater," one woman admitted. Even traditionally speedy American drivers say they are willing to slow down to 50 miles per hour. Some believe that mandatory 50 mph speed limits are needed.

Ralph Bossert of Arlington Heights says he will be driving slower now. And he goes one step further.

"I believe that legislation should have been taken a long time ago," Bossert said of the gas shortage. And legislation encouraging smaller engines for cars should be passed, too, according to Bossert.

ANOTHER fair-weather conservation measure is used by a Des Plaines Man.

"My husband rides a bike to work. He's been doing it for some time," said Mrs. Judy Sickinger of Des Plaines.

For some people, the energy crisis is a job crisis, too.

"Damn right I'm worried and turning off more lights and driving slower and heating less. It means my job if we don't have fuel," said a Schaumburg pilot who works with a major airline.

Mike Scimeca, a gasoline station owner in Hoffman Estates, says he's mad "in general, because everybody is just worried about being rationed. I'm not only rationed already, I don't have the right to raise my gas prices when the oil companies keep raising mine."

Scimeca says he'll do his share to conserve energy at home, "because I'm worried about it all running out, but I just hope I can go on making a living."

SOME RESIDENTS blame politics for the crisis. One man said the shortage is "a plot to get the Alaska (oil) pipeline through." Another believed that earlier administrations didn't do enough to start conserving years ago.

"This is something that has been going on for years," said one Arlington Heights woman.

On the other side of the political coin, one person said Nixon "was smart to urge voluntary measures." Joe Owens of Arlington Heights said, "I think there was no other alternative."

Kenneth Fraley, a Rolling Meadows resident, is confident that Americans will "get together to work on this thing and do exactly what he (Nixon) wants us to do."

"The American people are noted for that — when they have to do something, they get together and do it," Fraley said.

BUT FOR OTHER homeowners, the struggle to conserve energy comes as a byproduct of the fight to save money.

"I've got four kids and a wife. It costs too much to live now. If I don't constantly scream about shutting off lights, closing doors and save, save, on bills, we'd starve," said one Hoffman Estates homeowner.

"Nixon? Heck, he's not asking me to do anything I haven't had to do to survive," he said.

Lowering home thermostats can ease the heating oil crunch.

However, 'it will be close'

Combined Appeal head says goal will be reached

The head of the Mount Prospect Combined Appeal predicted yesterday that the campaign will attain its goal for the first time in five years.

Harold J. Predovich, president of the Combined Appeal, said present figures indicate the $29,200 goal will be reached, though he acknowledged "it will be close."

IN 1969, $18,700 was raised toward the goal of $22,250; in 1970, $19,800 toward $24,500; in 1971, $18,600 toward $24,000; and last year $19,100 toward $25,000.

Predovich praised Mount Prospect residents for "really coming through."

Their $6,843 donations represent 57 per cent of the goal set up for the residential category.

Advance gifts — contributions from persons who traditionally donate heavily — also are ahead of schedule, with $3,878 in, or 92 per cent of the goal for that category.

Predovich singled out professionals as lagging far behind the expected pace. So far, just $322 has been contributed by professionals, 28 per cent of their goal.

Businesses also are slightly behind, with $1,165 contributed, 23 per cent of that goal. Predovich said however, he expects business contributions to pick up with donations by the local banks and the Randhurst Corp.

PROSPECT HEIGHTS residents have chipped in $1,147, or 33 per cent of their goal.

The typical Prospect Heights donation, however, is larger than donations made by Mount Prospect residents. Prospect Heights families give an average of $11 each, while the Mount Prospect average is closer to $10.

A door-to-door campaign among businesses and some residential areas is being planned for the next two weeks, Predovich said.

Thirteen local organizations share in the funds contributed. They are: Camp Fire Girls, Clearbrook Center, Girl Scout Council of Northwest Cook County, North Cook County 4-H Club, Northwest Mental Health Association, Northwest Suburban Aid for the Retarded, Northwest Suburban Council of Boy Scouts, Northwest Suburban Day Care Center, Northwest Suburban Homemakers Service, Northwest Suburban YMCA, Salvation Army community counseling center, Salvation Army service unit and USO Chicago.

Contributions can be sent to Post Office Box 294, Mount Prospect, 60056, through Dec. 5.

Blood drive still 800 pints short

The Mount Prospect blood drive has surpassed the 1,000-pint mark, but is still about 800 pints short of its goal.

The previous total of 986 pints swelled by 50 in a drawing Wednesday night. This leaves the village with 1,036 pints toward the goal of 1,800.

Terry McManus, who has coordinated the drive for the Jaycees, said yesterday he is "a little discouraged" by the lagging total. "There's not enough involvement by the community," he said, suggesting that other local civic groups join the Jaycees in organizing the drive.

The goal of 1,800 pints was set because it represents 4 per cent of the village's population, and is the approximate amount of blood needed by a community of Mount Prospect's size.

Schools closed today and Monday

School is not in session in Mount Prospect Dist. 26 today as teachers meet with parents to discuss student evaluations for the first grading period.

Classes also will not be conducted Monday in observance of Veteran's Day. Regular sessions will resume at the usual time Tuesday.

Most municipal buildings to close Monday

Elementary school and high school districts, Park districts and most municipal buildings in the Northwest suburbs will be closed Monday in honor of Veterans Day.

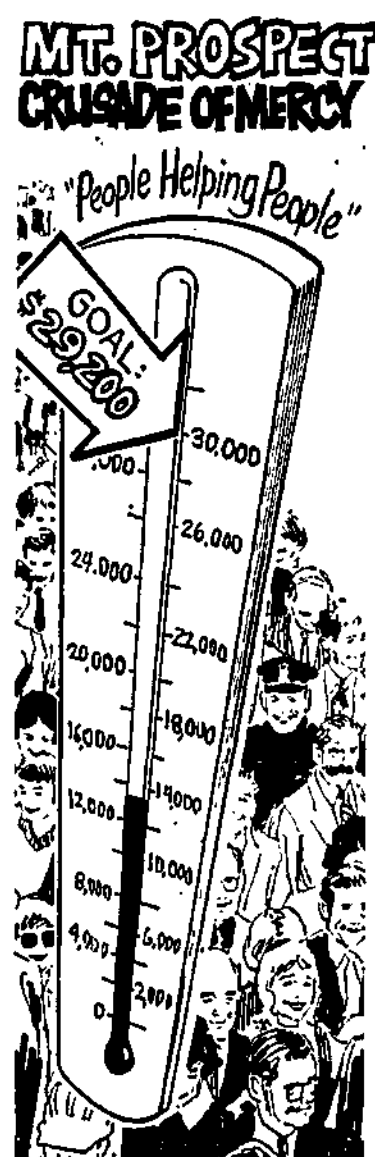

Rolling Meadows City Hall and the village halls in Arlington Heights, Hoffman Estates and Elk Grove Village will be open, however. Post offices, public libraries and Harper College in Palatine also will be open as will Elk Grove Township offices.

Lil Floros

It's a small world. Just ask Jack and Susan Spurlock of 24 N. Emerson St.

The Spurlocks are moving in a couple of weeks to Los Altos, Calif., a town about 33 miles south of San Francisco. Jack and Susan were recently in California looking for housing. When they finally found the home they wanted, they discovered the owners to be Russell and Patricia Shaw, former Mount Prospecters. The Shaws had lived in our village for three years, having moved to Los Altos two years ago. And, they had lived in the Busse School district, where the Spurlocks now live. And, furthermore, the Shaws are moving back to this area.

New people moving into the Spurlock Emerson Street home are Tom and Melva Brutenstein. She's a home economics teacher at Prospect High.

THERE'S A NEW owner of the Mount Prospect Paint and Wallpaper store at 115 S. Main St. He's Bob Greenberg of Wheeling.

THERE'S BIG NEWS from Ohio. Pat and Dan Gaffny, former Mount Prospects who moved to Ohio about five years ago, have a new baby. She's Kelly Ann, born Oct. 28, 6 pounds, 8 ounces. Pat and Dan were particularly active in village politics in Republican circles during the Dan Congreve administration. Gaffny served as Republican committeeman and precinct captain.

In Mount Prospect, the Gaffnys lived on Bobby Lane and Clevon Avenue. Their son Mike is now a senior at the University of Ohio and son Tim is in the army in Germany. Daughter Kathy is a freshman at a college in Ohio.

To send congratulations, write the Gaffnys at 4241 Robert Rd., South Euclid, Ohio.

ROBERT TEICHERT JR., son of the mayor, has been appointed chaplain for the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Chicago area group. He is also the chaplain for our local JC's.

"Robbie" is currently a student at Northwestern University studying to be a missionary priest.

Blue Bird candle lighting Friday

One hundred second grade girls from Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights will participate in a Blue Bird candle lighting ceremony tonight, marking their admission to the Camp Fire organization.

The girls will become members of the Potawatomi District. The ceremony is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Lincoln Junior High School, 700 W. Lincoln St.

The new Blue Birds will carry candles and pass through an arch decorated with pine garlands and surrounded by trees, birds and forest animals.

Helen Wilcox, chairman of the Blue Birds, will read the names of the new groups and their leaders and will present charters.

Ann Carpenter, chairman of the leaders association, and Dee Welles, incoming district chairman, will receive the new members.

Second grade girls in the Blue Birds work on the Starbird Project, a group activity, and third graders work on Solo Flight, a more independent activity. An emblem and charm is awarded for completion of each level.

Following the Blue Bird level, the girls will advance to the Adventure, Discovery and Horizon Clubs in the Camp Fire organization.

A FUNNY THING happened while mailman Michael "Bud" Norcross was following his regular route in the vicinity of Lions Park School in Mount Prospect. Neighbors along the route surprised the Arlington Heights father-to-be with a back-breaking load of shower presents. His delivery truck, it is said, was more full after he completed the route than before. Norcross has been bringing mail to the residents for five years.

Schools ask for health class grant

Prospect Heights School Dist. 23 will apply for a $1,500 state grant to develop a comprehensive health curriculum.

The grant is available through the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction. It will be used to pay teachers who are working on a health curriculum to be adopted by the district next fall.

Presently, health is taught along with physical education, science and other courses in Dist. 23. A new state law requires that health be taught as an independent subject.

Milk prices drop

The price of a half-pint of milk sold in School Dist. 23 has been reduced from 7 cents to 3 cents.

The reduction was made possible because of a recent revision in federal subsidies to public elementary schools.

Teacher resigns

The Dist. 23 school board Wednesday accepted the resignation of Marley Freedman, a teacher at Betsy Ross School.

Her resignation is effective as of November 21.

Guitar, amp stolen

An electric guitar and amplifier, valued at $850, were stolen Wednesday from 2020 Cayuga Ln., Mount Prospect.

Helen Peters told police the garage overhead door was unlocked between 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m., the time the burglary is believed to have occurred.

Week to 'honor' shoplifting

Next week has been designated "Everything Has a Price Week" in Mount Prospect in recognition of shoplifting.

Shoplifting has been described as the nation's fastest growing crime and now accounts for more than $800 in thefts annually in Illinois.

Liquor license plea rejected by village, 4-2

A request by Danny's Barn, 303 Kensington Rd., to operate more hours was rejected this week by the Mount Prospect Village Board.

The trustees voted 4-2 to deny the restaurant's petition for a Class L liquor license that would allow the facility to remain open until 4 a.m.

The current license held by Danny's Barn, a Class B license, permits it to be open until 2 a.m. on weekdays and 3 a.m. on weekends.

Bernard Lee, attorney for Danny's Barn, told the trustees that the extra hours could make the difference between the restaurant making a profit and failing.

Trustee Richard N. Hendricks presented the case against issuing the new license. "It's got to stop at 2 o'clock," he said, fearing that to issue the new license would prompt other local liquor licenses to apply to extend their hours as well.

He was joined by trustees George B. Anderson, Donald B. Furst and Patrick J. Link in opposing the license. Trustees E. F. Richardson and Kenneth V. Scholten voted for the license.

Mayor Robert D. Teichert said he believed the hours of establishments holding liquor licenses should not be regulated by municipalities. Rather, he said, the establishments should be operated like other businesses whose hours accommodate the trade.

Lee hinted that Danny's Barn may sue the village to get the new license. Currently, just one Class "L" license has been issued in Mount Prospect, to the Captain's Steak Joint.

For Prospect Heights

Incorporation papers may be filed

by TOM VON MALDER

Incorporation petitions for Prospect Heights may be filed in court as early as next week, according to the Prospect Heights Improvement Association, the group spearheading efforts to form the new municipality.

PHIA board member Richard Wolf said petitions are being circulated now to support the incorporation request. Two hundred signatures of registered voters from the unincorporated area are needed. There are approximately 3,300 registered voters in the less than 4-square-mile area being considered for incorporation.

If the incorporation application cannot be readied by next week, Wolf said all efforts will be made to submit it to the courts by the end of the month. PHIA

Pres. Jack Gilligan explained the situation is such that his group and the people of Prospect Heights cannot afford to wait. The three surrounding communities, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Wheeling, he said, are continually annexing pieces of unincorporated Prospect Heights.

"I'M SURE W E will be ready by the end of the month," Gilligan said. "We want to let it (the filing date) be a surprise. I think the board really hasn't made up its mind."

He added that many people are watching the PHIA board just to see if they slip up and one such slip, he said, would be to announce a filing date and then not be able to actually file then.

While the petitions are being signed, the PHIA's boundary committee continues to prepare the required legal descriptions of properties to be included within the new city. Both Gilligan and Wolf agreed that changes in the proposed boundaries could be made at almost any time — even after the application is before the court, according to Gilligan.

ON MONDAY THE PHIA board in an executive session reaffirmed previously announced boundaries, which include parts of Pal-Waukee Airport, Rob Roy Golf Course and Waterman Avenue — all sore points with the neighboring communities. The board also decided not to include commercial properties not already in the plan, but suggested, because no definite proposals had been submitted by the firms involved.

These commercial properties are in two main areas — along Rand Road to the northwest and a northeast area which contains Culligan Water Softener Co., Allstate Insurance Co., Illinois Bell Telephone Co. and A. C. Neilson Co.

Some sales tax revenue could be obtained from the firms, especially Culligan, if they were included.

Gilligan said if any of the four mentioned firms were to say it wants to become a part of Prospect Heights, the incorporation plan would be amended to include the firm. "We owe them some type of discussion," Wolf said. He said he plans to have at least informational talks still with three of the four firms.

CULLIGAN OFFICIALS have already indicated to the PHIA that the firm would rather become part of Northbrook at some future date.

As for expansion along Rand Road, Wolf said he is "looking into possibilities." Again nothing definite has been proposed.

According to Gilligan, some studies of the Rand Road possibilities have been made but "they are not conclusive."

Suburbanites: 'It's just a matter of survival'

The energy shortage: how you'll feel it...

by The Herald Staff

The prospect of a chilly winter and gas shortages was accepted as a fact of life yesterday by Northwest suburban residents in the wake of President Nixon's call for voluntary cutbacks of energy consumption Wednesday.

Many people say they are already turning down the heat, starting car pools and turning off the lights whenever possible. In fact, the only widespread negative feeling about the cutback was a suspicion that not enough other people will voluntarily restrict themselves to make a difference in the energy crisis.

"We usually turn our thermostats down in the evening anyway, and very seldom drive over 50, but will everyone do it? Are they going to do it in Washington, too?" asked Wheeling resident Mrs. Michael Grabus.

"I don't think too many people will voluntarily start being careful about power use. It will only happen when it is a forced rationing," predicted Barbara Murphy, a Hoffman Estates resident. But for many of the residents questioned by Herald reporters, the early rumblings of impending voluntary restrictions were taken to heart.

SEVERAL PEOPLE began taking the train to Chicago instead of driving when the summer gas shortages began. Others use car pools for shopping trips and recreational outings.

Fuel shortages also are being taken seriously by homeowners contemplating smaller, more economical cars.

"Our present one is a gas-eater," one woman admitted. Even traditionally speedy American drivers say they are willing to slow down to 50 miles per hour. Some believe that mandatory 50 mph speed limits are needed.

Ralph Bossert of Arlington Heights says he will be driving slower now. And he goes one step further.

"I believe that legislation should have been taken a long time ago," Bossert said of the gas shortage. And legislation encouraging smaller engines for cars should be passed, too, according to Bossert.

ANOTHER fair-weather conservation measure is used by a Des Plaines Man.

"My husband rides a bike to work. He's been doing it for some time," said Mrs. Judy Sickinger of Des Plaines.

For some people, the energy crisis is a job crisis, too.

"Damn right I'm worried and turning off more lights and driving slower and heating less. It means my job if we don't have fuels," said a Schaumburg pilot who works with a major airline.

Mike Scimeca, a gasoline station owner in Hoffman Estates, says he's mad "in general, because everybody is just worried about being rationed. I'm not only rationed already, I don't have the right to raise my gas prices when the oil companies keep raising mine."

Scimeca says he'll do his share to conserve energy at home, "because I'm worried about it all running out, but I just hope I can go on making a living."

SOME RESIDENTS blame politics for the crisis. One man said the shortage is "a plot to get the Alaska (oil) pipeline through." Another believed that earlier administrations didn't do enough to start conserving years ago.

"This is something that has been going on for years," said one Arlington Heights woman.

On the other side of the political coin, one person said Nixon "was smart to urge voluntary measures." Joe Owens of Arlington Heights said, "I think there was no other alternative."

Kenneth Fraley, a Rolling Meadows resident, is confident that Americans will "get together to work on this thing and do exactly what he (Nixon) wants us to do."

"The American people are noted for that — when they have to do something, they get together and do it," Fraley said.

BUT FOR OTHER homeowners, the struggle to conserve energy comes as a byproduct of the fight to save money.

"I've got four kids and a wife. It costs too much to live now. If I don't constantly scream about shutting off lights, closing doors and save, save, save, on bills, we'd starve," said one Hoffman Estates homeowner.

"Nixon? Heck, he's not asking me to do anything I haven't had to do to survive," he said.

Lowering home thermostats can ease the heating oil crunch.

What makes Johnny run for higher office?

Village hall—where race up political ladder begins

by KURT BAER
(A News Analyst)

What makes Johnny run? or Gene? Or Jim?

What sparks a man or woman who already holds one public office to put himself through the cost and chaos of running for another, higher post?

There are at least as many answers as candidates.

Two members of Arlington Heights Village Board are now actively seeking endorsement of the Republican Party for bigger elected offices.

Village Pres. Jack Walsh would like to become president of the Cook County Board. Trustee James T. Ryan today will present himself to Republican slatemakers as a candidate for the Metropolitan Sanitary District board of trustees.

THERE ARE persistent rumors, despite his own personal denial, that former Arlington Heights Trustee John White will run for a seat on the bench of the Cook County Circuit Court.

Another ex-trustee, Eugene Schlickman, has already been elected to five terms as a state representative, and recently announced his intention to run again.

While the dates and details of these four political case histories are different, there is a common pattern to each man's climb up the political staircase. It began in Arlington Heights village hall.

For three, the trip began with an appointment to the Arlington Heights Plan Commission. Walsh, Ryan and White all had their days of public hearings, final plans annexations and rezonings.

From the plan commission, each man

James Ryan

Jack Walsh

climbed aboard the village board. With Ryan and White, the initial seat came by appointment, though their rite of passage was eventually endorsed by election results. Schlickman and Walsh too were elected trustees. Their office, as much as their politics, became a tie that binds.

"THE DAY-TO-DAY involvement in the problems of local government has been in itself rewarding," Walsh says. It was the pursuit of solutions to problems, he says, that brought him into contact with bigger and bigger governments.

"Once you decide there is a local problem you ask yourself, 'How do I solve it?' Eventually this means economic ability. And as you follow the trail to federal or state resources you become familiar with, frequently, the unresponsiveness of government at all levels.

"All this is by way of pursuing solutions to a problem that you realize cannot be wholly solved just within your community's borders."

"There really isn't any philosophy," Walsh says. "You realize that philosophy only plays a significant role at the national level."

Ryan, like Walsh, says that a candidate's awareness of public office develops with time and experience.

"Very few people get totally immersed in a problem overnight. You get your feet wet one step at a time," he says.

"Getting involved, particularly with the plan commission and later the village board, you start to see more problems than you ever did as a private citizen."

"A private citizen sees mainly the problem that confronts him directly. As a trustee you see a host of problems that can affect 70,000 people."

BOTH MEN SAY that to consider Arlington Heights village government as a training ground for higher offices is easier to do looking back over a political career than when beginning one.

Walsh and Ryan today are still among the ranks of political hopefuls. They have gone before the Republican slatemakers, but neither has yet been promised a place on the party ticket, much less a seat in office.

Schlickman, however, has five elected terms as a state representative under his belt and can easier afford the luxury of reflection.

Most municipal buildings to close Monday

Elementary school and high school districts, Park districts and most municipal buildings in the Northwest suburbs will be closed Monday in honor of Veterans Day.

Rolling Meadows City Hall and the village halls in Arlington Heights, Hoffman Estates and Elk Grove Village will be open, however. Post offices, public libraries and Harper College in Palatine also will be open as will Elk Grove Township offices.

Two visitors to the suburbs view President

Abzug: Nixon should quit, election should follow

by KATHY BOYCE

U.S. Rep. Bella Abzug of New York night that she plans to introduce a bill in Congress for a special Presidential election next November if President Nixon leaves office.

If Congress confirms President Nixon's vice-presidential nominee Gerald Ford, "we may well be electing the President of the United States for you," said Rep. Abzug. She said she believed that once Ford is confirmed by Congress, members of the Republican Party will ask Nixon to resign.

"Mr Ford is not the free choice of the people," said Rep. Abzug. Nixon has chosen a successor "as one does almost in a monarchy, not in a democracy," she said. "And the laws providing for succession should be changed."

IT IS "THE great majority of Americans that have been abused and it is the Americans that now have to act," said Rep. Abzug. "You picked the President," she said. "It's your problem."

Rep. Abzug has also written a bill for Nixon's impeachment and she claims she has advocated his impeachment for 18 months. "The fact is that the American public can no longer believe what Mr. Nixon says or does," she said. It is "quite evident that this great democracy of ours has almost been stolen from us."

The government has become corrupt and the American public must start cleaning it up by electing a new President, said Rep. Abzug.

"What the founders of our nation wanted to provide was an impeachable President because they had an impeachable king," said Rep. Abzug. It is "a fundamental safeguard against what we had rebelled against."

The Congress that passed the 25th amendment, which says the President may pick the vice-presidential successor, "really never contemplated a double vacancy or that it might be an impeachable President who will do the picking," Rep. Abzug said.

In the past year, "the American people have learned a lot," said Rep. Abzug. There are "a lot of wonderful things in this country and we still have a chance to be the greatest democracy in the world," she said, adding, "there is evidence that in this country democracy is not only breathing and alive, but it can kick a little."

WHEN PRESIDENT Nixon fired special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox, he made "the biggest mistake of his life," she said. The controversy over Watergate and the firing of Cox "reflects a continuing schism in American life" over what politics should be.

It has "gotten to the point where the Watergate inquiry began to look like a political whodunit," Rep. Abzug said. Her bill for impeachment charges Nixon with seven separate violations of the law, including defiance of a court order, the firing of Cox, obstruction of justice, impounding of federal money, and falsification of records regarding the bombing of Cambodia.

General Haig: 'Vindication not resignation'

by STEVE BROWN

With a theme of "vindication, not resignation," more than 500 Republican supporters gathered last night to cheer Presidential adviser Gen. Alexander Haig, who spoke in a fund-raising address for U.S. Rep. Sam Young, R-10th.

Haig delivered a speech on the topic of "The Global Strategic Situation," and reviewed what he considered "administration accomplishments and the challenges of the future."

Prior to the speech, Haig declined to answer any questions about the Watergate situation. "I'm not here to answer those types of inquiries," the general said. Haig emphatically stated, however, that President Nixon would not resign. "We have a great deal to get done," Haig said. "We have a basic strategy to get out about the Watergate situation," he stated, adding the facts of the matter would come out in the courts.

HAIG SAID THE President felt he should deny the possibility of his resignation Wednesday night because of the "great deal of speculation about the topic."

The general said the President has shown few signs of strain or fatigue because of the pressures of either Watergate or the other international crises. "Anybody could see the President was feeling fine from his television speech

Wednesday night," Haig explained.

Haig also said he did not feel there would be any new large-scale attack against the news media in the future. The general arrived at the North Shore Hilton Hotel in Skokie just prior to the dinner. He returned to Washington immediately after his speech.

Congressman Young said he and Haig had only a brief conversation during their plane ride from Washington to the Glenview Naval Air Station. He said they talked primarily about the Mid-East situation. "We discussed the fact that Henry Kissinger is Jewish and whether or not this would cause a problem in the negotiations with the Arabs," Young said. He added they both agreed this would not be a factor.

IN PREPARED remarks, Young asked the partisan crowd to offer a silent prayer for President Nixon, so that he would have "strength, courage and wisdom."

"In my opinion, the President has done everything he can to try to re-establish the confidence of the American people in the independence of the Watergate investigation," Young said.

A host of local GOP dignitaries attended the $75-a-plate dinner. They included insurance magnate W. Clement Stone. Stone told The Herald that he still had confidence in the Republican Party.

School milk price cut to four cents per carton

Arlington Heights School Dist. 25 Board of Education last night reduced the price of student milk to four cents a half pint but kept the price of student lunches at 50 cents each.

The reduction in milk prices is due to federal funding which was recently reinstated. School officials hiked the price of milk to eight cents a half pint in August when the government's special milk funding program was eliminated. At that time the price of hot lunch was increased from 45 cents to 50 cents.

School officials last night said the new federal funds allowed the district to drop back the milk prices but because of "the continued high cost of food the lunch prices must remain the same."

The new milk prices probably will go into effect Tuesday. Monday school will be dismissed in observance of Veterans Day.

Several area school districts have been hit by rising food costs and some are considering raising hot lunch prices.

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 this week announced that there is a shortage of flour which is supplied by the federal government, and school district officials there are considering changing the makeup of lunches or increasing the prices. School lunches there now are only 45 cents.

The Dist. 25 school board last night also heard a report on the junior high school math program. School board members questioned math teachers on whether Dist. 25 students are receiving adequate training in preparation for high school mathematics curriculum. Although the teachers said there are no guidelines, they contend academic grades of freshmen students show that Arlington Heights students are well prepared to enter the high school program.

LIGHTS ON the energy crisis in downtown Arlington Heights? The street lights in Arlington Heights were lighted till almost noon yesterday while the department of public works checked the circuits. The reason for the tests? To make sure the connections for the extra holiday decorative lights were in order. The Chamber of Commerce said the decorations would be hung, but no decision has been reached on whether to turn them on.

Village hall — where political ladder begins

for five years provided me with legislative experience and the first opportunity to work with others on matters dealing with people and the representation of them.

"It was an excellent training ground. But when I ran for the state legislature for the first time in 1964, I didn't feel that I was leaving the village board, but extending my representation to Springfield."

SCHLICKMAN was the first Wheeling Township resident ever to be slated for a state-wide office.

Village government is not a popular nor proven ticket to higher elected office. Party service is probably a more common denominator among the hundreds of men and women who hold state and county posts.

But if White decides to run for the circuit court — a move he recently termed "the rankest speculation" — and if

Remember The Aged All The Year 'Round

Living alone or in a nursing home, many old people often feel useless and forgotten. They are in need of being remembered not only at special occasions but all year 'round. Sometimes a note, a phone call or a visit is enough to make life feel worthwhile again.

Our pharmacy tries to give special consideration to our older customers in every way. We know they often have special health problems and we try especially hard to always have on hand those medicines and health aids most called for by older folks. We are proud they have chosen us to assist them.

YOU OR YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a delivery. We will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people rely on us for their health needs. We welcome requests for delivery service and charge accounts.
